AIRMEN SINK 15 JAP SHIPS

Yanks Invade Another Marshall Island; Win Beachheads

GERMAN ANZIO ATTACKS FAIL; LOSSES HEAVY

Clark Opens Drive Against Cassino.

AT THE 5TH ARMY BEACHHEAD SOUTH OF ROME, Feb. 18 (AP).—Elastic allied defenses absorbed continued heavy attacks by German infantry and tanks today, exacting thousands of enemy casualties and protecting the beachhead line.

Altho the current German operations probably constitute Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring's all-out offensive to clear the allies from "next door to Rome," it should be emphasized that the situation is not critical.

Since the enemy assault began Wednesday German artillery fire has been heavier and more sustained than in any other battle in which American troops engaged in North Africa, Sicily, or Italy.

The Germans lost heavily in the push which failed to smash thru the allied front at any point. Large scale German attacks continue.

Airmen Blast Nazis.

American infantry yesterday contested every yard of German advance down the main road from Carroceto toward Anzio, regardless of fresh reserves thrown in by the enemy. Nowhere along the line did the Germans score a strategic breakthru.

The Germans continued to employ tanks in combat teams with infantry, which varied their attacks between infiltrations and frontal assaults.

The American air force blasted Carroceto and every known large concentration of enemy strength on this front in a dawn to dark offensive yesterday, which started geysers of explosions for a distance of 20 miles on the German supply line.

Confident staff officers of the British and American forces here described the enemy's efforts as an "all-out offensive," but added that the allied defensive power had not yet been seriously tested.

Use Many Tanks.

It is estimated that the Germans have elements from as many divisions here as are stationed on the coast to coast front in the south.

About 35 German tanks were estimated to have been engaged Wednesday and on Thursday the enemy used as many as 50 to 60 tanks, broken up in small groups.

The German artillery fired nearly half as often as the allied batteries, and the Germans appeared to rely on tank fire to keep the offensive rolling.

Open Drive on Cassino.

ALLIED HDQ., Naples, Feb. 18 (AP).—The allies opened a major assault before dawn today on the stubborn German fortress of Cassino, sending ground troops smashing against the town's defenses after a six hour artillery barrage.

Hundreds of allied guns belched steel into Cassino's battered streets and sprayed the slopes of 1,800 foot Mt. Cassino which towers above it in one of the deadliest barrages of the Mediterranean war before Lt. Gen. Clark's seasoned ground troops moved to the attack.

From steel and concrete pillboxes concealed within the blackened rubble of Cassino itself and thickly dotting the bare, jagged mountain, the Nazis for more than a fortnight have fought a desperate and successful action to prevent the main allied 5th army from breaking thru into the Liri valley and driving to the assistance of their hard pressed comrades on the beachhead.

Before today's jump-off, American troops held approximately one third of Cassino itself and were established on the lower slopes of Mt. Cassino.

Army Halts College Study for 110,000

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18 [Special].—Some 110,000 young men now being trained as army specialists in colleges and universities will be transferred to combat assignments before April 1, the war department disclosed today in announcing the elimination of a major part of the army's specialized training program.

The announcement confirmed an exclusive story in THE TRIBUNE last Dec. 11 stating that the program was to be liquidated. Army officers at that time emphatically denied that such a move was contemplated.

The war department today said the entire ASTP will be eliminated except for advanced courses in medicine, dentistry, and engineering.

Blame Draft Lag.

Elimination of the program was blamed on the failure of draft boards to meet the army's man power requirements. It was said that the army was 200,000 men short of its goal of 7,700,000 men in uniform by the end of 1943.

The shortage raised the prospect of further demands on draft boards for more combing of the files of the deferred and more emphasis on the induction of fathers heretofore deferred for dependency reasons, which no longer are sufficient for deferment.

It was indicated that the increased tempo of offensive operations, involving mounting casualties, figured in the decision. Immediate field replacements are needed, especially of the type in the college program.

35,000 to Remain.

The group of 110,000, the announcement added, has had enough training to qualify for noncommissioned and technical assignments, particularly in the infantry. Their transfer to active duty would leave 35,000 ASTPs in college, including 5,000 pre-induction students. Seventeen year olds in the ASTP reserve will not be affected. Only those who have completed their basic training will be withdrawn.

About 80,000 of the transferred men will be assigned to the army ground forces "where the skills and capacity for leadership now are most needed." Most of the remaining 30,000 will be assigned to other units destined for overseas service.

The ASTP was organized by the army on Dec. 17, 1942, and directed the training of 145,000 young men in 222 colleges and universities. Secretary of War Stimson said the schools will be reimbursed for the unexpired portion of contracts covering the withdrawn students.

"Serious Effect" Predicted.

Elimination of the ASTP will have "a very serious effect" on schools already hard hit by the war, said Dr. George F. Zook, president of the American Council on Education, which frequently has represented the nation's colleges in dealing with the army and navy. He said it would fall heaviest on colleges that have

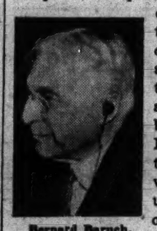
BARUCH GIVES BLUEPRINT FOR POST-WAR BOOM

Jobs for All, Lower Taxes Proposed.

BY PHILIP DODD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—A blueprint for post-war conversion, designed to take the government out of business and industry after the war, was announced today by Bernard M. Baruch, chief of the war and post-war adjustment unit of the office of war mobilization.



Bernard Baruch.

Ranging thru all phases of industrial conversion during and after the war, the report not only covers many knotty financial problems such as war contract terminations, but stresses the "human side of demobilization" in sweeping recommendations concerning the welfare of returning veterans and displaced war workers.

The report, aimed at preventing another depression, was prepared and drafted by Baruch, but was released by the White House. Capitol hill observers expressed belief that President Roosevelt and War Mobilization Director Byrnes did not favor all of Baruch's recommendations, but decided to adopt them as "good politics."

Propose "Work Director."

Baruch, who in World War I. was chairman of the war industries board, was named head of the adjustment unit by Byrnes in November, 1943. He was assisted by John M. Hancock, formerly of Lehman Brothers, New York banking house, in the preparation of the report made public today.

Major recommendations in the report were:

1. Creation of the post of "work director" in the OWM to develop job placement for war veterans and released war workers.

2. Quick, fair, and final cash settlement of war contracts to speed conversion of factories to the manufacture of civilian goods.

Advance Program Urged.

3. Appointment of a surplus property administrator to be responsible for every aspect of surplus goods disposal.

4. Advance planning for conversion of war industries in the event Germany collapses and the tempo of the war on Japan increases.

5. Extension of the life time of such government war powers as price control, priorities, and allocations, and the requisitioning power

STORM ONTO ENIWETOK AS WARSHIPS BLAST WAY

M'Arthur Bombers Smash Convoy in Bismarcks.

ALLIED HDQ. IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Feb. 19 [Saturday]—(AP).—The Japanese convoy bound from Truk to imperiled Bismarck archipelago bases when spotted northwest of New Ireland Monday night has been almost completely wiped out, Gen. MacArthur reported today.

The ships lost by the Japanese to the aerial attackers included 12 merchantmen totalling 36,500 tons and three warships. Only two of the ships in the convoy are believed to have escaped.

The masthead attacks caused heavy losses to Japanese personnel.

The ships sunk were: A destroyer and two corvettes, an 8,000 ton tanker, a 7,500 ton tanker, a 6,000 ton transport, five 2,000 ton cargo ships, three 1,500 ton cargo ships, and a 500 ton freighter.

Six Ships Hit First Day.

Yesterday in first announcing the beginning of the attack off Mussau Island, Gen. MacArthur said the ships bombed included a destroyer, large tanker, and four cargo ships. Today he said additionally that a 7,500 tanker, five 2,000 ton merchantmen, two corvettes, and a small merchantman were sunk off New Hanover.

MacArthur also reported new air assaults on Rabaul, New Britain, and Kavieng, New Ireland. No interception was encountered at either base.

A 20 ton bomb attack by Japanese planes on Green Island, at the top of the Solomons, also was reported. Green Island was occupied earlier in the week. This operation cut off 22,000 trapped Nipponese elsewhere in the Solomons from their supply base at Rabaul.

Japs Cause No Damage.

The Jap raiders struck at night and caused no damage.

At Kavieng, Liberators scored more than 30 hits on the runways at Panapai airdrome, leaving the field unserviceable.

At Rabaul, escorted Liberators struck Vunakanau airdrome Wednesday noon with 45 tons of explosives.

In the convoy assault, waves of low flying Mitchells completed the job started by Catalinas and Liberators.

Highest estimates set the total number of merchantmen in the convoy at 14. The enemy losses were confirmed by aerial photographs.

Seven Raids in an Hour.

The attack opened Monday night, reached its height at midday Tuesday, and was concluded Wednesday morning.

Within an hour the Mitchells, assisted by Lightnings and one Liberator, executed seven attacks. The 2,000 ton cargo boats went down with all personnel, a spokesman said.

Neither the spokesman nor the official report indicated whether the blow cost the Americans any planes.

U. S. Forces Land on Truk, Tokio Radio Says.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, Feb. 18 (AP).—United States assault troops have landed and established beachheads on Eniwetok atoll, westernmost of the Marshall Islands, striking a day after powerful task forces attacked Japan's mid-Pacific fortress of Truk.

Rear Adm. H. W. Hill

The invasion of Eniwetok yesterday, announced today by Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, was covered by a heavy concentration of warships and planes. It demonstrated the tremendous power at Nimitz' disposal, coming almost simultaneously with the slash at Truk, in the heart of the mandated Caroline Islands.

Eniwetok is less than 400 statute miles northwest of Kwajalein, seized by American marines and infantry a fortnight ago in the first incursion of the Marshalls. It is only 750 miles northeast of Truk and has been used chiefly by the Nipponese as a base for planes moving in and out of the Marshalls.

Once Eniwetok has been occupied and its air field restored, it can be used for land based heavy bombers in striking at Truk and Ponape, another important enemy base in the Carolines 425 miles southwest of Eniwetok.

No Word on Truk Attack.

There still was no further word from Adm. Nimitz' headquarters on the Truk attack, announced yesterday, due to a radio silence by the attacking forces, altho Tokio indicated the Americans had landed at the big base.

Nimitz did not indicate what opposition his forces encountered on Eniwetok. The Japanese are known to have an air field on Engebi Isle, at the northern end of the atoll, and probably another on Eniwetok Island, to the south.

All the ground installations have been heavily hit by United States carrier raids. During the raids of Feb. 10, 11, and 12 no fighter opposition was encountered and there was little anti-aircraft fire.

Heavy Preliminary Pounding.

Adm. Nimitz said:

"Capture of Eniwetok atoll has been undertaken by forces of the Pacific ocean areas.

"The initial landings took place after strong preliminary attacks by carrier based aircraft and by ships of the Pacific fleet.

"Troops went ashore under cover of battleship fire and with close support of low flying naval aircraft. Army and marine assault troops have landed and established beachheads."

Further details probably are not available even to fleet headquarters.

Commanders of Invasion.

The assault on Eniwetok was commanded by Rear Adm. Richmond K. Turner, with Rear Adm. H. W. Hill in command of the amphibious forces. The assault forces consisted of the 22d marine regiment and elements of the 106th army infantry, under Brig. Gen. T. E. Watson of the marines.

Gen. Watson saw service in the last war and in Santo Domingo, Nicaragua, Mexico, and China. This was his first combat command, however, in the present conflict. His home is in Washington, D. C.

Skidmore Dies in Prison of Heart Attack

Terre Haute, Ind., Feb. 18 [Special].—William R. [Billy] Skidmore, 67, reputed gambling fixer in Chicago, died this afternoon in the federal penitentiary here where he was serving a two and a half year sentence for evading income tax payments of $353,194. He would have been eligible for release in a month.

Asst. Warden C. T. Gladden said heart disease apparently was the cause of death. He said Skidmore, who was assigned to clerical work, "has had a little trouble with his heart occasionally and had been ill for several days, but his death was unexpected."

Skidmore was convicted in Chicago in 1941 and entered the penitentiary on March 20, 1942. With time off for good behavior—and the assistant warden said he had been a good prisoner—he would have been eligible for release March 23.

COLORFUL CHICAGO FIGURE.

Skidmore was one of the most colorful links between Chicago of the gay '90s and the city's roaring prohibition and post-prohibition era.

Born on the west side 67 years ago, he rose to affluence by his wits. Altho reputed for years to have been the middleman between the gambling syndicate and police and politicians, he never served a day in jail until after the government took an interest in his income tax affairs.

As a boy he sold programs at the old Harlem and Washington Park race tracks. At 19 he won a sizable bet and with the proceeds purchased a cigar store and handbook. Later he opened a saloon at Lake and Robey sts. [now Damen av.], where he first met influential politicians and gamblers.

Enters National Scene.

In 1907 he entered politics as a follower of Carter H. Harrison and the regular Democratic organization. Later he allied with the Roger Sullivan faction and served as purchasing agent for the Democratic national committee. He was sergeant at arms at the national Democratic convention in 1912.

In 1917 he was indicted as a participant in a graft ring with Charles C. Healy, then chief of police, and the late Stephen K. Barry, a police lieutenant. After a four month trial all the defendants were acquitted. But thereafter Skidmore dropped out of open political activity.

During prohibition Skidmore operated as a professional bondsman. In about 1930 he established himself in a junkyard at 2840 S. Kedzie av. Always smartly attired, he became known as the world's best dressed junkman.

To his little office, the government contended during Skidmore's trial on the income tax charges, trooped the city's gamblers, big and little, to square accounts with politicians and police, thru Skidmore as an agent. Skidmore stoutly denied this.

HIGHEST OF RUSSIA'S DECORATIONS GIVEN TO GEN. EISENHOWER

LONDON, Feb. 18 (AP).—Russia's highest military award—the order of Suvorov, first class—has been awarded to Gen. Eisenhower, allied commander in chief, the Moscow radio announced tonight. A citation said the award to Eisenhower was for his "outstanding successes in North Africa and Italy against Hitlerite Germany — the common enemy of the soviet union and the United States of America."

Eisenhower is the first foreign general to receive the Suvorov order—named for Gen. Alexander Suvorov, who led the Russians into Berlin in 1760 and never lost a battle.

Lt. Gen. Carl Spaatz, commander of the United States strategic air force, was awarded the order of Suvorov, second class. Other recipients of medals included Lt. Gen. Ira C. Eaker, allied air commander of the Mediterranean; Maj. Gen. Frederick Anderson, former head of the United States 8th air force bomber command and now a deputy commander of the United States strategic bombing force; Vice Adm. Henry K. Hewitt, Rear Admirals Robert C. Giffen and Harry Hill, and Col. Arthur Salisbury.

Cobbler's Son Beats Son of Duke at Polls

LONDON, Feb. 18 (AP).—A cobbler's son defeated a Conservative, the son of a British duke, who was backed by Prime Minister Churchill in a by-election for parliament yesterday.

Churchill has twice supported candidates of his Conservative party recently. In his first intervention his candidate won by a narrow margin. In this second one—in the farm community of west Derbyshire—he suffered a defeat.

Local conditions, not entirely connected with the larger national issues had some part in the result as C. F. White, an independent, defeated the 26 year old marquess of Hartington, 16,336 to 11,775.

Voters Show Resentment.

However, Churchill intervened in the campaign with a letter endorsing the young marquess and saying it would be disastrous if Britain "fell into petty squabbles in the very year when her supreme efforts must be made."

Supporters of the 53 year old White said the aid which the Churchill cabinet threw the peer under the war time political truce was resented by the voters.

Independents Not Bound.

Under Britain's war time political truce, the party holding a seat is unopposed for reelection by a Conservative, Liberal, Laborite or Liberal National. Independents and others, however, have been cutting into this practice increasingly and the government began taking a firmer line in opposing Independents.

Undeterred by the results, Churchill sent another letter today to Maj. F. M. Keating, the Conservative candidate in the next by-election at Bury Saint Edmunds, wishing him "success against the anti-government candidate."

17 ARMY AIRMEN DIE IN DOUBLE BOMBER CRASH

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 17 (AP).—Seventeen army flyers and crewmen were killed today after two B-24 bombers on a training mission locked wings and crashed on the rugged Salt River Indian reservation, 20 miles northeast of Phoenix, the public relations office at nearby Williams field reported.

Not a man aboard the two big Liberators, based at Davis-Monthan field, Tucson, escaped.

Seven men were aboard one plane and 10 in the other. Their names were withheld temporarily.

Reveal 400 Die on Lost Liner

VANCOUVER, B. C., Feb. 18 (AP).—Four hundred persons were lost, most of them victims of sharks, when the 21,500 ton liner Empress of Canada was torpedoed at midnight by an Italian submarine off Freetown, West Africa, nearly a year ago, survivors told the Canadian Press today. British rescuers saved 800 persons.

The sinking of the one time Pacific ocean liner, an $8,000,000 vessel which had been taken over by the British admiralty, was announced in an Italian bulletin March 15, 1943, but never confirmed by allied authorities.

Military, Refugees, and Prisoners.

Aboard the Empress of Canada at the time, it was recounted, were troops and navy personnel, Italian prisoners, and Greek and Polish refugees.

At Ottawa, Wing Comdr. E. R. Emond said the vessel was 400 miles off Freetown when she was struck, spilling her passengers and crew into a sea filled with sharks and barracuda.

The submarine surfaced and the commander said in English that he would give those aboard a chance to abandon ship before firing again.

An Italian doctor was picked up by the submarine and after Capt. George Goold of Vancouver, last man to come over the side, had left the Empress of Canada, the submarine finished the stricken ship with deck guns. Most of the 400 lost were Italian prisoners of war tho 44 of the British crew were known to have died.

Spotted by Flying Boat.

Emond said wireless operators got off a message before the big liner went down, 12 minutes after the torpedoing, but a "very long, grim, and hazardous" 17 hours elapsed before a royal air force Catalina flying boat spotted the lifeboats and another day and a half before a British destroyer reached the survivors.

The Empress of Canada, launched at Vancouver in September, 1920, had an over-all length of 653 feet and a 77 foot beam. For approximately 20 years she was operated by the Canadian Trans-Pacific Line from Vancouver to ports in Japan, China, and elsewhere in the western Pacific. She had a passenger capacity in peace time of 840 first, second, and third class and 930 steerage. Her peace time crew was 600 officers and men.

After being taken over for war purposes, she participated in the famous Spitsbergen raid, evacuation of women and children from Greece and evacuation of 200 French from Russia, where they had been in camps early in the war.

war veteran who was an American observer with the British army in Egypt in 1941.

Col. Russel G. Ayers commands the 106th infantry.

Altho the specific islands under assault were not named, troops probably went ashore at two or more points.

The fact that our battleships penetrated so far west into Japanese waters and moved close ashore for the bombardment would have been considered exceedingly daring were it not for the even more daring Truk attack, announced yesterday as having "commenced" Wednesday.

Truk Battle Rages: Tokio.

In the absence of any word to the contrary, it was presumed that the thrust at Truk, Japan's biggest mid-Pacific stronghold, still was in progress.

Altho complete silence has prevailed at fleet headquarters concerning the attack on Truk, the Tokio radio broadcast the unconfirmed report that "powerful mechanized units, as well as air power," were engaged there and that ground fighting was in progress.

The Tokio broadcast gave the impression that the operation had not terminated, for it said there had been repeated air attacks "since the morning of Feb. 17." However, it said the assault "is not the real thing" and "seems not to go beyond the scope of a strong reconnaissance."

There was no explanation from any other source to support the implication that American forces had landed on the atoll. However, Japanese broadcasts in the past have hinted prematurely at American landings, perhaps with the purpose of claiming they had been defeated in the event they did not develop.

Fleet Not in Fight, Say Japs.

The Japanese fleet had not reacted to the attack, Tokio said, but was "biding its time until the very end," looking "for the golden opportunity to destroy the enemy at one stroke" when the American forces become burdened by supply difficulties.

The Chungking radio quoted the Japanese radio as announcing that "strong motorized Japanese forces and Japanese troops are involved in fierce and continuing action opposing American forces which landed on Truk."

President Roosevelt said he lacked details of the action and could not confirm the Tokio report that American forces had landed in the atoll, 3,500 miles southwest of Pearl Harbor.

Sees Major Victory.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18 (AP).—The navy's official spokesman expressed the opinion today that American forces are scoring a major victory in the attack on Truk, major Japanese naval base in the Pacific.

"I think this attack was a victory, the full proportions of which will not be known until the need for radio silence is over," he said, but added that he had no information to indicate that the operation has been completed.

Asked about Japanese radio reports that landings have been attempted at the heavily fortified base, he replied: "This was an air strike by carrier based planes."

MARINE AT HOME AFTER 18 MONTHS IN PACIFIC AREA

Pvt. Robert J. Hawkins.

Pvt. Robert J. Hawkins, 23, who was an apprentice printer in The Tribune composing room for two years before he enlisted in the marines Jan. 7, 1942, returned for a visit last night. "THE TRIBUNE sure looks good after New Georgia Island," he told the printers. Hawkins, who is visiting his mother, Mrs. Hazel Hawkins, 947 N. Laramie av., was in the Pacific area for 18 months. He wears a Presidential citation ribbon awarded to members of the 1st marine air wing. He went ashore with a headquarters outfit after the heaviest fighting was over on New Georgia Island, he said.

MARION CLAIRE IN 'LA BOHEME' ON AIR TONIGHT

W-G-N Opera Series at High Point.

The broadcast of "La Boheme" on the Chicago Theater of the Air from Medinah temple tonight will be one of the most significant in the W-G-N series' four-year history—and one of unusual interest to opera goers. It was in "La Boheme," the tragic story of a little seamstress and her poet-lover set in the 19th century Latin Quarter of Paris, that Marion Claire, soprano prima donna of the Theater of the Air, made her operatic debut. Her first grand opera role, that of Mimi, the seamstress, was sung with an Italian opera company near Venice.

Costume a Model.

Miss Claire's costume for tonight holds special interest, too. She will wear the "Mlle. Mimi" gown originally created for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's 4th annual American fashions competition last fall.

Tonight's program will be broadcast over W-G-N, WGNB, and the Mutual network from 8 to 9 o'clock. Richard Tucker, tenor, will sing the part of Rudolph, the poet; Virginia Sellers, soprano, will sing Musette, and Bruce Foote, baritone, Marcel. Henry Weber will direct the W-G-N orchestra and chorus.

4,000 in Theater.

More than 4,000 persons will be guests at Medinah temple. Doors will open at 7:15 p. m.

The dramatic cast will include Laurette Fillbrandt, Mimi; Olan Soule, Rudolph; Elmira Roessler, Musette; Marvin Mueller, Marcel; Norman Gottschalk, Colline; Cliff Soubier, Alcindoro. John Barclay is narrator; John Holbrook, announcer; Jack La Frandre, director.

Nazis Report Naval Units Clash Off Northwest Italy

LONDON, Feb. 18 (AP).—A German propaganda agency broadcast recorded by the Associated Press today asserted one allied ship was sunk and another set afire in a clash last night between light German naval forces and British gunboats 14 miles north of Piombino off the Italian northwest coast.

ENIWETOK ATOLL HAS GOOD SEA BASES, AT LEAST ONE AIR FIELD

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., PEARL HARBOR, Feb. 18 (AP).—Eniwetok, invaded by American marine and army forces Thursday, is a nearly-circular atoll in the Marshall Islands. It is 21 miles from the northern to southern sides, and 17 miles across.

Of about 30 islets, Engebi, to the north; Eniwetok, on the southeast tip, and Parry Islet, just north of Eniwetok, are the most important.

It is a typical atoll; nowhere does the land rise more than 25 feet above sea level.

Engebi contains several buildings, a radio station and a landing strip. Parry also is suitable for an air field, but it is not known whether the Japanese ever built one. Eniwetok has an excellent harbor with a wide pass into the lagoon. Another deep pass is on the southeast, adjoining Parry Island. It can accommodate any vessel. The best anchorage is off Eniwetok Islet. There is a pier on the lagoon side of Parry, and anchorages off Mui, Igurin and Engebi Islands.

Various locations on the atoll have been reported as seaplane bases.

YANKEE FLYERS SET UP BLOW AT JAPS FROM CHINA

HDQ. 14TH U. S. AIR FORCE IN CHINA, Feb. 18 (AP).—Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault today said the 14th army air force is laying the groundwork for collaboration with Adm. Chester W. Nimitz in cracking Japan's Pacific defenses and carrying on the war from China.

He made the statement as news of the American attack on Japan's great base of Truk aroused intense jubilation here and in Chungking. The boldness of the assault was taken as an indication that Nimitz' plan to drive across the Pacific to land ground and air forces on the China coast was well underway.

More and more confident predictions are heard in China that a Chinese counter-offensive may be attempted and that Hankow may be retaken this fall.

BURYING OF JAP DEAD PRESENTS A BIG PROBLEM

BY HAROLD SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

KWAJALEIN ISLAND, Feb. 8 [Delayed].—Mass death which descends on the Japs in these tight little islands poses its problems for the conqueror.

An early task after each island battle has been the disposal of the enemy victims. Tropical heat and intense overcrowding make speed imperative. Medical officers, concerned over sanitation problems, rush the burials.

Our own dead are usually taken at once to the rear by corpsmen. Burial follows soon.

Takes Several Days

Disposition of the enemy dead is more difficult. The job is too big for eas, handling. It takes several days after the carnage ceases.

Details are too gruesome to print, inasmuch as large numbers of the enemy died below ground, killed by demolition charges and grenades. At Kwajalein more than half the Japs were killed by bomb, shell, or demolition bursts, it is estimated.

Often an accurate count of enemy dead is impossible. Even a close approximate tally is difficult at times. Probably 2,500 Japs were killed on Kwajalein Island and 2,500 more on Roi and Namur.

Unlike our fighters, the Japs don't customarily wear individual identification tags, so it is impossible to keep personal records to pass on to the enemy government. Usually, the only tag found on the Japs is one giving his outfit's identification. Consequently, the enemy dead are buried in a common grave with a single marker.

Never Used to It.

Graves registration units do the burying. Details collect the corpses at central points. A scouting detail makes a last search of the terrain.

A member of the detail watched this correspondent in unashamed distress as his fellows toiled. "They say you get used to it after a while," he said. "You never do."

Until the detail finishes its work, no spot on the island is free from the odor of the dead. Altho a chemical spray is used the results are more hoped for than real.

STRIKE TIES UP MONTREAL CAR AND BUS LINES

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 18 (AP).—Officials of the Montreal Tramways company announced tonight that "a complete strike" of operating personnel of the city's street car and bus lines had resulted from a work stoppage that started among street car operators this afternoon. The walkout was said to have started when Canadian Congress of Labor members refused to board cars operated by members of an American Federation of Labor affiliate.

Officials of the CCL said the walkout did not have their sanction and that they were trying to get the men back to work. Company officials said that no question of wages or working conditions was involved.

This was Montreal's second street car and bus strike within a year. The first one, last March, lasted for 60 hours and brought recognition of the CCL as bargaining agent. Strikes and lockouts in public services were made illegal in legislation passed two weeks ago which provides fines of up to $1,000 for those leading a work stoppage and a fine up to $100 for those participating.

ALLIES FOIL JAP DRIVE TO SLASH LINES IN BURMA

CALCUTTA, India, Feb. 18 (AP).—The 7th Indian division, which for two weeks has been almost cut off from its supply base in Burma, received assistance today.

A fresh column of British troops was thrown into the "battle for Ngakyedauk pass," where the 7th has been fighting on all sides against the Japanese. More than 1,000 of the enemy have been killed in attempting to close the allied supply road thru that Mayu mountain ridge gap on the Arakan front.

An East Asia command bulletin issued in New Delhi said allied forces were making steady progress on all sectors of the Arakan front.

Dispatches from northern Burma said Chinese troops of Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's command, winners of 27 of 30 actions during the past 3½ months, out-maneuvered the enemy in the jungle eight miles south of Taipha Ge to occupy a village in western Hukawng valley. Another settlement north of Taipha Ga was also captured.

American bombers attacked troop and supply concentrations in the Kamaing, Walawbum, Lonkin and Myitkyina areas in central and western Burma.

'NAVY MOTHER' LAUDS TRAINING AT GREAT LAKES

Mrs. Nellie Twele of Baltimore, Md., the "navy mother of 1944" told other mothers of navy men last night that they can be assured that their sons are receiving excellent care and good food. She spoke on the radio program "Meet Your Navy" after a week's inspection of the Great Lakes naval training station.

"If you could have tasted the navy food the boys have been eating, if you could have seen the intensive and complete course of training being given, I think you'd feel as completely assured as I am that nothing is being overlooked in taking care of them and teaching them to protect themselves and their shipmates while fighting for their country," she said.

Mrs. Twele said she didn't deserve congratulations because her husband and four sons are in the navy and two sons are in the army. "One of my boys is now missing in action after being shot down over Germany, but I know hundreds of mothers now listening have lost one, two, three, four, and five sons beyond recall," she said.

YANK ENDS DOZE; GIVES KING AND QUEEN BIG HELLO

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 18.—Staff Sgt. Wilbur Banik, 616 W. 70th st., Chicago, was sleeping soundly in the American Red Cross Mostyn club and had just settled down comfortably on his cot when a soldier tapped him on the shoulder and told him King George and Queen Elizabeth were coming into the room.

Sgt. Wilbur Banik.

"I didn't believe him and just rolled over and went back to sleep," Wilbur told a Tribune correspondent, "but the next minute, sure enough, they were standing in the door. I looked up, jumped out of bed and said 'hello' as the king and queen walked in smiling."

Wilbur, fully clad except for his coat and his shoes, posed for photographs shaking hands with the king before the pair departed.

Thru THE TRIBUNE he sent a message to his parents in Chicago saying: "I think I'm the luckiest guy in the army. Tell mother I'll be home pretty soon as we will soon have this business finished."

4TH TERM BOOM BY BRITAIN STIRS PROBE DEMAND

Congress Asked to Scan Army Propaganda.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—A demand for an immediate congressional investigation of political propaganda being distributed among American soldiers abroad was voiced in the house today by Rep. Brown [R., O.] on the heels of the disclosure that the British cabinet is booming President Roosevelt's fourth term drive.

Rep. Brown.

Brown asked that a bipartisan committee be appointed to investigate printed matter given soliders. His request was given impetus by congressional indignation over THE TRIBUNE'S disclosure that an official welcome, which American soldiers receive on their arrival in England, falsely asserted that 50 million dollars is being amassed by capitalists to defeat Mr. Roosevelt.

The welcome greeting informed the soldiers that the President is physically fit for a fourth term and that organized labor, with the exception of John L. Lewis, is solidly behind the chief executive. It was felt here that Lewis' name was mentioned because he is reported to have incurred the animosity of service men for his part in the coal strike.

Charges False Picture.

Brown did not mention the publication, which was issued by the British ministry of information run by Brendan Bracken, intimate of Prime Minister Churchill, but he made it clear to newspaper men that his action was inspired by the articles in it. He explained that he could not call for an investigation of a British publication in the American congress.

"Soldiers are not getting a true picture of events at home," Brown said. "When the soldier vote bill was before congress OWI carried Mr. Roosevelt's position fully, but did not present the answer of House Minority Leader Martin."

The President asked congress to stand up and be counted. Martin [R., Mass.] had the Republicans stand up and be counted twice, each time to defeat the administration's bob-tailed federal ballot.

New Evidence Arrives.

As Brown spoke in the house additional evidence of British political activity to boom the fourth term and smear members of congress opposed to British leadership reached the capital today. It included an air mail clipping of the London Daily Mail containing the New York column of Don Iddon.

One item advised the British not to interfere openly in American politics. This read:

"If we want Roosevelt to carry on in the White House we should shun all advice giving to the American electorate. You have no idea how sensitive the people are."

Jibe at Sen. Chandler.

Another item lashed at Sen. Chandler [D., Ky.], one of the five senators who made an around the world tour of American installations and came back to warn the nation of the pitfalls of internationalism.

"Sen. Albert Chandler of Kentucky says: 'We have been waiting a long time for Lord Louis Mountbatten to begin that promised Burma offensive.' Not so long as we have been waiting for Chandler to make a speech that makes sense. The senator's nickname is 'Happy.' Perhaps it should be 'Slaphappy.'"

Demands Proof of Fund.

Among the first to comment on the war ministry's publication was Rep. Shafer [R., Mich.], who said:

"Brendan Bracken should be made to prove his charge that the New Deal opposition is preparing to spend 50 million dollars. The article in question is most outrageous political propaganda, particularly because it is foisted on American troops under the guise of hospitality."

Other comment included:

Rep. Halleck [R., Ind.], chairman of the Republican congressional campaign committee—It is a very obvious attempt on the part of the British to align themselves with President Roosevelt's administration in propaganda among soldiers.

Rep. Johnson [R., Ill.]—There is now no doubt that there is a determined and deliberate attempt on the part of the administration to corral the soldier vote. They will go to any extreme.

Sen. Butler [R., Neb.]—I am not surprised. The New Deal will use any method and means to perpetuate itself.

Two Chicagoans Sketched in the South Pacific

Pvt. Donald Lux (left) and Pvt. Bernie Dick as seen by Gary Sheahan, Tribune artist.

Both Paratroopers

Two Chicago paratroopers on duty in the Southwest Pacific are the subjects of today's sketches by Gary Sheahan, Chicago Tribune staff artist on assignment in the Pacific area. They are Privates Donald Lux and Bernie Dick.

Pvt. Lux, 20, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Lux of 11204 Vernon av. He was in his freshman year at St. Norbert college, West DePere, Wis., when he entered the army last March. In his high school days, Pvt. Lux used to work at the Chicago Steel & Wire Co. during summer vacations.

Pvt. Dick, 19, is the son of Mrs. Eva Kovarsky, 3921 Lexington st. After graduation from Austin High school in 1941, Dick was employed by the Commonwealth Edison company before going into service March 13, 1943. He married Mary Lou Sitter of the Austin High school class of 1942 on Jan. 30, 1943. She makes her home with Mrs. Kovarsky. Dick went overseas last October.

REPORT NAVY PLANE LOST WITH 14; ONE FROM HIGHLAND PARK

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18 (AP).—A military plane carrying 14 persons is overdue and presumed to have crashed at sea en route from the Pacific northwest to Seattle, Wash., the navy announced today. Searching planes, the navy said, have sighted wreckage and a floating life raft. Among those aboard were: Lt. [j. g.] Francis G. Grosse; wife, Mrs. Dorothy L. Grosse, 326 N. St. Johns av., Highland Park, Ill.; and Raymond S. Griffith; wife, Mrs. Evadna R. Griffith, Municipal airport, Burlington, Ia.

HAD RECENT LEAVE.

Lt. Grosse, 25, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Grosse Sr. of 253 Franklin rd., Glencoe. His wife, Dorothy, a telephone company supervisor in Highland Park, lives with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Larson, at 326 N. St. Johns av., Highland Park. He attended New Trier High school, Winnetka, and is a graduate of the University of Illinois. He completed a leave at home Feb. 10.

NAZIS PREDICT 2 INVASIONS IN FRANCE AT ONCE

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The Berlin radio indicated in two Thursday broadcast that the Germans were studying the possibility the allies might invade France simultaneously from the bay of Biscay and the Mediterranean. Field Marshal Rommel recently inspected fortifications at the gulf of Lion, along the Pyrenees, and the Atlantic coast at the bay of Biscay, one broadcast said.

BOMBER DIVES INTO BARRACKS; 11 DEAD, 23 HURT

San Diego, Cal., Feb. 18 (AP).—Engine failure was advanced today as a possible cause of the flaming crash of a Consolidated patrol bomber into navy barracks on the Coronado strand last night, causing 11 deaths and injuries to 23 other service men.

Ensign Charles Schumacher, 22, a navigator, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Schumacher, Elgin, Ill., was among those killed. Ensign L. T. Larson, Eau Claire, Wis., was one of the injured.

Five Killed in Crash.

Muroc, Cal., Feb. 18 (AP).—Five men were killed last night in the crash of a Liberator bomber shortly after it took off on a training flight, army air base officials announced today. The dead included 2d Lt. George C. Worthley, Oak Park, Ill., and Sgt. Hugh B. Ellis, Detroit, Mich.

Plane Missing; 8 Aboard.

Chicopee, Mass., Feb. 18 (AP).—Army authorities at Westover field today said a bomber which took off from the air base yesterday was missing. There were eight men aboard, including Sgt. Kenneth M. Jones, Milwaukee, Wis.

LONDON BOMBED HEAVILY; STARTS WAVE OF FIRES

Westminster Hall Hit in Recent Raid.

LONDON, Feb. 19 [Saturday]—(AP).—The German air force early today made one of its most determined attacks against the London area since 1940-'41, dumping tons of high explosives and incendiaries that set fires raging in a great ring along the horizon. It was announced also that in a recent raid, German bombs had showered on the heart of London causing a fire in Westminster hall, court building first erected in 1097.

Three waves of heavy and medium bombers today swept thru a barrage of anti-aircraft fire which guards called the heaviest ever thrown up against enemy raiders. Once over the city the Nazis broke formation and darted thru the inner concentrations of flak to shower bombs on half a dozen districts.

Apartment Block Hit.

In one section high explosives hit a block of apartments, a church and an unused hospital, where the caretakers were believed buried in the wreckage.

In another section bombs flattened a number of houses and rescue workers began digging in the debris for dead and injured.

In the recent raid, fire bombs showered around the house of parliament, but altho a blaze broke out in Westminster hall, the historic government buildings had an "amazing escape."

Sweeping low over Parliament square, a German bomber in a recent raid strewed incendiaries over the area which had gone undamaged since the aerial attacks of 1941. One started the fire in Westminster hall, adjoining parliament, and others burned to piles of white ashes, dotting Cromwell Green and the new palace yard between parliament and Westminster abbey.

Crashed Thru Roof.

A bomb crashed thru the high arched lead roof of the grand committee room of Westminster hall and lodged between the roof and the oak paneled ceiling. It was removed quickly, but flames were discovered later, spreading in the woodwork. The blaze was extinguished. Another bomb caused minor damage to the northwest corner of the hall.

SOLDIER VOTE BILL CONFEREES ARE DEADLOCKED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—Senate-house conferees considering the soldier vote bill ended their deliberations for this week today still hopelessly deadlocked.

Senate conferees, bound by senate action to support a federal ballot bill, appeared no nearer to agreement with the house delegation's insistence on a state controled procedure for the soldier vote.

The adjournment today was made over the protest of Rep. Rankin [D., Miss.] staunch advocate of the state ballot. Rankin has insisted on going ahead with the work in an attempt to provide a method of voting for men overseas.

Charges New Deal Blocks Bill.

Meanwhile Rep. Vursell [R., Ill.], not a conferee, but a leading figure in the house debate which resulted in the state voting plan, charged that the administration is blocking the soldier vote thru its own stubborness.

"The administration and administration leaders in the senate, in an attempt to force thru the federal bob-tailed ballot, have held up soldier vote legislation too long now," Vursell said in a statement. "These leaders should stop blocking this legislation and agree with house conferees to the state plan for giving the soldier the complete ballot so that it may be passed in both houses at once, affording many state legislatures an opportunity to convene and shape their laws to such federal legislation."

Avowed reason for today's adjournment of the conference committee was to allow members to study a new proposal advanced by Sen. Green [D., R. I.], federal ballot backer and administration spokesman. Examination of the new bill shows it to be not greatly different from the federal ballot proposal which the senate tacked on the house state ballot plan 10 days ago. Principal difference is that it includes some of the recommendations for state legislative action which the house bill made.

A Complicated Proposal.

The Green proposal is so complicated that seven different type faces were needed in printing the plan to show the various amendments, adaptations, and changes which the language contemplates.

Of his new bill, Green said, "In general it retains all of the recommendations in the Eastland-Rankin bill for state action. It also includes provisions of both the Eastland-Rankin bill and the Green-Lucas bill which are aimed at facilitating voting under state absentee balloting laws. It seeks to provide a federal procedure for absentee balloting as a supplement to state absentee balloting procedures to be used in those instances where an individual does not receive a ballot under state law."

There is no indication that house members of the conference committee will weaken their position by accepting any form of federal ballot, supplemental or otherwise.

G.O.P. LEADERS ASSAIL BRITISH 4TH TERM DRIVE

Fourth term propaganda being handed to American soldiers arriving in the British Isles, sponsored by the British ministry of information, was condemned by Republican leaders yesterday as grave abuse of our aid to England.

"Since 1776 the British have had no business interfering in our politics," said Werner Schroeder, Republican national committeeman for Illinois. "So far as the Republican party is concerned the Declaration of Independence stands."

John T. Dempsey, G. O. P. chairman for Cook county, declared that Americans are capable of disposing of the fourth term problem without British interference.

[Acme Photo.]

The former Anne Bullitt, whose marriage to Philadelphian was announced yesterday.

Fort George G. Meade, Md., Feb. 18 (AP).—Anne Bullitt, daughter of William C. Bullitt, former ambassador to France and Russia, was on a three day honeymoon tonight with her new husband, Staff Sgt. Casper W. B. Townsend Jr. A quiet wedding ceremony was performed yesterday in the post chapel by Army Chaplain Charles E. Kennedy.

Sgt. Townsend, a graduate of Yale university, is attached to a post service unit. His home is in Merion, Pa.

Mrs. Townsend's engagement to Lt. Daniel Baugh Brewster Jr., U. S. M. C., of Brooklandville, Md., was announced Oct. 13, 1943, by her father.

In Philadelphia, the bridegroom's father, Atty. Caspar W. B. Townsend Sr., said his son introduced Miss Bullitt to the family during the Christmas holidays. The Townsend family has been prominent socially in Philadelphia for years.

PLAN OF ESCAPE SET! DYESS BAND AWAITS BIG DAY

Stores Hidden in Jungle Under Noses of Japs.

Preparations for the escape which was to free him and his comrades from Jap bondage are told today in the 21st instalment of the late Lt. Col. W. E. Dyess' story of his life as a Jap prisoner. Col. Dyess was killed in an airplane crash last Dec. 22 after his return to this country.

BY LT. COL. W. E. DYESS,
United States Army Air Forces,
As told to CHARLES LEAVELLE.
[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Thoughts of escape from the Japs were by no means new to me or any other prisoners. We had entertained them at O'Donnell and Cabanatuan camps, on the prison ship, and here at Davao. The odds always had been hopeless.

But now, I was ready to try to make up a party.

It was a night in February, 1943, that I sat down on a bunk in the rear of the barracks beside a United States marine captain we called "Shifty." We were well removed from the others in the long, bleak room.

We talked more than an hour and decided to sleep on it.

It still looked good the next night and we decided to give it a try even if we lost our lives. We discussed the men about us as possible companions. Shifty suggested two marine officers, Mike and Jack, whom I knew to be fearless, resourceful, dependable, and in fair physical condition. Jack, a Naval academy graduate, remembered something of his navigation and spoke Spanish as well. Mike was powerfully built and a bull for work.

Identity of Plotters Shielded.

I mentioned Lt. [now Capt.] Sam Grashio and Leo. Sam had worked in the kitchen during my malaria and had slipped extra food to me. He had given up the job, however, because he hated the Japs so much he could no longer trust himself in a spot where butcher knives were at hand. Leo was one of the finest airplane engineers and motor experts I have ever known. He was employed in the machine shop.

[Editor's note: Col. Dyess employed only given names where there was uncertainty that the men had reached the continental United States. The following have since returned: Mike, Maj. Michiel Doberwitch; Jack, Maj. Jack Hawkins, and Shifty, Maj. Austin C. Shofner.]

The next day, while Shifty was feeling out the marines, I walked up to Sam and asked him if he'd like to go over the hill with me. He replied at once:

"When do we go? Right now? Sure!"

Leo and I had talked about escape many times, but the difficulties of equipment and assembling the right sort of party always were too great. Leo was one of the men who had escaped Cabcaben field, but had failed to reach Australia.

Six Meet in Conference.

I told him I thought the time now was right. He said heartily that he still was all for it. We talked it over at length, and Leo said he could make fishhooks, knives, and other jungle equipment. I saw Shifty soon afterward. He reported Mike and Jack were rarin' to go. That night the six of us met in the darkness behind the barracks.

We agreed to begin active preparations the next day, holding out bits of food at meal time and secreting any weapons or tools we could find. There was quite a list of things we would need before launching our effort.

These included food, leggings as a protection against insects and scratches from thorns and undergrowth, quinine for malaria, antiseptics and other medicines for treating scratches to head off tropical ulcers, shoes, blankets or shelter tent halves, mosquito bars, matches, small knives or daggers and bolo knives for hacking our way thru the growth, a watch, compass, sextant, and—by no means least—money.

Expert Navigator Needed.

All were vital. And we had only clothes, shoes, and blankets. After several more of our nightly talks, we concluded we would need an expert navigator, as we envisioned a long voyage in a boat of some sort and Jack didn't think he remembered enough navigation for such an undertaking.

We talked over the available naval personnel and eventually agreed upon Lt. Comdr. [now Comdr.] M. H. McCoy. He had been captured on Corregidor, and I had first met him at Cabanatuan prison camp. When Shifty propositioned him, McCoy was enthusiastic, but said he would have to bring along three men associated with him on the coffee picking detail, which McCoy directed.

These were Maj. Stephen M. Mellnik of the coast artillery, and two army enlisted men, Paul and Bob. McCoy and his men were able to make a real contribution. Their coffee plantation was near the poultry farm and they began swiping chickens, which we traded for such nonperishable food as tinned or dried fish, hard biscuits, and other items.

Crude Sextant Fashioned.

Leo meanwhile was busy. He held out some of the bolos that came his way, cutting them down to dagger size, or preserving them intact. His crowning achievement was fashioning a crude sextant that actually worked.

We stole a watch and compass from the Japs, but we didn't feel bad about the watch, for it once had belonged to an American soldier. We picked up the maps here and there.

And during the weeks these details were being arranged we got two Filipino recruits, Ben and Victor. Sam enlisted Ben, who recommended Victor because of his knowledge of jungle craft.

It should be made clear that each time an intimation of our plan was imparted to an outsider we ran a terrible risk. One did not have to escape or even attempt to escape to bring down upon himself and comrades the most appalling of punishments.

Keep Plans from Others.

After Ben and Victor had been admitted to the plot, we decided they would be the last. We told no one our plans.

This was partially for their own protection. If, after the escape, the Japs should suspect any remaining prisoner of having advance knowledge of it, that individual's head would be as good as rolling in the sand.

We also determined to kill no Japs in our escape, for this would bring reprisals upon the entire camp. We therefore had to lay our plans much more carefully.

There were two courses: [1] to escape from the compound at night, and this would be virtually impossible, or [2] to break away from a detail, but this might entail knocking out a guard and also would cause reprisals.

We decided we would have to figure some other way; something involving a slip-away. We did, later.

Equipment Vital Problem.

The ides of March came and passed. With the exception of a few trifles and extras, we had all our equipment. There was only the problem of caching it at the spot in the jungle from which we intended to take off, but what a problem!

Some of the things were in the possession of individual men. Others were at the appointed place. But the bulk of the stuff was on the opposite side of the camp.

As the time drew near, we knew we must act. That is where the bull cart and friendly guards came in. I had been hauling poles for fences. A few days later, during the noon hour ebb, I drove to the coffee detail where Mellnik, McCoy, Paul, and Bob had prepared a load of poles similar to those I had been transporting. This was near the jungle edge where our supplies lay.

We put the supplies into the bed of the cart and laid the poles over them. Mellnik sat atop the load, supposedly to make certain no poles fell off. I walked, driving the bulls.

Supplies Carried Past Japs.

I followed a feeder road leading into a secondary road which cut directly across the middle of the camp to the place where the fence detail had been working at the fringe of the jungle. All along the way we met Jap guards, but they either paid no attention or grunted a greeting. We passed beneath tower watchers and in front of machine gun emplacements.

I was on pins and needles, not because we were doing anything unusual, but because the individual Jap is unpredictable. We were sure all was well, but you can never tell when you're dealing with Japs.

We were dismayed to find a Jap guard posted just a few yards up the road from our destination. I didn't know him. He turned and looked at us. Well, there was nothing to do but start unloading. Any funny business then would have been fatal. We began hauling the poles off the cart. The Jap watched a minute, then turned his head.

The poles came off on his side and the supplies went off on the opposite side and into the tall jungle grass. They would get soaking wet, for the rains were coming down every day, but that couldn't be helped.

Sunday Selected for Escape.

That night, as we Americans shook hands in the darkness behind the barracks, we felt the worst was over. We felt it now was time to set a date and complete our plans.

Most of us felt that a Sunday would be the time, because there would be only a few details sent out and vigilance would be relaxed. Sunday details usually performed minor tasks near the barricades and no Jap guards went along. There was a shortage of them, and this was their day of rest.

On Saturday night, March 27, 1943, we were ready and determined to make our break the next day. Somehow, however, I felt something was wrong, I couldn't say what. I just didn't believe we were going. I felt that something would happen. That's how psychic you get in a prison camp. We didn't go. The Japs ordered all hands out—with guards—to plant rice.

We were delayed a week, but we used that week well. We observed the tower guards and the patrol. We timed our movements. We measured distances. And at midweek we learned the attempt would have to be made the following Sunday or not at all.

For reenforcements were coming. There would be guards on Sundays as well as other days. Sunday, April 4, would be the last day prisoners would go outside alone. It was time for final plans.

Prisoners After Bataan's Fall

Corp. G. L. Anderson. | Sgt. J. W. Griffin. | Lt. W. J. Tooley.

Corp. George L. Anderson, 26, turned away from his studies for the ministry at St. Olaf college, Northfield, Minn., when he enlisted in the medical corps in September, 1941.

Previous to the fall of Corregidor, Corp. Anderson was attached to the adjutant general's office in Manila. He is now in Philippines Prison camp No. 1. His home is at 2304 Sherman av., Evanston.

His father, the Rev. L. O. Anderson, is pastor of Trinity Lutheran church in Evanston. The parents received three postcards from their son last December. In one he revealed that his life long friend, Donald Nelson, of 41 E. Walton st., is a fellow captive whom he sees every day.

Sgt. James W. Griffin, 28, the son of Judge and Mrs. John J. Griffin, 6733 Bosworth av., was a detective attached to the Summerdale police station when he volunteered for the army in 1940. He went overseas with the 192d tank battalion.

On Dec. 16, 1943, the federal communications commission notified Judge Griffin that his son had spoken on a short wave broadcast originating either in the Philippines or Japan. Two brothers, Lt. Robert E., and Lt. [j. g.] Edward J. Griffin, are also in the service.

"It is time we were getting aid to the prisoners on Bataan," Judge Griffin remarked yesterday. "The Southwest Pacific field should be enlarged immediately."

Lt. William J. Tooley, 26, of 505 N. Michigan av., went with the 31st infantry to the Philippine Islands in May of 1941, and was promoted from second lieutenant while in action. He is now interned in Philippines Prison camp No. 1.

The son of Frank A. Tooley, president of the Atlas Calculating Service at 25 E. Jackson blvd., Lt. Tooley turned down an appointment to West Point in favor of a four year scholarship in St. Thomas college in St. Paul, from which he was graduated in 1933.

When he was called to active duty in October, 1940, he was the commandant at the House of Divine Lord, Monroe, Mich. His father received three postcards from Lt. Tooley in December.

FOR FORT CREW, BAILING OUT HAS ITS EXPERIENCES

AN AMERICAN BOMBER BASE IN BRITAIN, Feb. 18 (AP).—Hundreds of airmen have parachuted from their planes, but it is doubtful that any crew had such cock eyed experiences as the 10 men on the Flying Fortress "Skippy" who bailed out when their plane caught fire over England recently.

One gunner was knocked cold when he hit the ground and woke up in the arms of an English girl who kissed him—he thought he was "in heaven."

Another landed in the middle of a railroad track in front of a speeding train. The co-pilot plopped down atop a warehouse and wound up drinking sherry with an R. A. F. air vice marshal, while the ball turret gunner dropped in a marsh 500 feet from the sea and sank up to his ears in muck.

Dangles from Roof Edge.

Lt. Leo M. Haynes of Spokane, Wash., the navigator, was left dangling helplessly over the edge of the roof of a three story house when his chute caught on a chimney. Two Englishmen helped free him.

Sgt. S. A. Depietro of Schenectady, N. Y., fell into a lake and got tangled in his parachute harness. He thought he was drowning when he discovered he was standing on the bottom. All he had to do was wade out.

The top turret gunner, Sgt. Otto B. Fugett of Orange, Tex., landed on a jagged ledge and tumbled 150 feet into a stone quarry, but escaped with only slightly sprained ankles.

"It was the craziest thing that ever happend to me—nice too," said Sgt. Bernard E. Jensen of North Hollywood, Cal., the tail gunner who was kissed back to consciousness by a trim young woman he had never seen before.

Sgt. Albert J. Selvidio of Norwich, Conn., a radio operator-gunner, was picking himself off a railroad track when a train came around the bend. He jumped off the tracks and scooted up a ladder provided by two Englishmen who later argued over whose place it was to take him for tea.

Last Two Out Unhurt.

After floating down dangerously close to a big harbor where every one is suspicious of parachutists, the co-pilot, Lt. Paul R. Cooper of Emporium, Pa., was taken aboard a warship and later was invited to an R. A. F. base as the guest of an air vice marshal.

But for a regiment of British soldiers on maneuvers nearby, Sgt. Joseph M. Collector of Norfolk, Va., still might be trying to dig himself out of the mud.

Lt. Walter C. Lunden Jr. of Tampa, Fla., was the hard luck guy of the outfit. He suffered a fractured leg when he landed in the middle of a paved highway.

The last two men out of the plane landed without incident. They are the pilot, Lt. Thomas J. Sutters of Astoria, N. Y., who tried to get the blazing bomber over the sea before crashing, and Sgt. Ernest Pieffer of Lebanon, Pa., the waist gunner who held the escape door open for the others. The plane finally crashed on the edge of a seaside town 100 yards short of the ocean.

YANKEE FLYERS 'BOMB' RABAUL WITH BOTTLES

HDQ. 13TH U. S. AIR FORCE IN SOLOMON ISLANDS, Feb. 18 (AP).—The crew of an army Liberator sent to heckle Rabaul one night this week used bottles to keep the Japanese awake. The falling bottles made whistling sounds like bombs.

The bomber dropped a few real bombs on its first run on Rabaul's Lakunai airdrome, while two crewmen tossed 20 bottles. The plane was caught by searchlights, but escaped anti-aircraft fire to make another bomb and bottle run over the town of Rabaul. Then it raided the Malaguna seaplane base and Semphon harbor with bombs and bottles.

Members of the bomber crew included Sgt. Charles R. Besfole of 2143 N. Mozart st., Chicago, and Tech. Sgt. William J. Prosser, Gary, Ind.

BATAAN HORRORS CITED BY JUDGE IN JAP'S HEARING

In a case involving a Japanese, Judge Michael Tremko in Racine Avenue court yesterday contrasted the treatment accorded Japanese aliens in this country with the tortures inflicted on American prisoners in the Philippines as told by the late Lt. Col. W. E. Dyess in his story published in THE TRIBUNE.

The defendant, Matsui Schuji, 49, was charged with disorderly conduct Thursday after he slashed himself in a suicide attempt in the Zion day nursery, 1401 N. California av., where he was employed. A government agent testified that Schuji was brought here from California, where he was raised, and given a job.

Judge Tremko ordered a psychiatric examination for the prisoner.

UNIONS IN ITALY REVIVED BY AMG, ENROLL 300,000

Convene for First Time in Nearly 20 Years.

SALERNO, Italy, Feb. 18 (AP).—Liberated southern Italy's reborn trade unions sent delegates here today for a three day convention of the General Confederation of Labor, revived organization of Italian workers after nearly 20 years of suppression by fascism.

Concerned principally with labor's part in Italy's war stricken economy, the confederation is expected to discuss three major items: [1] a request that allied authorities help reopen idle factories, [2] adjustment of wages to the high living cost by raising pay and suppression of the black market, [3] organization of coöperatives for purchase and distribution of nonrationed food among workers.

Politics May Appear.

It is possible politics may creep in, since politics has always been part of the European labor setup. Leaders seem agreed to keep the confederation free from party affiliation to avoid the situation before Mussolini's march on Rome, when three federations were bidding for control of Italian workers.

Since workers slipped off the shackles of Mussolini's 10 state controled Fascist syndicates, more than 50 trades with enrollment of about 300,000 workers have been organized under encouragement of allied military government officials.

AFL, CIO Lend Help.

Unions are taking on the horizontal form of the American Federation of Labor and the vertical form of the Congress of Industrial Organizations which were asked to send representatives to aid in rebuilding trade unionism.

Perhaps the most important official is Secretary Gen. Enrico Russo, an exile from fascism, who was active in France in behalf of the Italian labor underground and during the Spanish Civil war helped to organize Spanish labor into military units to fight Franco.

On his return to Italy he was arrested and detained until the fall of Mussolini.

Labor Disputes Vanish.

In southern Italy, where workers are thinking in terms of food rather than money, there has been almost no labor trouble since the allied occupation. Disputes that may arise are mediated thru the labor office operated by Italians. They have assistance of AMG. These officials include Lt. Col. Thomas A. Lane of Washington, D. C., a former official in the United States department of labor; Maj. R. M. Fisher, formerly of the New York labor department; Capt. Lee G. Williams, former Texas unemployment compensation official, and Capt. Jeff Robertson, former Kansas labor commissioner.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18 (AP).—Appointment of Vice Adm. John W. Greenslade to the newly created office of Pacific coast coördinator of naval logistics was announced today by the navy. Creation of the new office was necessitated by the increasing "importance and magnitude of operations along the Pacific coast," the navy said.

UP IN THE FRONT LINES, ALL IS NOT GRIM OR TRAGIC

Yanks Later Laugh at Their Fears.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE 5TH ARMY IN ITALY, Feb. 17 [Delayed].—Days and nights on the front line are fraught with peril and breathless tension. But not everything that happens up here is entirely grim or tragic.

Some moments which seem the most frightening later become warm memories and bring laughter from the men who shared them. At lunch today units which had been fighting thru the hills toward Monte Cassino abbey recalled some unforgettable incidents of the past few days.

"I remember the night a German shell went clear thru our command post, in one wall and out another, and I thought it was the end of the world," said Maj. Burt Barr of Portland, Ore. I had no doubt after that explosion that I was finished and began to pray as hard as I could. Then I heard somebody yell, 'put out that blankety-blank light. What kind of a black-out is this when the light shines thru the wall'."

"What happened then?" he was asked.

Light Won't Go Out.

"We forgot about the blast and started wrestling with the little lamp," he said. "We blew our lungs out trying to put it out. I shook it, waved it thru the air and finally threw it across the room expecting any minute to hear more shells coming in because they could surely see the light a few hundred yards away. We never did succeed in putting it out. We had to put it under a shelter to half hide the light."

Barr also told of one night at the same place when he dropped off to sleep alone in a farm house room and then awakened suddenly to find a German soldier sitting against the wall in full battle dress including a stove bucket helmet. He said he feigned sleep for a quarter of an hour trying frantically to find his pistol while German conversation went on around him.

"I was certain we had been surprised and taken prisoner," the major said. "I was too sleepy to remember where I had hidden my gun. Lucky for him I didn't. We found out later he was only a prisoner being questioned."

There was Capt. Anderson Smith, of Barnesville, Ga., who said he would never forget his moment of triumph in capturing 11 Germans with only two rocks.

Cook Is Toast of Outfit.

The toast of the entire group was its cook, Pvt. Patrick Casey of Brooklyn. A slightly built chap whose equipment was shot away days ago, he continued to produce meals on a regular schedule on a small gasoline field stove. Using drab field rations he managed to produce delicious toasted cheese sandwiches, cups of coffee, chocolate, tea, and other warm dishes. His only complaint was that the enemy shelling shook the building a number of times and extinguished the frail flame, interfering with his work.

Another who drew praise for his efforts these last few days was Corp. Manian Thompson of Eau Claire, Wis., the unit's mail clerk. Ordinarily the mail was carried by mule pack into the hills. The animal was killed, forcing Thompson to lug the incoming mail inside his combat jacket into front positions and carry down outgoing letters the same way.

"I had to get the mail there somehow," Thompson explained. "They would rather have letters from home than food. It's what keeps them going."

ADMITS THEFT; GIVES UP LOOT VALUED AT $3,500

Glenn Barnard, 29, of 4540 Magnolia av., last night led Gresham police to a garage in the rear of 5153 N. Clark st., where they found loot of a value they estimated at $3,500. Barnard, police said, admitted stealing the articles found in the garage from the home of John C. Nevins, 345 Elder lane, Winnetka, last month. Police said the Nevins family is in Florida.

The loot included two suitcases filled with hammered silver articles, silver flatware, evening gowns, two sets of golf clubs, blankets, two radios, and a vacuum cleaner.

Barnard had been held for questioning because he was suspected of having received articles stolen by a gang of five youths arrested earlier by Gresham police.

Sgts. Martin O'Connell and William Hennesay of the Gresham police said Barnard is a former convict.

INJURED WHEN MACHINE BLOWS UP.

Archie Meyers, 17, of 3252 Prairie av., a Negro, suffered dislocation of a shoulder last night in the explosion of a sand blasting machine in the plant of Industrial Arts, Inc., at 660 W. Grand av.

TRAINING YANKS THRONG VILLAGE OF OLD ENGLAND

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AT AN AMERICAN INVASION TRAINING BASE SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Feb. 18.—Only in the country can a true perspective be obtained regarding the allied invasion forces now being assembled.

London is crowded and on a nonstop merry-go-round bubbling with excitement and false glamor, a town in which soldiers like to spend their furloughs. Only in the surroundings of what once was the quiet English countryside is the solid growth of the allied armies clearly evident.

After an overlong train journey today we piled out in a small town which 18 months ago probably seldom saw a soldier except on furlough. But today a civilian suit stood out awkwardly on the station platform against the background of American soldiers' olive drab.

Huge Division Area.

As we pushed thru the throng the middle western accents mingled with the softer southern drawls, nasal Yankee twangs, and New York's idiom. This is the center of a large area turned over to a single American division for training, but because the army overseas is expanding so rapidly many more divisions are now being assembled in the area. It still must be the largest area this American division ever had virtually for its own use.

The division training ground seems ideal for its purpose from every point of view. With the exception of a few under canvas, the men are living either in Nissen huts or requisitioned inns and lodges. Officers usually are quartered in some run down mansion house. There are enough towns in the bailiwick to take care of all the soldiers seeking movies, dancing, sparking, or tavern entertainment. One seaside club has an American Red Cross club in full swing.

"Fight" in Bombed Town.

There is enough rolling land everywhere to maneuver far more than one division, which gives every battalion a chance to vary its terrain and training problems. A village not far off has even produced a section suitable for training soldiers in street fighting. This includes a few blocks of the village which were hit by bombs during the blitz. Doughboys "fight" thru the streets, using a few explosives and booby traps to simulate actuality, altho they are forbidden to fire live ammunition for fear of hitting townspeople a few blocks away.

The troops can use live ammunition on the ranges for small arms, machine guns, and mortars. For artillery, the problem is more difficult. Cannoneers must go elsewhere to regular allied artillery ranges for practice firing.

Commander in Mansion.

The division commander said he is pleased with the entire setup. He seems to be satisfied also with the progress the unit is making, for the soldiers I saw today looked in first class shape. Nothing but perfection will suit this commander, however.

We found him today working in his office, a single cold room in a bare baronial hall turned over to the headquarters staff. This stately home in England cost its last tenant only about $140 a month rent. But it must have set the tenant back five or six times that much to keep up the formal gardens of the vast estate and to maintain a large staff of servants. Now only American soldiers walk where once was revelry.

War Stamp Queen

MISS LORETTA CORRADO.

CORPORATIONS PURCHASE 139% OF BOND QUOTA

Late reports yesterday increased by 11 per cent the amount of war bonds purchases credited to corporations thru Feb. 15, when corporation sales closed. The new total was $653,715,000 or 139 per cent of the Cook county quota of $469,858,600, Frank McNair, chairman, reported.

The new figures boosted the county's contribution in both individual and corporation purchases to $797,878,000, or 110 per cent of the $721,818,400 goal.

McNair reported the individual buying still lagging with a total of $144,073,000 worth of individual bonds sold up to Thursday night, or 57 per cent of the quota of $251,959,800. Only eight days remain in the drive for individual sales.

Miss Loretta Corrado, 5729 W. 63d st., was proclaimed Lindblom High school's queen yesterday. She was elected by war stamp purchasers at the school.

BRITAIN IS SAFE FROM REDS, SAYS CHICAGO CONSUL

There is not the faintest indication of Great Britain becoming a communist state after the war, Wilfred G. Gallienne, British consul general in Chicago, told a public forum sponsored by the De Paul University International Relations club at 64 E. Lake st. last night.

"Britain today is tending toward the left," he said, "but there is a tremendous difference between these socialist trends and what you call communism."

Discussing England's failure to grant sovereignty to India, Gallienne asserted that had Gandhi been given power it was his announced intention to dissolve the Indian army and send a peace mission to Japan.

"Had we given India her freedom under such warnings we would have been guilty of treachery to our allies," he said.

LONDON, Feb. 18 (AP).—Several hundred railway coaches have been converted into ambulances or modified for use as casualty evacuation trains as a part of the preparations by railways of Britain for the European invasion, it was disclosed today.

EDEN REJOINDER NOTES LIMITS IN ALLIED CHARTER

LONDON, Feb. 18 (AP).—Foreign Secretary Eden, in a written answer to a question in the house of commons, has declared the Atlantic Charter clause opposing territorial changes which are not in accord with the freely expressed wishes of the people concerned is a phrase not intended to be applied to enemy countries. The answer, in response to a question by Laborite Ivor Thomas, was disclosed today.

"In the government's interpretation, does the second clause of the Atlantic Charter apply to enemy countries?" Thomas asked. "No sir," Eden replied.

Meanwhile, Russia's proposals for handling a defeated Germany were reported to have been presented to the European advisory commission. British and American views already have been given the commission. A tight censorship has been placed on all commission proceedings.

RUSSIANS SEIZE STARAYA RUSSA, BIG NAZI BASE

Town Under Long Siege Early in War.

LONDON, Feb. 18 (AP). — Soviet forces advancing along the southern and western shores of Lake Ilmen today captured ancient Staraya Russa, heavily fortified rail junction protecting the heart of the Nazi northern front, and also the rail station of Shimsk, 30 miles to the northwest, Moscow announced tonight.

The Moscow daily war bulletin, recorded from a broadcast by the soviet monitor, said Red army forces captured 40 communities in the Staraya Russa sector, south of Lake Ilmen.

The Russian announcement came a few hours after the Germans disclosed they had evacuated the town, held since the first winter of the Russian-German war. The Russians, however, said the town was captured by storm.

One of the oldest towns in Russia, with a history fading into the unrecorded past, Staraya Russa was a modern health resort and district center which the Germans built into one of their most formidable bastions on the eastern front.

Protected Nazi Line.

Lying near the Lovat river just below Lake Ilmen, the town protected the entire German line in the region, and the Nazis' withdrawal seemed to presage a 50 mile retreat farther westward to the string of towns along the Leningrad-Vitebsk railroad. The area between is virtually all marshland.

In the first winter of the Russian-German war the Staraya Russa area was the scene of one of the biggest battles of the entire conflict, with thousands of German troops encircled and then besieged thruout th winter, holding out with the aid of supplies dropped by parachute from Nazi planes. In the spring the Germans lifted the siege.

The withdrawal from Staraya Russa may indicate a general German collapse before the pressure of the soviet flank drive, aimed primarily at Pskov, regarded as the key to the Baltic. Several towns were captured by soviet forces moving down from Luga toward Pskov, Moscow said.

Report New Dnieper Drive.

There was a possibility that such a collapse might be matched before long on perhaps an even greater scale in the Dnieper bend, where the Germans said that the Russians had launched a new big scale attack. Berlin said that the assault was opened Thursday against the iron city of Krivoi Rog and that a breach had been made in the German lines.

Final erasure of the Korsun trap in the Dnieper bend as announced by Moscow on Thursday was believed to have released 25 Russian divisions to be wheeled against Nazi Field Marshal Fritz von Mannstein's forces.

Groups of Germans were reported still surrendering to the Russians from their hiding places in the woods and gulleys of the Ukrainian territory around Korsun and Shanderovka where Moscow said 10 Nazi divisions had been wiped out with the capture of 11,000 and the death of 52,000 Germans.

DENY FORCE WIPED OUT

The German high command denied the Russian announcement of Thursday that 10 trapped Nazi divisions had been wiped out in the Korsun pocket of the Ukraine and said the German forces had joined the bulk of Field Marshal von Mannstein's army.

"In the area west of Cherkassi [the Korsun area] contact was re-established with the major German unit which had been cut off from its rear for weeks," said the German war report broadcast by Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press. "Contact was reëstablished after violent enemy counter-attacks were repulsed. The encircled contingent itself had fought its way thru until it reached the front line of tank formations destined to relieve it."

CALL ON ALLIES TO CUT TIES TO ITALIAN REGIME

Setting forth a four point program for the allied governments in Italy, Prof. G. A. Borgese of the University of Chicago and Dr. Gaetano Salvemini of Harvard yesterday criticized allied policies in Italy and called on the allies to sever connection with the government headed by King Victor Emmanuel and Marshal Badoglio.

The two Italian professors said the present Italian government had failed to produce material aid for the allies and that resentment of the Italian people against the monarchist rule had impeded the allies' military advance in Italy.

They proposed that royal sovereignty in Italy be abolished, that the 12 to 14 millions of Italians in 25 liberated provinces be allowed to organize local and provincial governments, that a post-war assembly be held to form a permanent government, and that the allies prosecute the war vigorously and police the occupied territories.

CHINA BISHOP TERMS CHURCH AND SCHOOLS FUTURE PEACE HOPE

Christianity and education will be the two most powerful factors affecting post-war international understanding and an enduring peace, Dr. W. Y. Chen, Methodist bishop of China, said yesterday in Chicago on his way to New York from San Diego. Post-war China will have a democratic, constitutional, and representative form of government, he said.

Dr. W. Y. Chen.

Stories of Jap atrocities undoubtedly are authentic, Bishop Chen said.

"It is a combination of the old Japanese barbarism with modern scientific knowledge, and their Shinto religious beliefs," Dr. Chen added. "But all Japanese are not cruel. China bears the Japanese very little hatred and our Japanese prisoners are treated well."

Bishop Chen, in viewing aid to China, suggested need of defense of Chinese air fields from which American and Chinese bombers operate, continuance of the South Pacific offensive, and opening of a new front against Japan from the Aleutian Islands, or North Pacific.

F. D. R. TO RETURN NEW TAX BILL; VETO IS HINTED

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—President Roosevelt is going to send the new $2,315,000,000 tax bill back to congress either Monday or Tuesday—presumably with a veto. He declined today at his press conference to say what his action on the bill would be.

His response left little question that he had not changed his mind about the bill which he has called "unrealistic" as an additional revenue raiser in the light of huge war time expenditures.

A veto would set aside the decision of congress to freeze the social security pay roll taxes at the present levels of 1 per cent on employers and employes. A temporary freeze measure expires March 1 and in the absence of the new proposed law, the rates automatically would rise to 2 per cent on employers and employes at the end of February.

Rep. Jenkins [R., O.], a member of the ways and means committee, said the reason for a veto would be political motives designed to get the vote of "radicals." He said radical elements wanted the increase in social security taxes. In addition, he said, "many organizations of radicals" are among those which would be required to file information on their financial status under the new bill.

COLLEGE STUDY FOR 110,000 MEN HALTED BY ARMY

Dr. Zook pointed out that the action comes on the heels of new selective service regulations restricting deferments for many students. It also follows a reduction of about 50 per cent in the army aviation program in the colleges.

SCHOOL REVENUES CUT

Curtailment of the ASTP will force participating Chicago area schools to revise their curriculums, and, in some cases, to find new sources of revenue, a survey of schools with ASTP units disclosed yesterday.

Conditions in the various schools and the reaction of their officials:

Lake Forest college: 340 ASTP trainees; 237 regular students, only 23 of whom are men; a regular, peace time enrollment of 337.

"This will be a definite financial loss and will require considerable adjustment by the school," William E. McPheeters, dean of men, said, "but we certainly won't fold up because of the move. We have started a night school and will hold a summer school in an effort to offset the decrease in our revenue. We have been anticipating this action because of the story on Dec. 11 in THE TRIBUNE."

U. of I. Has 1,200.

University of Illinois: 1,200 ASTP trainees; 9,800 regular students; a peace time enrollment of 14,000. Coleman H. Griffith, coördinator of the university's civilian and military program, said:

"This will mean a considerable reduction in the enrollment of the school, but the university has been happy to make any contribution possible to the war program."

Wheaton college: 211 ASTP trainees; 1,144 regular students, which is the normal registration.

"This comes as a great shock," George V. Kirk, vice president of the school, said, "because it will require an extensive reorganization of the curriculum and reconversion of the buildings used by the army. On the other hand, we have been crowded and the buildings will be returned to the use of the regular students."

Preps Get Building Back.

De Paul university: 477 ASTP trainess; 5,158 regular students, a normal registration. The Rev. Michael J. O'Connell said:

"We don't like to see the ASTP leave because we thought we were doing some good. But it will enable the high school students to go back to their own building, which the army took over."

University of Chicago: 1,193 ASTP trainees; 10,900 regular students, a little less than the normal registration. A school spokesman refused to comment until the effect of the order has been studied.

University of Wisconsin; 1,220 ASTP trainees; about 7,800 other students; a peace time registration of 11,000.

"The order will reduce the size of the student body in all our schools where the plan has operated," Dr. Clarence A. Dykstra, president of the university, said. "In some instances where faculties were enlarged to care for the program, it will mean a reduction in the teaching staff. The loss of revenue will not affect us so much since we are state supported, and have a large percentage of women."

The Illinois Institute of Technology has 467 in its ASTP unit, with a total enrollment of 4,237. North Central college has about 188 ASTP students in a total registration of 561. Notre Dame and Northwestern universities do not have ASTP units, according to officers of the army 6th service command.

The total number of ASTP students in Chicago and nearby schools is 5,276 out of the nation-wide total of 140,000, local army figures showed. An additional 819 ASTP students are studying medicine and 492 dentistry at the universities of Illinois, Northwestern, Loyola, and Chicago.

Lt. Edwin R. Herron, 23, 1607 E. 69th st., pilot of a Flying Fortress, will be proposed for a decoration—possibly the congressional medal of honor—for his heroic action in saving six of his crew when the plane was forced down in the English channel, according to an Associated Press dispatch from an air base in England.

Herron and the crew had carried out a bombing mission over France and were returning home when flak knocked out one engine. Later two other engines were knocked out and when one caught fire Herron nosed the plane down for a crash landing a few miles from the English coast.

Three of the crew were dead when the landing was made and others were wounded. Herron, altho wounded, managed to float a life raft and one by one hauled the other survivors aboard. Some were dazed and he had to dive for them.

Herron was reared in Little Rock, Ark., and his wife, Vivian is there now visiting friends.

OPPOSES ARMY'S ORDER TO HALT COLLEGE STUDY

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 18 [Special]. — Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur of Stanford, commenting on the plan to abandon most of the college military training program announced by the war department yesterday, had this to say:

"I think the army is making a great mistake. We have intelligent enemies to face and we need trained men to fight them. Without adequate training we're liable to get into real trouble.

"The abandonment of the military training program in colleges thruout the country is one of those mistakes people in a democracy make because they don't look far enough ahead. They don't realize the job still before us.

"We've been getting ready for a long war. It's going to be a long war, we all know. And a long preparation is necessary. Such preparation was considered when the army first inaugurated its program. Now the army seems to have reconsidered the situation and changed its tactics. To me, that looks like a mistake."

MODISTE ASKED BY CORONER TO ATTEND INQUEST

Coroner Brodie asked last night that Mme. Marguerite Pick, a well known modiste at 127 E. Chestnut st., attend the next session of the inquest into the mysterious murder of Mrs. Frank Starr Williams, wife of a Washington diplomatic aid. The inquest is scheduled for 1:30 p. m. March 3 at the county morgue.

Mrs. Williams was fatally shot in her room in the Drake hotel one month ago today. Her daughter, Mrs. Patricia Goodbody, also was fired on, but not hurt. The assassin was described as a fur clad woman.

Coroner Brodie emphasized that no significance attached to his request for Mme. Marguerite's presence at the inquest. He followed usual channels by asking Capt. Frank Reynolds of the Chicago av. station, to notify her.

Plans to Call Others.

"I have in mind calling on a number of persons who are not witnesses in the true sense of the word, to attend the inquest," said Coroner Brodie. "Mme. Marguerite is merely one of them. Included are persons who knew Mrs. Williams for a number of years, and who might be able to help us learn more of her history."

Coroner Brodie said that the cooperation of Mrs. Williams' friends and those with whom she had business dealings might be helpful in piecing together a more complete picture of her life and habits, and that this in turn might give police a clearer insight into the motive for her murder.

Mme. Marguerite made gowns for Mrs. Williams for many years. At one time, it was reported, Mrs. Williams had worked in her shop, but this Mme. Marguerite denied. More recently Mrs. Williams and the modiste had discussed a sort of partnership—with Mrs. Williams mainly furnishing the money—for the importation of foreign gowns.

Mrs. Williams Drops Plans.

Mrs. Williams, however, gave up the project to write her memoirs on her life in Japan as the wife of an American diplomat. This was later confirmed by Mrs. Williams' husband at an inquest hearing two weeks ago. At that time Williams described his wife and Mme. Marguerite as friends. Mme. Marguerite last saw Mrs. Williams at 11 a. m. the day of the shooting, she recently told reporters.

Police reported no developments yesterday in their inquiry. Meanwhile, Williams was expected to arrive from his native Mississippi where, at Jackson, he had been visiting an old friend, Gov. Bailey.

Put the Merchant Marine in your Postwar Plan

THE U. S. Merchant Marine can help lift off your mind, and carry away, part of your postwar production and employment problem.

Thousands of these fine, American-built and operated ships are now serving the needs of our armed forces in every sector of this global war. Many of them formerly carried American merchandise and tourists to all parts of the world, and brought back products needed here. They will again. You'll find every American steamship line eager to help you plan ahead for developing your export markets—and for finding and bringing back the imports you need.

One unit of the U. S. Merchant Marine is the fleet of the Alcoa Line, which for years has served markets in the Caribbean and nearby South America. The merchants and customers in this close-at-hand area are awaiting peace, and Alcoa's regular arrivals again. Their wants are greater than ever before.

In serving our friendly neighbors at our accustomed ports of call, we have accumulated knowledge of their wants and needs. We invite sales executives to write for data on these convenient markets—and for the names of helpful agents familiar with marketing conditions there. Write to Dept. BISHOP SHEIL SEES HARM IN PARK DISPUTE

Denies Dunham's Charge of Politics.

Bishop Bernard J. Sheil yesterday deplored the controversy between the Back of the Yards Neighborhood council and the Chicago park district as an "unfortunate" issue, which he said may affect the welfare of thousands of children.

The park commissioners denied the council further use of the Davis Square park fieldhouse as a hot lunch refectory for children, and accepted the resignation of Joseph B. Meegan as director of the park, after they had transferred him to another playground because he had devoted too much time to the council's activities.

Dunham Suspects Politics.

Criticism has been directed at the commissioners by some spokesmen for the "back of the yards" area. President Dunham of the park district has replied that the lunch program can be handled directly between the schools and the public agencies disbursing the subsidy foods, and has charged that Meegan, executive director of the council, and Saul Alinsky, its technical consultant, have been attempting to use it to build a political machine for themselves at the expense of the taxpayers.

"There is no politics involved," said Bishop Sheil, who is honorary director of the council, "simply because the council is not interested in politics. It has steered clear of anything of a political tinge."

He declined to discuss other controversial questions, or to say whether he thought Dunham was right or wrong. He referred questions concerning statistics of the council's activities to Meegan and Alinsky, who went to his office in the Catholic Youth Organization headquarters.

A Force for Good.

"The Back of the Yards Neighborhood council is merely a union of all the forces that go to make up the community for the common good," he told a Tribune reporter. "The present controversy is unfortunate and seems without sense. I cannot take part in it.

"Child life is the most precious inheritance America has, and how there can be controversy of any kind involving good to a child is beyond me.

"After all, where there is need for hot lunch, certainly every facility of the community should be open that the health of the children may be safeguarded."

Praises Council's Work.

The Back of the Yards council, he said, has reduced the juvenile delinquency rate in the area, reduced the infant mortality rate, and has sponsored hot lunch and milk programs for children as "vital things affecting the lives of all the people."

The Rev. H. E. Brauer, pastor of St. Martini's Evangelical Lutheran church, at 51st st. and Marshfield av., whose school's lunch program is sponsored by the council, said he was "certain Alinsky and Meegan had no intentions of using the council as a political machine."

"I'm sure those persons who accuse Alinsky and Meegan of using taxpayers' money for political purposes are wrong," he said. "The Lutheran church does not meddle in politics, and I certainly would not countenance involvement of my church in any political controversy."

GERMAN TODAY IS BRUTE, SAYS SIGRID SCHULTZ

Sigrid Schultz, former head of THE TRIBUNE'S Berlin bureau and author of "Germany Will Try It Again," yesterday warned that Americans must explode the myth that Germans are nice people who have been carried into war by a few Nazis in high power.

The German of today is ruthless, arrogant, and either hides his true intentions or openly boasts of his brutality, she said. The type of person whom many believe to be typical of the nation's people, is the German of yesterday, Miss Schultz pointed out. The German army and its masters have stimulated and exaggerated instincts which for centuries have been dormant in the people of the land.

"The number of Germans who had no part in preparing for World War II.," Miss Schultz declared, "is heartbreakingly small. The Nazi party never could have come to power without women. The lust for conquest is there, deep in the heart of the nation's women."

Miss Schultz is in Chicago on a speaking tour. She will lecture next Thursday morning at the Woman's Athletic club.

2 MILLION NEW WAR GARDENS IS NATION'S GOAL

A large percentage of the 2,000,000 new war gardens to be cultivated this year will be on school grounds and industrial property, according to a report made at the garden conference which ended yesterday in the Stevens hotel.

The report was presented by Ward N. Black, assistant Illinois state superintendent of public instruction. He said thousands of acres of prospective garden sites can be found on idle school and factory grounds.

O. V. Coombs of the University of Wisconsin said major educational activity should be devoted to identifying and combating garden insects. He also urged more complete guidance on weeding and cultivating for novices.

FEDERAL RULE DENOUNCED BY HOSPITAL HEAD

Msgr. Griffin Speaks for Group.

Federal intervention in the field of health and hospital insurance would be an "attack" on the individual's constitutional rights and would seriously undermine the effectiveness of medical services offered by American hospitals, Msgr. Maurice Griffin, trustee of the American Hospital association and vice president of the Catholic Hospital association, asserted yesterday.

Speaking before the midyear conference of the American Hospital association in the Drake hotel, Msgr. Griffin said that federal control of this type of insurance would "force an emphasis on a minimum of medical treatment and care."

Would Standardize Service.

"If the government takes over the control of health and hospital insurance such services must, of necessity, become standardized," he declared. "When this happens a limitation is placed on a doctor's professional services and the all important personal contact between doctor and patient is lost."

Msgr. Griffin said that a compulsory health or hospitalization insurance, enforced by the federal government, would invade the private citizen's right to determine the ways in which he wishes to spend the money he earns.

Other Speakers Agree.

Four other speakers, Alden Mills, manager of "Modern Hospital;" Dr. Robert Bishop, director of the American College of Hospital administration; Dr. C. R. Rorem, director of the Blue Cross of the American Hospital association, and Frank J. Walter, president of the association, joined with Msgr. Griffin in a plea that all hospital administrators unite in an effort to block government intervention in the field of health insurance.

RWLB TACKLES PROBLEM THAT'S REALLY A GEM!

The regional war labor board yesterday acted to solve the problem of the 600,000 jewels which disappear every four weeks at the Elgin National Watch company in Elgin. The microscopic gems are used in the manufacture of precision war instruments.

The board approved an incentive plan under which it is expected the workers will be more careful. The plan aims to prevent the loss of 73,000 of the flat gems now disappearing every four months, give the workers a 15 per cent wage increase, cut unit production costs 17 per cent, and save the government $20,000 a month.

Chairman Edgar L. Warren said 800,000 jewel blanks start thru production every four weeks but only 200,000 finished jewels have been coming off the line despite vacuum cleaning of floors, benches, and clothes.

The incentive plan sets 210,000 as the production base for each four weeks. With more care by the workers, the company hopes the output will be increased to 273,000, in which event the 15 per cent wage increase will be effective and the other benefits also gained. The plan is subject to review by the RWLB after 60 days' trial.

'UNEASY PEACE' IS FORESEEN BY VETERAN PILOT

The war will be followed by "a most uneasy peace," with the whole world aware of the futility of searching for effective defenses against air attacks, Canfield Cook, R. A. F. pilot in the first World war and aeronautics expert, said yesterday at an Executives' club luncheon in the Hotel Sherman.

"Acceleration of air development, which is affecting the course of the war, will affect the course of our post-war world to as great a degree," Cook said. "Industries with relatively low weight, high value products will show a tendency to seek out lower tax areas for their factories, using new air cargo facilities to cover the distance."

Simplification of air travel and military security will combine with commercial consideration to bring about considerable decentralization of populations, Cook predicted, particularly in the vicinity of large cities.

Christ Pappas, a tavern owner at 324 W. Chicago av., who shot Corp. Wesley Jacobson, 34, of 2809 Logan blvd., in the leg for keeping his daughter, June Pappas, 18, out "too late," will be given a hearing in Felony court Feb. 24. Pappas is charged with assault with intent to kill. His case was transferred to Felony court yesterday by Judge Michael Tremko in the Chicago avenue court.

CALLS WALLACE 'GRAND EXALTED SMEARER' OF U. S.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—A suggestion that Vice President Wallace's title be changed to "grand exalted smearer of loyal Americans" was voiced in the house today by Rep. Busbey [R., Ill.].

Rep. Fred Busbey.

Busbey revealed that Wallace was accompanied on his recent speech making tour by David Karr, born Katz, a writer for Communist publications, and intimated that Karr was the Vice President's ghost writer.

Wallace reported at a press conference yesterday that he found the middle west the greatest hazard to President Roosevelt's chances for a fourth term and a stronghold of "fascism."

"Foreign Philosophy" Assailed.

"I sometimes wonder," said Busbey, "just what are the duties of the Vice President and why we do not change his title to grand exalted smearer of all loyal Americans who disagree with his pet theories.

"I bring this to the attention of the house today because many people are wondering as to the origin of his speeches in which is advocated a philosophy so foreign to our American way of life.

"Accompanying Wallace on his smear campaign tour, as a member of his entourage, was one David Karr. In view of Karr's record as a Communist, some of us are wondering if, when we hear the voice of Henry Agar Wallace, we are listening to the words of David Karr."

Name Change Admitted.

Busbey put into the record extracts from Karr's own testimony before the Dies committee on un-American activities in April, 1943.

Karr was on the staff of the Daily Worker, official Communist publication, for two years, according to the evidence, a writer for the Communist publication Equality, and public relations director of the American League for Peace and Democracy, one of the Communist fronts branded as subversive by Atty. Gen. Biddle. He admitted he was satisfied that the league was a Communist front organization.

Karr testified he had changed his name from Katz for "professional purposes" in 1937. He outlined a career as shipping clerk, brush salesman, employe of the American council against Nazi propaganda, reporter for the Transradio press service, and finally as employe in the office of facts and figures, predecessor of the office of war information. He is 25 years old—well within the draft age.

Holds $4,600 U. S. Job.

Alan Cranston, chief of the foreign language division, sponsored him for his government job which resulted in his promotion to the post of assistant chief of the foreign language division of the OWI at $4,600 a year, Karr testified.

He was in charge of a staff translating material for the foreign language press and radio altho he was unable to speak or read any foreign language, he admitted.

Asks Police to Help Find His $750 Cigaret Case

Martin L. Straus II. of the Ambassador East hotel, president of Eversharp, Inc., asked Chicago av. police yesterday to help find his $750 cigaret case which he lost, supposedly in Rush st. near Oak st.

MARITAL INDECISION CALLED CONSPIRACY BY JUDGE SBARBARO

Judge John A. Sbarbaro of the Superior court yesterday described as a conspiracy the action of Mrs. Frances Young, 34, of 410 Evergreen av., in having him set aside her divorce from her first husband while still married to a second husband.

Mrs. Frances Young.

Mrs. Young divorced Michael Young, an engineer, April 21, 1943, and on the following June 5 was married to Rudolph La Frana, 44, of 505 S. Oakley blvd., a theater manager. Three weeks ago she and Young petitioned that the divorce be vacated. This was done, reëstablishing their marriage. Later La Frana sued for annulment, and this was Judge Sbarbaro's first knowledge that Mrs. Young had a second husband.

Judge Sbarbaro had before him the Youngs and two lawyers, Benjamin H. Vanderveld and Gene J. Giacomelli. Vanderveld intimated that the situation had developed over objections in connection with La Frana's marriage, made by La Frana's housekeeper, Mrs. Della Repetto. Judge Sbarbaro ordered Mrs. Repetto and La Frana to attend the next hearing March 2.

$50,000 AWARDED FIREMAN HURT IN RAILWAY YARD

For a back injury suffered while shaking ashes from a locomotive, William W. Prue, 54, of Green Bay, Wis., was awarded $50,000 damages against the North Western railroad yesterday by a jury in the Superior court of Judge E. I. Frankhauser. Prue was a railroad fireman. Evidence submitted by his lawyers, William H. De Parcq and Samuel Cohen, showed that a shaking grader stuck on a locomotive in the Green Bay yards while he was working the device Nov. 24, 1941. In trying to free it he dislocated a vertebra. The injury, he said, ultimately forced his retirement. Prue sued for $50,000 and was awarded the full amount, an unusual result in personal injury suits.

SERVICE CHIEFS HERE TO MEET WITH DENTISTS

Maj. Gen. Robert H. Mills, chief of the army dental corps, and Rear Adm. Alexander G. Lyle, chief of the navy dental corps, will participate today with other service and civilian dental officials in a public session of the war service committee of the American Dental association in the Palmer House. The morning session will be addressed by Naval Capt. C. Raymond Wells, president of the American Dental association and chief dental officer for the selective service system, and Dr. Edward C. Elliott, president of Purdue university.

FRANTIC PLOT TO STIFLE FCC INQUIRY BARED

'Why So Fearful?' New Deal Bosses Asked.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—Details of a New Deal undercover plot to kill the congressional investigation into the federal communications commission were revealed today on Capitol hill.

Congressmen acquainted with the behind-the-scenes story of administration maneuvers are making last minute efforts to defeat the powerful government forces assembled to stifle the quiz until after the November election.

If they are unsuccessful—but the odds are admittedly against them—they will take to the floor of the house, they promised, and air the whole shocking tale of the scheme to hide the true facts about the FCC from the public.

Garey is Chief Target.

The death blow to the inquiry will be dealt, they agreed, if FCC Chairman James L. Fly is successful in his moves to force Eugene L. Garey, chief counsel of the investigating committee, to resign.

The same tactics are being pursued that caused the original chairman of the committee, Rep. Cox, [D., Ga.], to announce his resignation in a dramatic floor speech last Sept. 30. The justice department is said to have been enlisted in the campaign, bringing pressure upon one of Garey's associates to persuade him to give up the thankless task of exposing Fly and his dictatorial methods which have reduced the radio industry to terror.

Garey, lifelong Democrat who forsook a highly lucrative New York City law practice to become committee counsel, is said to be on the verge of submitting his resignation.

Weary of Smear Attack.

He is reported reluctant to leave the intricacies of the wealth of evidence already gathered to the mercies of a hand-picked successor who could not hope to master the technicalities of the investigation for months, even in the unlikely event that he were to press the inquiry. On the other hand, he is said to be weary of the gestapo methods and smear technique employed by the Fly brigade against his friends and himself in an effort to oust him.

The investigation was brought to a standstill last Wednesday when the three Democratic members of the committee staged what has been termed in house cloakrooms as the rawest deal ever engineered in connection with a congressional probe.

Drastic action was essential at the time to prevent the testimony of four former federal officials who were to be summoned to reply to charges that they were involved in forcing the former owner of New York City radio station WMCA to sell his property under pressure alleged to have originated at the White House.

Hopkins' Aid Is Witness.

These witnesses are Edward J. Noble, former undersecretary of commerce and a Harry Hopkins protege; Thomas G. [Tommy the Cork] Corcoran, lawyer-lobbyist who is said to have coined millions out of his former intimacy with President Roosevelt; William J. Dempsey, former congressman and FCC counsel and later Noble's attorney in the WMCA deal, and Leslie Roberts, former radio executive and a WMCA employe. David K. Niles, a member of the White House palace guard, has also been named in testimony as a partner to the coercion which forced the sale of station WMCA.

The story that was to be elicited from these witnesses was said to be of such a sensational character and affected such high personages that it had to be kept from the records. The manner in which this was accomplished can here be told.

Only two of the three Democratic members who constitute a majority of the committee were in Washington. They were Chairman Lea [D., Cal.] and Rep. Hart [D., N. J.]. The third, Rep Magnuson [D., Wash.], was on an inspection trip in the Aleutians.

Brought Back by Bomber.

Thru influences in high quarters, Magnuson was rushed back to Washington by navy bomber. Upon his arrival he was witnessed at breakfast in the Shoreham hotel with "Tommy the Cork" and the latter was overheard pleading that he had "done nothing that any other lawyer might not have done."

Meanwhile, according to reliable report, Boss Frank Hague of Jersey City put pressure upon his congressman, Rep. Hart, who had hitherto evidenced some signs of indignation concerning revelations of FCC activities. Hague's interest in the case was said to have been aroused by a hint from the justice department that he might save himself anxiety by displaying a coöperative spirit.

These preliminaries having been disposed of, Lea, Hart, and Magnuson met secretly, without notice to the two Republican members, Rep. Wigglesworth [R., Mass.] and Rep. Miller [R., Mo.], and voted to suspend the WMCA hearings.

FCC Counsel in Office.

The fantastic nature of these proceedings was enhanced by the presence of Charles R. Denny Jr., chief counsel of the FCC, the agency under investigation, in Lea's office for nearly an hour before a formal statement was issued.

This statement averred that the hearings were being suspended pending a decision in the New York state Supreme court on a civil suit brought by Donald Flamm, former owner of WMCA, against Noble. To continue the hearings would be an obvious impropriety, Lea stated after his conference with the FCC counsel.

Apprised of this action, the two Republican members, Wigglesworth and Miller, later issued a statement labeling the move "hush-hush, pure and simple, to keep unsavory facts from the public."

Why So Fearful?

"Let the record show," they declared, "that three Democrats cavered up and sought to shield the administration just as the facts began to hurt. This minority for more than a solid year has watched the frantic efforts of the administration to prevent the American people from learning the truth about the FCC and its sordid and illegal activities. We wonder why the White House, the department of justice, the FCC, and high New Deal officials, past and present, are so fearful that the true facts about the FCC should become known."

The methods now being employed to oust Counsel Garey recall the history of events which led up to the forced resignation of former Chairman Cox.

The Georgia congressman, whose reputation for integrity is unquestioned in the house, was smeared as the recipient of $2,500 in stock for legal services rendered to a radio station before he assumed the chairmanship of the investigating committee. This stock was immediately turned over by him to a private charity, but the transaction was made the excuse for threats from the justice department to prosecute under the law forbidding congressmen to accept fees for services before a government agency. Nothing has been heard of this supposed law violation since Cox's resignation nearly 4 months ago.

Rayburn Tries to Delay It.

Known only to a few in the house is the fact that Speaker Rayburn of Texas had urged Cox, on the eve of open hearings last July into FCC activities, to postpone the inquiry, offering to see that Fly was ousted as chairman and Cox permitted to name his successor.

Cox spurned this suggestion and the hearings next day opened with a bang, revealing that the chiefs of staff of army and navy had recommended to President Roosevelt the transfer of FFC radio activities to the military services on the ground of security reasons. Subsequently, all generals and admirals were barred from testifying by the President.

After Cox was deposed the FCC turned its guns upon Garey. In this it was joined by Eugene Meyer's Washington Post, which had led a newspaper fight against Cox. The Post urged the new chairman, Lea, to "toss out Garey along with the star chamber testimony he collected." In subsequent editorials it used such strong language that Garey is reported to have contemplated libel action.

NAVY TO ENACT BATTLE DRAMAS IN W-G-N SERIES

Great Lakes to Begin New Show Today.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The opening salvo of the navy's newest radio program, On Target, will be fired over W-G-N from 11 to 11:30 a. m. today. On Target will feature the Singing Bandsmen and front line dramas portrayed by bluejackets. It will be broadcast regularly from Ross auditorium at Great Lakes, except on Feb. 26, when the show will be given in Davenport, Ia.

Bill Fischer, director of the Great Lakes orchestra, will lead the Singing Bandsmen. Chief Specialist Guy Robertson, veteran Broadway singer and actor, will participate in some of the shows. On the first show he will be the narrator. Carroll Huxley, former arranger for Andre Kostelanetz, is to be responsible for much of the music.

The first broadcast will feature an original drama about a marine in a foxhole who receives a visit from the ghost of Lincoln. Seaman Morrie Goodsend will portray the marine and Yeoman Larry Alexander will play Lincoln. Lt. Bob Elson, former W-G-N sports reporter, will be the announcer.

News and notes: Mystery House, a new series from the pen of George Anderson, who also turns out the Crimes Files of Flamond, will be introduced over W-G-N from 9:30 to 10 tonight. . . . Girls are moving in everywhere, including studio orchestras. Percy Faith, conductor of the Contented Hour, has two feminine members in his orchestra these days: Evelyn Davis, violinist, and Ethel Merker, who plays the French horn. . . . But then the Hour of Charm orchestra is composed entirely of girls. . . . Incidentally, more than 5,000 girls have entered the Hour of Charm's contest to find the singing Cinderella of America. . . . Lee Sims, one time Chicago piano favorite, is back on the air from New York via NBC at 11:45 p. m. Fridays, Saturdays, and Mondays, after a long absence which took him to London and South America.

THE QUESTION.

Has your child ever gotten in trouble while with you on a shopping tour?

WHERE ASKED.

Victory Center at Marshall Field & Co.

THE ANSWERS.

Mrs. George Lau, housewife, St. Paul, Minn.—I have no children, but I have been accompanied shopping by two nieces, 9 and 12 years old, in Philadelphia. Altho I am familiar with the stores there, they insist on showing me around, and are sure to lead me to departments where I can buy what they want me to give them.

Mrs. Thomas Birmingham, housewife, 6105 Drexel av.—My 5 year old daughter already has developed a literary taste. When in sight of the book department, she insists on looking over the stock. She often dashes for escalators, too, but today she slipped on one of them. It scared her, I think, so maybe she will wait for me now.

Mrs. M. J. Goodman, housewife, Minneapolis, Minn.—Do I have trouble? I should say I do! Jerry's 4½ and he's been up those steps looking thru that plane on exhibit three times without me. I didn't know where he'd gone. There are just too many new things to look at. Jerry! Now where's he gone?

Mrs. Ben Cohen, housewife, 510 Addison st.—My daughter is grown up now, but when she was small a shopping trip was a real expedition. She seemed to be hungry all the time, and, until we had lunch at a restaurant I didn't have a minute's peace. After lunch, tho, she always seemed happy and I could get my errands done.

Mrs. John Anderson, housewife, Gage road, Riverside—Warren Earl embarrassed me today. In another store he pushed a button that turned off the escalator. Everybody was stopped between floors and men came rushing to start it again. The funniest thing was that they couldn't find the button, but Warren Earl told them where it was.

Mrs. Robert J. Myers, Findlay, O.—Until he was 10 years old, my son Jack had a great desire to ride escalators. At least once each shopping trip he had to ride to the top and down again. And I had to go along, of course. After his trip, he usually consented to accompany me on my errands.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and by mail, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with queries.]

DEPENDENCY DISCHARGES.

Obviously, the services have no means of their own to verify information submitted to them by men requesting discharge by reason of dependency. When practicable the facts as to dependency and its cause are verified by reports from a disinterested agency, usually the American Red Cross. The Red Cross usually investigates the family circumstances and gives a report, including any information a local draft board wishes to submit.

Service regulations state that: "In establishing dependency, if the individual was or will be subject to selective service if he is discharged, the application for discharge and the evidence presented will be forwarded to the state director of selective service of the state wherein the enlisted man is registered, requesting recommendation as to whether the circumstances would result in deferment on the basis of dependency" [III-D classification] "if the man was being considered for induction. It is the policy of the war department in cases of dependency for individuals subject to selective service not to authorize discharge except when the state director of selective service concerned recommends approval. When the state director of selective service recommends disapproval, the commander concerned will disapprove and close the case. In a very exceptional instance the entire case, including the recommendations of the state director, may be forwarded to the national headquarters for decision."

When a state director receives an application from the service for a dependency discharge, the local draft board is asked to submit its recommendations. Presumably the latest information a draft board has in the file of a registrant is that which was in it at the time the man was inducted, and therefore, the local board, if it is to be at all consistent, can only remain silent or state that as far as it can say, on the basis of the information in the registrant's file, the man would be classified 1-A.

It must be pointed out, however, that the army can discharge a man if it wishes—the local board has nothing to do with it because the service man is not under its jurisdiction and does not come under the jurisdiction of the local board until he is discharged.

If the Yank is discharged, he must report to his local board within 10 days and he should at that time submit any "new information" he has which would justify a deferred classification. If the evidence the service man submitted with his application for discharge is substantiated by the investigation and report by the Red Cross he may be released by the service at its discretion. Usually the local boards will give every consideration to a discharged man when he comes up for classification if he presents evidence which would entitle him to a III-D classification on the grounds of dependency. If the local board does not believe the evidence warrants deferment, the registrant can appeal to the board of appeals within 10 days after being placed in 1-A.

PATERNITY SUIT NAMING CHAPLIN TO BE DROPPED

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 18 (AP).—Joan Berry's paternity suit against Charles Chaplin is finished and she has no intention of hiring another lawyer to reopen it, her mother, Mrs. Gertrude Berry, told newsmen tonight.

Asked if there was a possibility Joan might have to go to work, since Chaplin's $100 weekly support was stopped after blood tests indicated the movie comedian was not the father of Joan's baby daughter, Mrs. Berry answered:

"It could be."

Chaplin's former protege, however, is to be the star witness in Chaplin's trial on charges of violating the Mann act and conspiring with six other persons to deprive the 23 year old woman of her constitutional rights. Chaplin and the others will be arraigned Monday morning.

GRACE OPPOSES WITHDRAWAL OF COL. M'CORMICK

Holds Publisher's Name Must Go on Ballot.

An attempt to nullify Col. Robert R. McCormick's withdrawal of his name from the Presidential preference primary in Illinois was started yesterday by Capt. William J. Grace of the Republican nationalist revival committee, the organization that filed the name of THE TRIBUNE's editor and publisher, without his signature, Feb. 5.

Raising a technical objection, Capt. Grace contended in a letter to Lewis Vogel, election clerk in the secretary of state's office, that no legal provision exists for acting upon Col. McCormick's request that his name be withdrawn.

Contends There's Loophole.

Capt. Grace said that Illinois laws provide for withdrawals by candidates for nominations and for election as delegates to national conventions or as party committeemen, but that Presidential preference petitions do not fall into either category.

"There is a public demand for Col. McCormick's name to be on the April primary ballot," he wrote. "We believe that, under the law, the people's desire for an opportunity to express their preferences at the ballot box is superior to an individual's desire to withdraw his name from the ballot."

Writes to Col. McCormick.

Grace also sent a letter advising Col. McCormick of the challenge to his withdrawal and assuring him that the issue was raised "with no thought of entering into conflict with you, but solely with the patriotic purpose of giving the people an opportunity to express at the polls, thru their approval of you and your activities, their positive condemnation of the un-American activities of Roosevelt and the New Deal."

COURTNEY GOES TO CAPITAL FOR CAMPAIGN TALK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 18.—Thomas J. Courtney, state's attorney of Cook county, came to Springfield tonight to open his race for governor on the Democratic ticket.

"I just thought I'd come down here and see the people who wanted me to run for governor," said Courtney as he alighted from the train.

Accompanied by the rest of the Democratic state ticket, Courtney will speak tomorrow at a luncheon in the St. Nicholas hotel.

Among those present will be Mrs. Paul Douglas, wife of the former alderman of Chicago's 5th ward and candidate for congressman-at-large; Sen. Lucas, a candidate for reëlection; William Vicars of Pontiac, for state auditor; Edward C. Hunder of Rockford, for lieutenant governor; Sveinbjorn Johnson for attorney general, and Earl W. Merritt of Salem for state treasurer.

COAL DONATIONS SOUGHT TO HELP FORMER SOLDIER

Republicans Move to Cut Red Tape.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Novel aid will be given by Paul C. Ross, Republican 42d ward committeeman, to Paul Skobbeko, the New York soldier just discharged from the army and refused federal permission to reënter the coal business because he cannot show sales for the year ending last March 31. During that time he was in service.

Paul C. Ross.

Ross has urged all of his precinct captains and other well wishers to bring coal to his meeting Monday night in ward headquarters at 1023 N. State st. He said he could not estimate the receipts, but that in any case it would help to emphasize the larger issue.

"Skobbeko is just one soldier," Ross said, "but unless the public is fully awake to his plight, millions of our returning service men may find themselves in trouble because of the same kind of senseless bureaucratic red tape.

Plan to Mail Coal.

"We are going to send the coal we collect to Skobbeko in New York, by parcel post if necessary, to give him a start at supplying the 100 former customers who want him to deliver coal. Maybe then the easterners will discover what is happening to them, and pitch in to help him, too. Perhaps that is too much to expect."

The first—and probably the only—fight over a Democratic ward committeemanship is aimed against Rep. Sabath, dean of the house of representatives. It was learned last night that petitions are being circulated for Ald. Ropa [21st] to end Sabath's long tenure as 21st ward committeeman.

Strong Support Indicated.

Ald. Ropa will have strong support. His backers include State Sen. Kielminski and State Rep. Matt Franz. Reports run that Sabath had intended to be reëlected, then retire in favor of an appointee named by himself, probably Frank Venecek, superintendent of Oak Forest infirmary. Word of this precipitated the challenge to his reëlection as committe-man.

William J. Tuohy, Democratic candidate for state's attorney, filed his petitions of candidacy personally yesterday.

FOURTH TERM? THE PRESIDENT LAUGHS AGAIN!

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18 (AP).—President Roosevelt got a laugh out of fourth term questions at a press conference today but still withheld any intimation of his political intentions.

"The Vice President says you'll be reëlected in 1944," a reporter remarked. "Do you think he's a very good prophet?"

The chief executive retorted: "At it again."

"He's not so sure himself, Mr President," another newsman said.

"Keep on going, it's all right," Mr. Roosevelt replied, "it's good for a laugh any time."

Some one wanted to know who was at it again, and the President said, "you fellows."

Senate Naval Affairs Post Given to Brooks by G. O. P.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—Sen. Brooks [R., Ill.], who was wounded seven times while fighting with the marines in World War I., was chosen by a Republican senatorial caucus today for membership on the powerful senate naval affairs committee.

Sen. Brooks.

As a member of the committee, he will be able to take a greater part than in the past in shaping legislation concerning the marines as well as the entire navy.

Three Major Posts.

Brooks now holds membership on three major senate committees, since he already was on both the appropriations and interstate commerce committees. He will also retain his membership on the civil service and audit committees, but because of his increased duties will relinquish his post on the pensions committee.

Brooks succeeds Sen. Brewster [R., Me.], who gave up the naval affairs committee for the finance committee.

Austin on Foreign Group.

Sen. Austin [R., Vt.] was chosen to succeed the late Sen. Van Nuys [D., Ind.] as a member of the foreign relations committee. Austin, a leading internationalist, has some times been described by his colleagues as a New Deal Republican because of his espousal of Roosevelt administration causes.

Republicans said that they were given the foreign relations committee post under an agreement made earlier by the Democrats that the increasing Republican ratio in the senate would be reflected by the appointment of a Republican in case a vacancy occurred.

Sen. Ball [R., Minn.] was chosen a member of the appropriations committee.

BILLIONS ON BILLIONS.

The President is asking congress to appropriate nearly 31 billion dollars for the navy and more than 50 billions for the army. These are his estimates of military requirements in the fiscal year beginning next July 1.

Too often for the country's good the statement has been made that the costs of war are staggering. They are. But the result of the constant repetition of the truism has been the development of a spirit of resignation in congress when the subject of appropriations, and particularly of military appropriations, is raised. Congressmen have a natural and proper reluctance to deprive the army and navy of anything that might serve to shorten the war. The men who vote the money can't get very excited about the difference between, say, 65 billions and 85 billions. Both sums are beyond easy comprehension and the smaller seems only a little less ruinous than the larger. So why bother?

Part of the answer is that the borrowed money has to be paid back some day and that meanwhile, for generations to come, interest must be paid on it. Every dollar wasted means an added burden on the nation's finances for an indefinite future; and for the present it means that labor and material that might be devoted to producing goods for the civil population is being squandered without real benefit to anybody—soldier or civilian. That means not only increased inflationary borrowing by the government but also a needlessly reduced stock of goods to be bid up in a seller's market.

It is the duty of congress, which every conscientious member will recognize, to scrutinize the military budgets with the greatest care. There is no doubt that billions have already been wasted in excessive purchases and redundant plants and there can be no doubt that other billions will be wasted unless congress accepts the duty which the Constitution imposes on it. The responsibility of determining expenditures rests wholly upon congress. If congress abdicates its authority the country cannot escape ruin.

In the nature of things the military burocracy will ask for everything that it can need and much that it can get along without. It is not always easy to distinguish between the two categories, but congress has no more important function than to grant the justified requests and withhold the others. There is very little danger that congress will err on the side of parsimony and plenty of evidence to indicate that it will err in the other direction. Congress surely cannot serve the people properly if it surrenders control of the purse to an executive who has never shown himself anything but wasteful of the people's substance.

IT'S NOT PEANUTS.

Harry Slattery, rural electrification administrator, says the White House palace guard is trying to force him from his job in order to use the REA for political purposes in the coming election.

He names Jonathan W. Daniels and Judge Samuel I. Rosenman of the palace guard as the manipulators and says the efforts to get rid of him to the "Craig-Tate-Ellis cabal." Craig is a former acting administrator who was eased out of office following an undercover investigation by the same palace guard. Tate is head of a cooperative purchasing organization for rural electrification coöperatives. A congressional committee was told that Craig had boasted that he was going to use this co-op to regiment the votes of 4,000,000 rural electrification customers, collecting campaign funds by assessing dues and by shaking down manufacturers to whom the co-op gave its orders for electrical appliances. Ellis is an ex-congressman, now in the navy.

Craig's activities have come to the attention of the senate agriculture committee before in its investigation of the REA. Former employes of the REA told the committee that under Craig's regime a determined effort was made to force local electrical co-ops to use copper or copperweld transmission wire, and to eschew the use of aluminum and steel or steel composite wire in their projects.

When the companies in disfavor with Craig and his associates in the REA were low bidders on some projects, the specifications were changed after the bids had been opened to give the copper and copperweld manufacturers a second chance at the business, one witness charged. The committee was also told that when a University of North Carolina engineering professor conducted a research investigation from the data of REA's own projects, and concluded that copper and copperweld wire were less economical for rural electrification use than aluminum, the REA's research division pigeonholed his report.

Copperweld wire is a trademarked, composite product, made or licensed by the Copperweld Steel company of St. Louis. When Craig was eased out of his REA job he popped up almost immediately as assistant to the president of this company, which had been a principal beneficiary of his alleged pro-copper policy.

The REA has spent or has authorizations to spend about a billion dollars. It is estimated that a fourth to a fifth of the cost of the average rural electrification project is for transmission wire. Even under the New Deal, 200 to 250 millions isn't peanuts. The senate committee must naturally investigate Slattery's charge that the REA is being perverted to political uses, but it will be well advised to keep its eye on the transmission wire contracts as well. The New Dealers aren't so fanatical that they overlook the main chance.

DUES PAYING MADE EASY.

Leaders of the AFL and CIO unions in Illinois have decided on an amicable job transfer program for war workers, whereby a man who leaves a job under the jurisdiction of one union for a more essential job under another will receive protection of seniority rights in his original job and will not have to pay initiation fees to his new union. His dues in the old union will be suspended and he will pay dues to the new. The plan will operate in transfers from AFL to CIO unions and vice versa.

This is a boon to the working man who at present may have to pay a stiff initiation fee if he changes jobs and unions and faces the burden of paying dues to two unions unless he wants to lose all rights and seniority in his former place of work, to which he expects to return at the end of the war.

The labor leaders regard the working man not only as a client, but also as a chattel. He is their bread and butter, and his dues and fees and fines are their income. The labor bosses are ambitious rivals and in the past have not hesitated to raid each other's ranks. Now they find themselves able to lay aside their feud because almost full employment has been highly profitable for all of them.

SEN. LUCAS IS RUNNING FOR FEDERAL JUDGE.

Sen. Lucas plunged into his campaign for reelection with all of the enthusiasm of an unwilling guest of the Polar Bears inserting one toe in Lake Michigan on New Year's day.

The senator's opening speech before his fellow townsmen in Havana disclosed his split political personality. Ostensibly he is a candidate for the United States senate. Actually, it is common political knowledge that a vacancy on the federal court is being left unfilled against the probability that Illinois will go Republican this fall. To get the appointment, the senator has to appear in the role of the gallant but defeated standard bearer. So Sen. Lucas is really running for a federal judgeship.

But meanwhile there is the faint hope that by some opening of the heavens or shaking of the earth, the impending Republican landslide in Illinois will be diverted and he will be returned to the senate chamber. The senator appears to believe that the best chance of bringing that about is to dissociate himself as far as possible from his sponsor in the White House. At Havana he said that he is for the outlawry of war, a choice of phrase which must have disturbed slightly the graves of Messrs. Kellogg and Briand, but that he has frequently differed from the President on domestic issues.

Sen. Lucas said that he had opposed the President on court packing, which he did in some measure, altho the collapse of the drive against the Supreme court saved him from committing himself on a roll call, and that he has frequently differed on other issues. If he has, he has still been at least a 95 per cent New Dealer.

The pains to which the senator went to present a flimsy disavowal of his real self betrayed the weakness of his candidacy. He can no longer claim to be an Illinoisan. He has been a consistent creature of the New Deal machine in Washington, and his candidacy is thus an imposition on the people whom he claims to represent.

Any one who doubts that Sen. Lucas is one of Mr. Roosevelt's political creatures need go no further than his sponsorship of the fourth term's vote stealing bill. A public man who would lend his name to such a scheme, with its flagrant disregard of plain constitutional provisions, exhibits his disqualifications.

HIGH COURAGE.

American Boston, Mitchell, and Lightning planes had delivered a heavy bombing and strafing attack on the Japanese held harbor of Kavieng, New Ireland. Eight of the planes were shot down, and the American aviators were floating in the harbor. If they weren't killed in the cross-fire, they would be captured by the Japs.

Suddenly, a big Catalina flying boat, the Arkansas Traveler, swooped down, landed in the harbor, and took some of the stranded Americans aboard. Four times, while Japanese guns roared and anti-aircraft shells burst all around, the Catalina settled down in the bay, taking off a total of 15 flyers. The rough sea damaged the plane, but she returned safely to her base with the rescued men, some of them wounded.

The pilot of the Catalina was Lt. Nathan G. Gordon of Morrilton, Ark. THE TRIBUNE is not in the habit of nominating candidates for the congressional medal of honor, but we think Lt. Gordon has earned it thru a display of bravery that went far beyond the call of duty. If there is a fighting man alive who has done more to earn it, we have yet to hear of him.

Editorial of the Day

THAT HUSH-HUSH WORD.

[Cleveland Plain Dealer.]

In these times when most politicians never, never talk p-l-t-cs when they get together, it is refreshing to read that a couple of political war horses have gotten together to discuss practically nothing else.

Leaving the residence of John N. Garner after a visit with the former Vice President Sunday, James A. Farley said: "We discussed politics from every angle. Mr. Garner, like myself, is concerned about conditions in the nation now."

That is about as eloquent a slap as has been delivered to those persons who think that politics should be taboo in time of war. Politics is the warp and woof of democratic government, and it is gratifying to know that there are still a few of its practitioners who are both unashamed of their trade and capable, as is Jim Farley, of stating so succinctly that a discussion of the state of the Union inevitably involves discussing politics.

Adolf's secret weapon on the eastern front must have been the boomerang.—Dallas News.

Test Your Horse Sense

By Dr. George W. Crane

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers on page 21.

1. Which one of these types of fuel normally produces the least smoke?
   Coke Wood Bituminous Coal Anthracite
2. Which one of these is not a member of a football team?
   Fullback Tailback Halfback Quarterback
3. Which one of these words is inappropriate in this general grouping?
   Absent Vacant Empty Void
4. A person belonging to a tong would have what skin color?
   Red Yellow Black White
5. Which one of these terms usually indicates the deepest emotion?
   Longing Wishing Hoping Suspecting
6. Chickens are divided into three groups; namely, the egg producers, the meat producers, and the general purpose fowls. You deserve one point for each correct judgment in classifying the following. Place a check mark under the appropriate heading for each.

	Egg.	Meat.	Both.
Rhode Island Red	....	....	....
Minorca	....	....	....
Brahma	....	....	....
Plymouth Rock	....	....	....
Leghorn	....	....	....

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

Reg. U. S. Pat. Office.

REMINISCENCE.

It was about a quarter of a century ago that the initials of the present sub-tenant of this column first appeared in A Line o' Type or Two, graciously admitted there by its founder, B. L. T. The yellowed clipping still rests between the leaves of the old French grammar, over which we struggled for an hour or more to make sure of being right in the use of a complicated verb form—for the Linemaster of that distant day was a pitiless spotter of phony French and a constant terror to the holty-toity menu writers who sought to justify the price of bread pudding by giving it mysterious names, all prettified with cedillas and other diacritical decor.

Our quip was based on the discovery that the word legs in French meant legacy and not the nether loveliness of the chorus. We had been astonished at the Art institute that afternoon to see in the Luxemburg exhibition of paintings a chaste landscape with the inscription, "Legs de la Princesse Mathilde." So we sent it to the Line with the labored remark, "Mon cher, vous auriez du les voir, mais damficould."

In the morning there it was!

Another memory: Shortly before the Republican party divided and so permitted the election of Woodrow Wilson to the White House we, new in Chicago, visited the old office of THE TRIBUNE at Madison and Dearborn sts. and asked for a job. A courteous gentleman pigeonholed our name and assured us that if occasion arose we would receive a call.

Thirty-one years later we did, but not from the same courteous gentleman. Reward of patience!

WHISPERED PAEAN.

The Collins prose, which none may hope to weave
In counterfeit so deft as to deceive
The dévotee who knows its honest thread
And will accept no masker in its stead,
Is missing from the Line today. We grieve.

Its rhythm, color, mot juste, these we'd thieve,
And for the larceny expect reprieve,
If, on your breakfast table, we could spread
The Collins prose.

But since we lack the talent to achieve
So fair a fabric, may we, by your leave,
In space where prudent angels would not tread,
Leave all the things that he would say unsaid,
And from this borrowed microphone cry, Vive
The Collins prose!

"Not Noodles but Knoedels."

The Willow Street Debating society in Matt Schulien's place of refreshment [Feb. 11] reports that its last session was over the origin of the "Knoedel," or dumpling, and not the "Nudel," or noodle. "Every one knows," says the chairman, "that noodles were invented by the Spaniards or Cubans." [How about Chinese noodles, Matt?]

Nevertheless the Line o' Type's expert on European affairs, culinary and otherwise, before World War I., the learned and sophisticated C. O. R., has decided to arbitrate the rival claims of Austria and Bavaria in regard to the noodle [Nudel]. He gives first honors to Austria, on the theory that the Austrian cuisine has always run strongly to dishes prepared with flour. He thinks that the noodle invaded the adjoining region of Bavaria and found the inhabitants glad to coöperate.

"But when they start arguing over 'spaetzles'," says C. O. R., "tell them that the rivalry is between the regions of Wuerttemberg and Baden, and that Wuerttemberg wins."

Couldn't get an auto the other night, so I took my squaw out riding in a horse and buggy. We were whooping it up along McCormick rd. when all of a sudden she pops up with, "Don't you think diamonds is beautiful?" I agrees with her that diamonds is beautiful, and ain't thinkin' much about the whole business when she snaps back with, "O, I think diamonds is just too, too lovely for words, don't you?" I'm getting kinda in a daze by this time, but I'm out of the clouds enough to come back with, "Yeah, dere O. K., baby."

I don't say nuthin' more and all's quiet for a sec when she slinks over close and in me ear she coos, "I think diamond rings are especially gr-r-r-ran-d, don't you, Willie?" I'm gettin' number and numb-er every minit and don't think I'm able to speak. But when she adds, "; think every girl should have a nice diamond ring from her best fella, don't you, Willie, dear?" I yanks on the reins and shouts, "Whoa, Nellie, you're feelin' your oats!" Will Scarlet.

MEAL TIME—A PERIOD OF RELAXATION.

THE more we study the behavior of the intestinal tract, the more certain are we that it possesses sensibilities. For example, we are admonished to eat slowly, chew thoroly, and make of each repast a pleasant, restful interlude. The reason for these rules lies in the fact that the apparatus may refuse absolutely to carry on absorption and assimiliation unless it is reasonably happy and comfortable.

We have often noted the thin, nervous individual who remarks to his physician, "My food does me no good." As we would expect, the patient confesses to eating when tired or nervous. As a rule, he is in a great hurry and, in consequence, the stomach becomes overdistended with swallowed air. Thus it is that appetite fails and the digestive processes stop—at least, for a time. A few will observe irregular beating of the heart or even mild anginalike pains.

These manifestations are reflexes from an overstretched gastric pouch, with pressure on the diaphragm. We should not wonder when such a one encounters difficulty with heartburn, waterbrash, or belching. Whenever there is actual interference with the circulation, edibles may remain within the stomach long after they should be passed along into the bowel.

The sojourn at the table should be pleasurable and, for the best results, the interval should be one of relaxation and quiet, with enjoyable conversation. Strenuous arguments and wordy battles may well be relegated to some other time and place. If I had my way, the radio would not be turned on during the dinner hour. Exciting war news is not an aid to digestion.

While "bolting" is one of our most atrocious dietary sins, overfilling the "bread basket" is wellnigh as important. Rationing has perhaps had some success in lowering the heavy intake, yet those who have been accustomed to eating more than they need will continue to do so. This practice would not be so unhygienic if the daily total could be divided into five meals instead of three.

Under such a plan the gastric glands would have a chance. Furthermore, there would be far less likelihood of engorging the liver, which acts as a strainer and conditioner of nutriments that are absorbed from the alimentary tube. Only after they have been filtered are they permitted to enter the circulation.

For our older friends, if circumstances permit, a siesta after lunch and supper is highly desirable. Thirty minutes may do altho an hour is better. At the same time, we can caution about the ingestion of greasy, gas-forming material and too much bulk.

Many a victim of insomnia has been able to control the disorder by taking a dish of stewed fruit or a glass of hot milk at bedtime. One of my colleagues, a hardworking physician, keeps a vacuum bottle containing a hot liquid on his bedside table. If he wakens, he sips a glass slowly and invariably drops off to sleep. He has trained himself to consume small quantities of edibles at the table. This has the effect of reducing the load upon the heart and of promoting assimilation.

FUNCTIONAL DISCOMFORT.

I. T. writes: Is it possible for a nervous heart to cause pain?

REPLY.

No. There is such a thing as false angina, which is probably arthritis or neuralgia. Pain can come only with actual injury to the pumping organ or its blood vessels.

YANKS HAIR.

A. C. writes: What causes my young daughter to twist a hank of her hair constantly?

REPLY.

A nervous habit which must be overcome. Keep her hands busy at some worthwhile task.

EYE DIET.

M. O. writes: What foods should be eaten to make the eyes strong and healthy?

REPLY.

A balanced diet containing the basic minerals and vitamins. There is no one essential edible.

RUTHLESS ORGANISMS.

G. H. writes: Are the streptococci the most vicious of all bacteria?

REPLY.

Yes, to most of us. All disease-producing organisms are outlaws. Some are more incorrigible than others.

MANY KINDS.

A. R. writes: Is there such a thing as a rheumatic headache?

REPLY.

Probably neuralgia altho there are scores of causes of head pain. Rheumatism involves the joints chiefly. We don't wiggle the segments of the skull.

'PIT THEM OUT.

REPLY.

They should be chewed or crushed—not swallowed whole.

My problems aren't myriad.
There is just one. Period.
They left out the pardon
In my tax form jargon.

So what I want to know, Mr. A.,
And I swear to abide by what you say,
Is shall I forgive them
Their lack of forgiving,
Forget the whole mess
And just go on living,

Sympathetic Reaction.

International House at the University of Chicago has been taken over by army air force meteorologists. About a year ago a white mongrel with black and brown spots sauntered in and was immediately made the house mascot. As there seemed to be considerable doubt about his ancestry, the cadets at first called him Heinz, for 57 varieties, but later changed his name to Isobar, the meteorological term for line of constant pressure. Isobar was dearly loved, but one day was run over by an automobile, injuring one leg so severely that it had to be amputated. He now hops around on three legs, petted by all. Not long ago another stray, a fluffy affair with curly dark brown hair, wandered in on four legs, was adopted, and named Isallabar, meteorological term for line of constant pressure change. The cadets were fond of her, but rarely petted her as they did Isobar. Isallabar now has developed a limp.

A Native Returns.

Joe Friday, an Ojibway Indian from the Canadian north woods, stopped in Chicago Thursday long enough to complain about the red tape involved in using street car transfers and to write a letter to his wife and his dog. He wrote to his wife in the customary manner, but varied the routine in addressing his dog. In writing to the latter, he wiped a clean handkerchief over his face and mailed it to his wife, who in due time will drop it at the feet of Teddy, the dog. Teddy, he explained, is a husky who reads things in handkerchiefs that have been wiped across human faces. His usual reaction is to bark gleefully and wag his tail in a delirious display of comprehension.

Joe Friday had an Indian name to start with, but he lost it thru a skirmish with an illiterate missionary. According to Joe, the missionary combined a robust religious fervor with an inability to spell, and when Joe's grandfather reported him ready for conversion, the Christian missionary baptized him but, being unable to spell, gave him the name of the day of his religious birth. Joe, being a Christian, too, was stuck with it, and not, it develops, any too happily.

Joe's great-grandfather had a part in the Fort Dearborn massacre. Joe says there was more to that fight than met the history books. The way the story came down to him, the Indian braves found a lovely white woman under the docks near the fort and were much more interested in her than the enemy. The chief, apparently anxious to get along with the war, was annoyed by it all and told the young braves only one of them could have her. So the boys began tomahawking each other to see who got her. This displeased the Big Chief, who was rapidly getting fed up on the whole deal, anyway, so he settled the matter by cutting up the girl, Indian fashion, and the war went on. Joe is inclined to think the entire matter a mistake.

INCOME TAX "EXPERTS."

Chicago, Feb. 16.—When congress enacted its present income tax law making nearly every person file an income tax return, it never contemplated that the act would produce a multitude of fly-by-night tax "experts." It seems that every bookmaker who has been closed because of the "heat" is now an income tax "expert." The fees charged are so varied and unjust that one must conclude that the sole motive of the tax "expert" is to extract a sizable fee from his client.

The courts have held that a person who prepares a deed for a fee is engaged in the practice of law. The Massachusetts Supreme court even held that one who prepares an income tax return is engaged in the practice of law because he must advise his client on the law in order to obtain the full exemptions.

Neither the local bar association nor the lawyers guild has done anything to curb the present income tax "expert" racket. If the legal profession cannot meet this problem, congress should provide that every person who styles himself an income tax expert must be licensed by the internal revenue bureau. RICHARD J. APPLES AND SAUCE.

Berwyn, Ill., Feb. 8.—The humble apple is probably more generally grown than any fruit in the United States. The crop was at least fair last season and in spite of this fact thousands of bushels in the several states go to waste annually. Apples [mostly western] are selling for the highest prices known to the American market, the range in price at retail being from $3.50 to $8 a bushel. Apples like many other fruits and vegetables are sold by the pound. If you keep the doctor away, it will not be due to the price and point administration at Washington. Apple sauce can be and is made of low grade apples. But if you want to slip a pound can into your shopping bag you must give up 20 points, which is from two to four times the number you give up for meat.

NEW DEAL POST-WAR PLANNING.

Dubuque, Ia., Feb. 5.—I think it's about time the New Dealers stopped peddling negative, pessimistic bunk on post-war unemployment. Some of the burocrats are now advocating a new preelection planning bureau, which no doubt would employ a few million more, for carrying out New Deal plans and schemes for making everybody slap-happy after the war.

There is absolutely no reason why there should be any unemployment in America after the war, unless the New Deal burocrats should, and God forbid, remain in power to continue their un-American dictatorial tactics of hamstringing business and regimenting industry, agriculture and the lives of all citizens.

This is no time for crepe-hanging. We have a lot of work to do in winning the war and the peace, and both optimism and confidence are needed. Why talk negatively and pessimistically about the future of America after the war? Right now is the time to be optimistic, because New Deal burocratic dictation and regimentation has less than a year to go! H. J. M.

PRELUDE TO PEACE.

Houston, Tex., Feb. 7.—America is infuriated over Japanese treatment of American prisoners and baffled in an effort to work out an immediate and practical plan of retaliation. Here is my suggestion: Have congress adopt the story of Lt. Col. Dyess as an official document and prescribe it as a preamble to the peace conference. It could be ordered that it be read as an introduction to negotiations unless the Japanese government has previously submitted acceptable evidence that the perpetrators of the offenses have been positively identified and adequately punished.

If proper response were not received in due course the article would stand as a monument to the men who held the line while we prepared to strike back, and as an everlasting warning that such barbaric acts will not be tolerated by civilized nations. O. J. CLEMENTS.

HOUSE UPHOLDS F. D. R.'S VETO OF BAN ON SUBSIDY

Falls 26 Votes Short of ⅔ Majority.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—President Roosevelt today vetoed the bill to outlaw food subsidies, and the house promptly sustained his action on a roll call which fell 26 votes short of overriding the veto.

Thus, for the second time in less than a year, the administration was left a free hand to continue paying subsidies, now running nearly a billion dollars a year, to reduce or maintain retail food costs, altho the program is opposed by a majority in congress.

Congressional opponents of subsidies served notice, however, they will renew their fight by seeking to include a subsidy ban in forthcoming legislation to renew the present price control act, which expires June 30 of this year under present law.

Have Decisive Majority.

The vote in the house was 226 to 151 to override the President—a decisive majority but still less than the two-thirds necessary under the Constitution to nullify a veto. Last summer, when a similar subsidy ban was voted by congress, the President vetoed it and the house failed by 27 votes to override.

The President fired his veto message back at congress less than 24 hours after it reached his desk.

Terming the bill "an inflation measure, a high cost of living measure, a food shortage measure," the President asserted it "would destroy the stabilization program."

"I cannot accept responsibility for its disastrous consequences. I hope that the congress will not compel these consequences."

Fears Price increases.

Contending the anti-subsidy bill would raise the cost of food in the bureau of labor statistics index at least 7 per cent, Mr. Roosevelt said it would mean the following price increases among others: Butter, 10 cents a pound; cheese, 8 cents; hamburger, 4 cents; sliced ham 6½ cents; milk, 1 cent a quart, and bread, 1 cent a loaf.

After today's vote, which was not debatable, the President's message was attacked in the house by Rep. Wolcott [R., Mich.], ranking minority member of the house banking committee, who declared it was "part of a studied attempt by the administration to confuse the public on this issue."

Wolcott further charged the President was as much as "100 per cent wrong" in his figures on price savings thru subsidies. The congressman said the subsidy on butter is 5 cents, on cheese 4 cents, and on meat 3 cents, and asked how the chief executive then figures costs will rise by double that amount if subsidies are removed.

Expect CCC to Be Extended.

The life of the Commodity Credit corporation, which was authorized in the defeated bill to continue operations until June 30, 1945, technically expired yesterday, but actually the agency will continue its present subsidy and support price operations until enabling legislation is adopted. Rep. Spence [D., Ky.], chairman of the house banking committee, today introduced a resolution to continue CCC until June 30 of next year and predicted it will be rushed thru congress next week.

WIND CHANGES; BACTERIA COUNT NOT DANGEROUS

Tests completed yesterday in the health department laboratories showed that the coliform count in samples of water taken at the Dunne crib Wednesday were below the danger mark of 50 per 100 cubic centimeters of water established by the United States public health service. The count at 2 a. m. was 7.8 and at 8 a. m. 46. A change in wind direction and a lessening in the turbulence of the waters were responsible for the drop from 790 per 100 cubic centimeters of water recorded Tuesday, Commissioner of Public Works Hewitt said.

CHARGES REDS USED LAGUARDIA TO REBUFF LITHS

Lawyer Cites Daily Worker Propaganda.

Mayor Fiorello La Guardia promised to "welcome" a convention representing a million Americans of Lithuanian descent to New York City two weeks ago, but broke his word because of Communist pressure, Anthony A. Olis, Chicago attorney, charged yesterday.

"New York newspaper men told us the Daily Worker did the dirty work," Olis said. "We learned that the Daily Worker had broadcast the lie that the convention of citizens of Lithuanian extraction was a Fascist and Nazi meeting. Two weeks earlier Mayor La Guardia had promised readily that he would make the address of welcome.

But La Guardia Meets Russians.

"When the day for the address came, he sent word that he couldn't possibly make it. The reporters ccvering the meeting then told us about the word the Daily Worker had sent around. In the next day's papers there appeared a picture of the Russian consul and two Russian army officers calling on Mayor La Guardia."

Olis is attorney for the League for the Liberation of Lithuania, the American Friends of Lithuania, and the Eastern Federation of Lithuanian organizations, all, he declared, working for the freedom and independence of Lithuania at the peace table.

Aims Clash with Molotov Plan.

He said the former two groups have their headquarters in Cleveland, O., and the federation offices in Brooklyn. At the convention to which La Guardia had promised to make an address of welcome were several hundred delegates of the Lithuanian organizations representing their million compatriots.

"The Communists are fighting these good American organizations because their aims do not agree with the Molotov plan, under which it is proposed to make Lithuania No. 14 of the 16 soviet republics to be created," Olis continued.

"Other things indicating Communist pressure have happened. For instance, we were promised a proclamation by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, which did not materialize. We have scrolls from the governors of Illinois, Michigan and Ohio, proclaiming Feb. 16 as Republic of Lithuania day. In Maryland this was done several years ago by an act of the legislature.

Seek to Boost Cause in U. S.

"There is no question the Communists are trying to exploit the Russian situation for the purpose of promoting communism in the United States. The Reds are operating among the Liths thru the Lithuanian Workers alliance and the Lithuanian Literary society.

"Officers of these Communist front organizations are members of the editorial staffs of the two Communist dailies circulated among Liths, the Vilnis of Chicago and the Laisve of Brooklyn, both as definitely Communist as the Daily Worker."

Olis said an application by the Lithuanian War Relief society for inclusion in the National War fund, has met with a flood of "mysterious protests." He said those also were communistic in origin. Letters, he said, had branded the relief organization as "Republican" or pro-Nazi. He said his groups had been given a hearing on these false reports Jan. 18, but had not been notified of the outcome.

ILLINOIS FLYER GETS D. S. C.

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC HDQ., Feb. 10 [Delayed]—[AP].—Tech. Sgt. John B. Seper of East Carondelet, Ill., has been awarded the distinguished flying cross for "heroism in flight and exceptional and outstanding accomplishment in the face of great danger."

4TH TERM DRIVE CAUSES RESPITE FOR REDS IN CIO

Communism within the CIO will be permitted to extend itself until after the Presidential election without interference even from conservative CIO leaders who in the past have fought it, it was learned yesterday, because all factions have agreed on a fourth term for President Roosevelt.

An example of this attitude was seen in an election battle now in progress at the big Chicago Studebaker war plant, where thousands of workers again are trying to wrest control of their union, local 998 of the CIO United Automobile Workers' union, from Communists.

This group lost control recently after THE TRIBUNE had exposed its leaders' Communist affiliations, but they have regained dominance because the UAW international, headed by R. J. Thomas, has refused to oust the Reds.

Reds Seeking Reëlection.

Nominations for the Studebaker local election to be held in the next several weeks will be received tomorrow at a meeting of the union in the Hamilton hotel. Running for reëlection, despite the fact they were exposed several months ago as Communists, will be Gertrude Selig, recording secretary, and Carl Swanson and Evelyn Fargo, members of the plant bargaining committee.

These three have put forth a complete Communist ticket for offices in the union. Their ticket will be supported by a fourth Communist official, of local 998, Lillian Portnoy, union steward.

Records of the four Communist officials follow:

Carl Swanson, chairman of the bargaining committee and "boss" of the local, recorded in many files as a member of the Communist party. He was born in Harvey in 1914.

Member of "Master" Committee.

Gertrude Selig, alias Giles, born in New York City, Nov. 1911, recording secretary of the local. In 1939 she was executive director of the International Workers' order; in 1941 and 1942 she was active in the Young Communists' league; in July, 1941, she was a delegate at Philadelphia to the American Youth Congress, which, it is charged, is Communist dominated. She is a member of the "master" committee of the Communist party and was in charge of distribution of Communist pamphlets at the University of Chicago and at Northwestern university. She was active in the campaign to free Earl Browder.

Evelyn Fargo, member of the union bargaining committee, born in Chicago. Went to work at the plant in June, 1942. She is associated with the American Youth congress and is a member of the International Workers' order, a Red affiliate.

Lillian Portnoy, union steward. She is president of the Victor Barron branch of the Young People's Communist league and distributed Communist printed matter.

When these union officials' Communist connections were exposed, members of the UAW international executive board then fighting the Reds pointed out that action must be taken because the union constitution prohibited Communists from holding any office.

At the same time, Thomas, international president of the UAW, said if nothing were done before, "these Communists will certainly be taken care of at the next election in the local." Now the election is at hand, with the Communists battling for reëlection and no effort being made by the international to stop them, according to conservative members.

Strategy of Election Board.

The anti-Communist leaders in Studebaker battle say they are attempting to get the right workers' names on the ballot. They insist the workers who are out to beat the Communist candidates must agree on whom they will support in order to keep the Reds from taking a tighter grip on the union.

Loyal workers charge the Communists control the election committee. They say this committee has ordered the election held on a Sunday in a loop hotel, instead of allowing the union members to vote at or near the plant on a working day. They add the Reds hope to win by compelling many to drive miles if they wish to vote.

It is charged the Reds are trying to gain votes by promising to win installation of an "incentive plan," which will increase wages. Leaders fighting the Red ticket say they are "getting the truth" to the workers—that such a plan was contemplated by the war man power commission long before the Reds heard of it, and that union officials will have no choice about whether it is put in or not.

FREE POLICEMAN IN SHOOTING OF BOY ON TROLLEY

Case Too Weak, Says Judge M'Garry.

Two charges of assault with intent to kill, placed against Patrolman Bernard Sweeney, 50, of the Chicago Lawn station after he wounded Dominick Rozich, 16, of 3528 Wells st., on a south side street car Jan. 8, were dismissed in Felony court yesterday by Judge Joseph H. McGarry.

After a day long hearing during which Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Rozich, parents of the wounded boy, whose wound necessitated amputation of his leg, made speeches denouncing Sweeney, the judge held that the case was not strong enough to warrant holding Sweeney to the grand jury.

Admonishes Youths in Car.

Sweeney, who was not in uniform when the shooting happened, testified the car was crowded with young persons and that he told them they should remember they were on a car and not a playground, and behave. Then, he said, Kenneth Krenzelak, 17, of 309 W. 42d st., who previously testified that he had spent the afternoon in taverns, noticed a Negro conductor sitting in the car.

"He said, 'When did they start putting Negroes on street cars, and I told him to mind his own business,' Sweeney said. "Then he knocked me down and I was kicked a couple of times. I pulled my coat over my face to protect it. As I was getting up I drew my gun and fired into the floor to scare them, as I couldn't see and thought more than one was on me. I had no intention of hitting any one."

Can't Remember Fight.

Charles Wilson, a ballistics expert, testified that most of the bullet that hit Rozich, who was standing at the front of the car, had been sheared off. He said it undoubtedly had richocheted and had hit at least two hard objects before it hit the boy.

Krenzelak testified that he and John Hoffman, father of his girl friend, visited three taverns the afternoon of the shooting, staying in one more than three hours while he drank "two shots and about seven beers."

"I can't remember just what happened on the car or whether or not I hit Sweeney," he testified. "Things happened too fast. But I wasn't drunk. I had just enough."

OPA Boosts Prices 6% for Rubber Footwear

Rubber galoshes and boots will cost more next month but will wear longer, the OPA said. Retail prices of such footwear now in production will be 6 per cent higher, but it will contain more synthetic and less reclaimed rubber, it was announced, than the present "victory" lines.

POLISH CABINET CHANGES HINTED IN RED DISPUTE

LONDON, Feb. 18 (AP).—The cabinet of the Polish government in London may resign to remove soviet objection to some of its members considered anti-Russian, it was indicated today.

However, the opinion was widely held in London that the Poles had waited too long to accept soviet terms and that the Russians would set up a government of Poles inside Poland friendly to the soviet union. Others believed that the Russians would rather make up with the Polish government in London, already recognized by Britain and the United States.

Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, premier of the Polish government, has held long conferences with Prime Minister Churchill, who was reported to have sent a second message to Premier Stalin. If the Churchill-Stalin negotiations break down, some members of the Polish cabinet may resign in protest against further submission to Russian demands. This presumably would leave Mikolajczyk free to form a cabinet capable of dealing with the Russians.

Blaze Destroys Garage and Truck on South Side

Fire destroyed a garage and truck owned by William Campbell at the rear of his home at 1439 W. 109th st. early yesterday.

"I hope she plants some more of those red raspberries that grew so tall last year. George loved them on his Wheaties."

Good thing George doesn't depend on his neighbors to grow Wheaties. That famous "second helping" flavor makes your "Breakfast of Champions" a must. Better check on your supply of Wheaties. Empty packages are not popular with Wheaties eaters.

Small Chance of Starving Nazis, Farm Experts Say

BY GAIL COMPTON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 18.—There is little chance that starvation or famine will play any part in bringing the war to an end, as foreign agriculture, altho changed considerably, has been stimulated to greater production by the war, and even in enemy occupied Europe food production has declined only slightly.

This picture of the food output of other nations was drawn by two speakers today before more than 500 people attending the opening sessions of the 7th annual national farm institute meeting. The speakers were Eric Englund, chief agricultural economist for the office of foreign agricultural relations for the department of agriculture, and Karl Brandt, economist of the food research institute of Stanford university.

Foreign Agriculture Changes.

Food production in many countries has advanced, Englund declared, and food shortages in any area usually are a result of poor transportation facilities rather than an actual lack of food.

The pattern of foreign agriculture has changed considerably, he said. Deficit food producing countries have curtailed the production of animal foods and increased or maintained the production of vegetal foods. Surplus producing countries have emphasized animal production more than food crops.

Outside of war torn Europe more food is being produced than ever before in history, he said. Food production in terms of calories now is 90 per cent of pre-war production on the continent, he added.

Tells of Russia's Plight.

In giving one of the first clear pictures of agricultural conditions in Russia, Englund said that one seldom finds any man between the ages of 17 and 55 on the farms. Almost all of the work is being done by women, children, and old men. Tractors are missing from the farm scene as most of them are at the front. Horses are scarce and much of the plowing is done with cows. Some milk, butter and eggs are available for small children and nursing mothers, but there is not enough meat to supply a balanced diet for the mass of people, he said.

Brand told the audience that the Nazis have set up an excellent food program centrally controled from Berlin. Production has been stimulated by good crop prices and the Germans have scientifically farmed every available acre of their captured countries.

No Chance of Nazis Starving.

He said there is no chance of Germany starving as food production has been greatly increased, the production of farm machinery has been adequate to meet needs, and there is a good supply of man power to work the farms.

"European agriculture is in as good, if not better, shape than it was when the war started," he said.

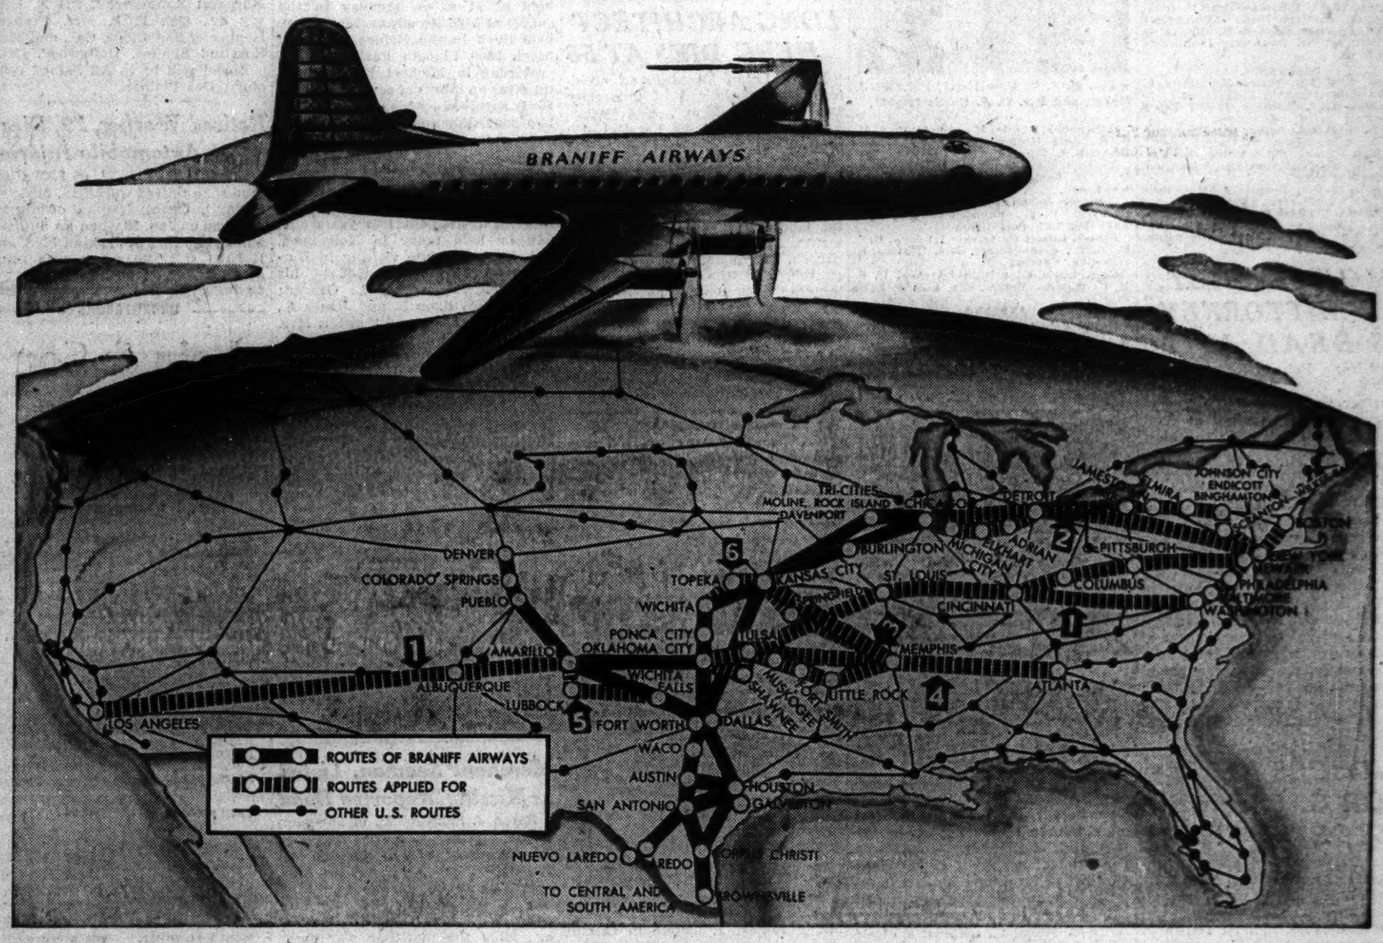
To Better Serve
THE PUBLIC CONVENIENCE AND NECESSITY

In creating the Civil Aeronautics Act of 1938, the Congress of the United States provided for nationwide extension of the benefits of air transportation. It stated that there should be considered "as being in the public interest, and in accordance with the public convenience and necessity... development of an air transportation system properly adapted to... the needs of the... domestic commerce of the United States."

In keeping with this thought, Braniff Airways has planned and presented to the Civil Aeronautics Board for its consideration extension of its existing routes so as to provide an air transportation system devised to make available thru-plane, one-company air service between the Central and Southwest and their economic, social and cultural neighbors.



BRANIFF'S PROPOSED DOMESTIC ROUTES...

1. BOSTON-LOS ANGELES—a new cross-country route—shorter than any route now in existence and providing transcontinental air service to cities not now so served.

2. CHICAGO-NEW YORK—providing air service between the industrial Northeast and the vital markets of the Central and Southwest.

3. KANSAS CITY-MEMPHIS—a shorter line serving better the Kansas City area and the deep South... a new shortcut to and from Florida.

4. OKLAHOMA CITY-ATLANTA—a new Northwest-to-Southeast route connecting Colorado and the deep South, surmounting that great natural barrier, the Mississippi River.

5. LUBBOCK AS INTERMEDIATE POINT—connecting the markets of the Texas Panhandle—making all the Panhandle more easily accessible by air transportation.

6. TOPEKA AS INTERMEDIATE POINT—designed to eliminate the isolation of Topeka and to connect it by air with Chicago and the East, as well as the Southwest and Latin America.

S. Z. MITCHELL, ONCE 'RICHEST MAN,' DIES AT 81

New York, Feb. 18 [Special].—Sidney Z. Mitchell, 81, the "richest man in the world" until he lost more than a billion dollars in the 1929 stock market crash—but all on paper—died last night at his home here following a long illness.

His rise to fabulous wealth was gained thru the financial ramifications of Thomas A. Edison's incandescent light companies, in which he once worked as a laborer.

In June, 1929, he was said to have had enough options at $25 each on common stock of American and Foreign Power, then selling at $199 a share, that his profit would have been $1,235,821,776—that is, if he could have unloaded the 7,102,424 shares without depressing the market. By November the stock had dropped to $56, giving him a paper loss of more than a billion dollars on that holding alone.

He was a pioneer in building the vast super-power systems of the country. In 1933 he retired as chairman of the board of Electric Bond and Share, which he had organized. He was then a director of 34 corporations. His first wife, Alice Bell Mitchell, died when he was 80, and six months later he married her friend, Mrs. Neva F. Palmer, 62. A son, Sidney A., is associated with the navy department.

SHIPPING BOARD TOOTS ITS HORN FOR TROMBONIST

Files Request for His Draft Deferment.

BY LAURENCE BURD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—Draft age trombone players are considered essential workers by at least one federal agency, a house military affairs subcommittee investigating draft deferments for federal employes learned today.

Edgar Puryear, chairman of the government's central review board on deferments, mentioned to the committee at a hearing that a "musician" was included among a federal agency's deferment requests being reviewed by the board.

"What agency is so anxious to have music?" asked Rep. Sparkman [D., Ala.].

Puryear ducked that question by saying he did not want to "embarrass" the agency involved. It developed that the agency was the war shipping administration, headed by Rear Adm. Emory S. Land.

Deferment Request Denied.

"I want to hear about this," interjected Rep. May [D., Ky.], chairman of the military committee. "Is this man employed in the music department of some agency?"

Puryear—No. He is now a trombone player in the war shipping administration's band.

May—What's that? Something to promote war bond sales?

Puryear—No. Just the war shipping band.

A WSA spokesman said later the trombone player is 25 years old and is employed in the agency's training school for cooks and bakers at Huffman's Island, New York. According to the WSA version, the musician has spent most of his time on "paper work" as a member of the school's administrative staff, and has spent some time tooting his trombone in the school's band.

Many Stays Approved.

Puryear told the committee that out of 475,000 draft age fathers in the government, various agencies have asked deferments for 38,525, or 8.1 per cent. So far, he added, the review board has considered 11,943 of these requests and approved 1,514, or 12.7 per cent of those for whom deferment was asked.

Puryear explained, however, that 60 day induction stays had been approved for the 38,525 to give the board a chance to determine whether the usual six months deferments were justified. Rep. Harness [R., Ind.] charged that this was discriminatory to draft age fathers in industry, who will have to be called sooner than otherwise while the 60 day stays are in force.

FRANK VENNING, LONG ARCHITECT HERE, DIES AT 56

Frank Lotan Venning, an architect who specialized in university and church buildings, died yesterday in Highland Park hospital. He was 56 years old, and lived at 341 Woodland rd., Ravinia.

Among the buildings in Chicago which he designed are Kent college of law, the Chicago medical and dental laboratory, the Cloister apartments, Palmer Square Evangelical church, Bryn Mawr Community church, and the Lutheran youth building. Elsewhere he designed Methodist churches in Wilmette, Gary, and Whiting; St. John Lutheran church, Wilmette; Indiana university buildings in Bloomington, Ind., the Winnebago [Wis.] courthouse; the Marcy housing project, Indianapolis, and Arden Park Methodist church, Detroit.

Mr. Venning was an overseas army officer in the first World war. At his death he was associated with Edward F. Jansson. He leaves his widow, Margaret; two daughters, Frances and Lois, and a son, Lt. Jack, now in Europe.

MANUFACTURER AND WIFE DROP 3 COURT ACTIONS

Three separate legal actions involving Mrs. Doris Sager, 44 of 935 Winona avenue, were dropped yesterday. One was a petition for a writ of habeas corpus, alleging that she was forcibly taken to a sanitarium last Jan. 9. The action was dismissed by agreement before Judge John Prystalski in Circuit court. In sanity proceedings instituted against Mrs. Sager by her husband, Sol, owner of the Graphomatic corporation, were dismissed by Judge Edmund K. Jarecki in County court. Also dismissed, was Mrs. Sager's suit for separate maintenance before Judge Robert J. Dunne in Circuit court. It was announced that Mrs. Sager will visit a rest home in Battle Creek, Mich.

JACOB M. LOEB RITES WILL BE HELD MONDAY

Services for Jacob M. Loeb, 68, chairman of the board of Eliel & Loeb Co., general insurance agency, will be held in the chapel at 936 E. 47th st., at 2 p. m. Monday. He died Thursday in his home at the Parkshore apartments, 1755 E. 55th st.

WHEN COLDS AND CONSTIPATION

STRIKE TOGETHER—TAKE THIS FAST-ACTING LAXATIVE

When Colds are accompanied by headaches and acute constipation, you feel miserable all over. When a laxative is needed, trust Pluto Water. Although PLUTO works swiftly, it works by gentle osmosis, creating fluid bulk in the colon, flushing digestive waste, usually within an hour. Pluto is a concentrated, fortified and scientifically stabilized saline mineral water with all minerals and salts in complete solution. It passes through the stomach without disturbing its function, is not absorbed, and acts in the colon where physicians want a laxative to act. Try Pluto now! Caution—Use only as directed on label. You must get refreshing, comforting relief in one hour or your money back. In 25c and 50c economy bottles, also 10c size. French Lick Springs Hotel Co., French Lick, Indiana.

Thru the Looking Glass

Who said that only fools would hope to build a business on toiletries for men? Who said that men wouldn't be bothered with colognes and lotions and stuff of that sort made especially for them?

Men love them—and buy them. But even more women buy them for their men—and the men, because they hate like sin to go shopping, like that, too. And listen to this:

More in fun, we expect, than in all seriousness, a house that makes fine toiletries for men has run up a little something for the boys—a shaving bowl to top all shaving bowls. It's handcrafted from solid 18 karat gold, it's handsomely engraved, we're told, and it's housed in a jewel case setting. And it retails, if you're interested in such sordid things as costs, for $1,875, plus tax.

Even the manufacturers of this de luxe accessory for the man of the house, once they got started on the idea of a shaving bowl that would give all other shaving bowls an inferiority complex, can see the silly side of this. They suggest, delicately, that maybe the idea they thought was so shining isn't so bright after all, since it makes the cost of a mink coat seem so trivial and mama might raise the roof. They also suggest, as stimulating mental exercise for the man who buys this bowl—and it's for sale—that while shaving he estimate his life expectancy, multiply by 365, divide that figure by $2,000, and thereby arrive at the approximate shaving bowl cost per shave for the balance of his life.

The bowl, in case you want one, takes at least 60 days to have made. The point of the whole thing is that a humbler setting, made of plastic, for the same cake of fine soap, sets the man who likes fine toiletries back a modest sum indeed!

Travel Robes Are Useful for Home Wear

BY REA SEEGER.

Streamlined travel robes, brightly spattered with tiny white dots, are neat for all purpose wear at home. Background shades are scarlet, china blue, lime green, and a copper tan. The collars, cuffs, and single pocket are piped with pristine white to match the tiny white dots. The tie sash-belt ends in long swinging white tassels. Such robes are as ideal for home and breakfast table lounging as they are snappily decorative for travel.

Price marks are amazingly low, for all the swank and fresh, crisp charm of such timely finds, so that precious all wool robes and house coats no longer needed for cold weather comfort can be packed away and these thinner rayons used instead. The texture is exceptionally smooth and silky, the colors fresh and clear, and the dots effectively small for the right contrast. If you don't need one for yourself, try one for a gift, for any bride-to-be on your list.

In the same shop are some clever new duets of nightgown and French panties in snow white and a pale mimosa yellow. These are simply fashioned and exquisitely seamed. Color is introduced with tiny embroidered clusters of cherries and leaves. Clusters of the cherries adorn the neckline of the nightgown and the left side of the tailored panties. They are ideal February gift items, and price marks are easy to approve.

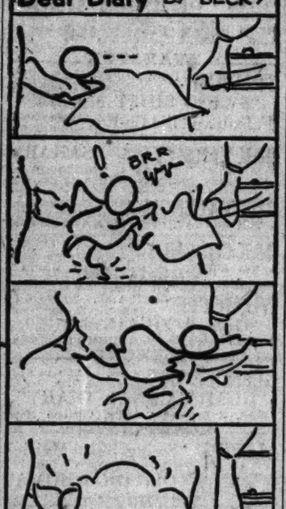
Dear Diary BY BECKY



White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

You Always Think You Will. . . .

You always think you will brush your hair 100 strokes every night and put oil on your nails . . . you firmly resolve that, henceforth, you'll eat what's good for you and never, never order some outlandish concoction just because the aroma from the next table is too tempting for your weak character.

You're sure you'll do your exercises every day—you "feel so much better" you tell your friends . . . and you'll quit wearing those high heels which every one agrees are bad for you . . . and never again will you buy a dress with a jacket promising yourself you "can wear it with other things" when you know perfectly well it never will go with anything except that one dress . . . you are going to be on time for every appointment and not permit yourself to slither in the office door five minutes late, even in a blizzard.

That's What You Think.

You always think you'll eat hot cereal for breakfast instead of struggling along with the help of a midmorning snack . . . you'll get eight hours of sleep every night . . . and from this minute forward you'll stop wasting time in aimless telephone conversation and be brisk and businesslike even when your girl friend falls out with her favorite lieutenant and you're dying to hear the details.

You think, looking ahead, you'll do some serious reading; perhaps you'll read Thackeray during February and Dickens during March . . . you're going to answer every letter promptly . . . and call on the parents of the boys you know in service . . . and remember your friends' birthdays, and what's more you'll not wait until Mother's day to say all those sweet little things to your mother.

You're going to pay more attention to your manners and be careful that hurrying to catch a bus or grabbing a seat at a lunch counter doesn't make you a grim creature . . . you think you'll learn to be more patient and wait your turn in line . . . you'll make a point of saying "thank you" oftener . . . and not be so rigidly righteous you can't say you're "sorry"—the soothingest word!

Good Intentions.

You believe you will give up being strong minded and always the dissenting voice in your club. The very next time something arises of which you disapprove you won't open your little mouth, no, you won't say a word, not even if it's a scholarship fund for the Roosevelt grandchildren . . . and you'll give up gossiping . . . and slang . . . and when Lent comes you'll forego desserts and get back your figure.

You're bound and determined to clear out your handbag every single night of your life . . . and to press your clothes . . . and keep shoes on shoe trees . . . you think you'll fasten up your galoshes . . . and you'll pay more attention to politics . . . and the very next time you take cold you're going to bed at the first sneeze.

You decide you'll stop kidding the boss about his thinning hair—which doesn't make him feel dashing . . . and when some one in the office double-crosses you, you're going to be big about it . . . you think you'll pay every bill every month . . . and when NEXT income tax day comes around you'll be ready for it!

Speakers Give Diverse Views of U. S. Scene

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.

It was the story of one seeing the doughnut and the other the hole yesterday at the second session of the Chicago College club's Alumnae college. Algernon D. Black of the New York Ethical society, calling for a new concept of citizenship, gloomily asserted that "there is more prejudice, antagonism, and intolerance now than at any time in our history," while John A. Lapp, veteran labor arbitrator, assured the women that labor-management relations have so far advanced in developing orderly processes for just and amicable settlement of disputes that the situation may be regarded with unqualified optimism.

Mr. Black, speaking at an evening session presided over by Nathaniel Leverone, president of the Goodwill Industries, declared that Americans are still tussling over racial, religious, sectional, and economic differences and have not been "educated to an understanding of the meaning of the kind of citizenship required for this new age of modern industry and science, of large cities and increasing interdependence between nations."

He advised city dwellers to move out of their limiting social circles and become acquainted with different national and economic groups in other communities of their town in order to grow up to "the free world that must come out of this war." Progressive elements, instead of wasting their effort in internal strife, he asserted, must learn the lesson of the united front if democracy is to survive.

Dr. Lapp, the afternoon speaker, reviewing his experience over a period of 25 years in arbitrating labor and management disputes, reached a cheerful conclusion that progress "beyond his wildest dream" had been made. That there are some "mean, selfish, contemptible, racketeering employers, and some mean, selfish, contemptible, and racketeering labor leaders," he admitted, but these, he maintained, are a negligible fringe. Forward looking management and the majority of unions have worked out procedures following the constitutional pattern of legislative, executive, and judicial action that have far outdistanced public understanding of capital-labor relations, he declared.

"Unity Thru Education" will be the theme for Alumnae college's closing sessions today. Students from the University of Chicago, Northwestern university, and Milwaukee-Downer and Rockford colleges will participate at 11 a. m. in a symposium on undergraduate points of view, over which Miss Ruth O. McCarn, counselor of women at Northwestern, will preside.

Dean Virginia C. Gildersleeve of Barnard college, Columbia university, will speak this afternoon at a tea in the Arts club, and tonight, returning to the College club rooms, the members and guests will hear Max D. Englehart, member of the examining staff of the United States Army-Navy institute, in a lecture on the educational program for men in service. E. Francis Bowditch, headmaster at Lake Forest academy, will preside at the evening meeting.

Women in War Work

By Kate Masses

Miss Dorothy G. Cahill of Evanston, American Red Cross hospital recreation worker, arrived in the North African war theater last week to take over new duties.

Before being assigned by the Red Cross, Miss Cahill taught French at the Roycemore school in Evanston, and previously had been an instructor at the Harvard School for Boys in Chicago. She also has been a dancing teacher for the social center bureau of the Chicago board of education. She was graduated from the University of Chicago High school and the University of Chicago. She also attended the University of Paris in France. She has a master of arts degree.

A member of the American Association of Teachers of French, she has traveled thru North Africa, Europe, and the Mediterranean. Her home is at 2327 Asbury av. in Evanston. Her mother is Mrs. Walter Cahill.

Miss Nancy Bastien, who has been in the motor corps for three years, has decided to enlarge her scope of Red Cross service and enter overseas service. She will enter three weeks of training Monday in Washington, D. C., after which she will leave the country as a staff assistant in recreation.

Miss Bastien, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin E. Bastien, 900 N. Michigan av., was graduated from the Masters school at Dobbs Ferry, N. Y.

Mrs. Caroline W. Budinger, executive secretary of the WOWs [woman ordnance workers] announces the organization of three new posts and the addition of more than 100 new members to the Metropolitan post, the ranks of which consist of women working in war plants in which there are no chartered WOW posts.

The new units are post 38, at the Consolidated Radio Products company, 350 W. Erie st., headed by Miss Jeanne Chenoweth; post 39, at Arnold Schwinn & Co., 1718 N. Kildare av., under the presidency of Miss Lucille Fiens, and post 40, at the Consolidated company, an all-Negro unit, headed by Mrs. Goldie Jerrells.

WOWs are women holding full time jobs in offices and shops of war plants. Their goal is the reduction of absenteeism and the maintenance of morale.

Executives of the Chicago office of the war production board are urging housewives to increase their collections of prepared tin cans for salvage.

Commissioner of Streets Lloyd M. Johnson has instituted an established collection service, with separate containers on each city garbage truck specifically designated for tin cans. The cans thus salvaged are dumped separately at various loading stations which send them to detinning plants.

Since the inception of the collection service, Chicago women have contributed approximately 12,000,000 pounds, or 5,357 gross tons, of prepared tin cans. Tin is a critical item, however, and the salvage must be greatly increased.

Prepared tin cans are those which have been washed, de-ended, and flattened to facilitate the detinning processing.

[This department reports on women's war activities and answers questions regarding such activities.]

Hymn Festival Set for Tomorrow at St. James' Church

A hymn festival at St. James' church, 666 Rush st., at 4:30 p. m. tomorrow will introduce the new hymnal of the American Episcopal church. Choirs from the city's leading churches will be represented in a special chorus of 40 voices, which will lead the massed choirs and assembled congregation in the church's nave.

In addition to featuring the new hymnal, the service will be a memorial to the late Canon Charles Winfred Douglas, hymnologist and chairman of the church's committee on the revision of the hymnal, who died a month ago. Sponsored by the Chicago Choirmasters' association, the festival music will be led by Dr. Leo Sowerby of St. James church, and the Douglas memorial address will be delivered by Dr. John Henry Hopkins, a member of the revision committee and rector emeritus of the Church of the Redeemer.

The new hymnal includes Negro spirituals and new hymns by such authors as Jan Struther, Robert Bridges, Gilbert Chesterton, Rudyard Kipling, John Masefield, Henry Sloan Coffin, Frank Damrosch, Harry Emerson Fosdick, Howard Chandler Robbins, and Walter Russell Bowie, along with the old favorites from Watts, the Wesleys, Faber, Dryden, Pope, and Tennyson.

Looking at Hollywood . . . . . By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 18.—Valerie Hobson, who was due here in April to star in "So Little Time" for David Selznick, has taken advantage of the time given her in England, and she's having a baby in April. I'll bet she can still have the baby and get here in time for David's picture. . . . Because of "The Sullivans," Lloyd Bacon was given a seven year contract at Twentieth Century. Looks as tho his next would be "Life of O. Henry." . . . Pity the poor stars! There'll be no more changing of private telephone numbers until the war's over. Because Susanna Foster can't get a phone, she's living at the studio while doing "The Climax." . . . O, my gosh! Frank Sinatra's going to do on the radio what Ginger Rogers' and Fred Astaire did in a picture—"The Gay Divorcee." . . . I hear Johnny Van Druten will close "Voice of the Turtle" when Margaret Sullavan leaves the cast. I suggest he get Geraldine Fitzgerald and keep it open. . . . Mady Christians is starting on a lecture tour.

I'm Just Asking.

It would serve Rosalind Russell right if Warners bought the "Nurse Kenny" script and starred Barbara Stanwyck in it. That's too important a picture to let die. It doesn't matter what Hollywood thinks. What's important is the amount of good a picture like this can do to help the suffering of little children. Nurse Elizabeth Kenny arrives here March 8. It will be interesting to know what she'll say, because the heads of RKO and Rosalind Russell raved about the original script when she was here before. You only have to talk to people like Mrs. Lawrence Tibbett, whose son has been under Sister Kenny's care, to know the good she's done and is doing. So why, just because a couple of fickle people changed their minds, should it stop a picture that may help millions?

Hi-Yo! But Not for Silver.

Maria Montez is back from a war bond tour, and her studio doesn't know whether to put her in a western or "The Return of the Sheik." Why cover up those curves that brought her fame, when they've got Turhan Bey, whom Metro's made into a star, to play the sheik? . . . It isn't every actor who can have his pet fed at the Mocambo for $15 a week. That's what Sonny Tufts is paying Charlie Morrison for his pet macaw. No, they haven't put a sign around its neck—"This bird belongs to Sonny Tufts." . . . Marguerite Chapman and Georgia Carroll, who sings with Kay Kyser, share a home together. Marguerite plays the lead opposite Kyser in his Columbia picture. Georgia warbles a couple of songs in it, too. . . . It may seem funny to some, but Virginia Bruce has a good chance of getting the nomination for congresswoman. If she does, she'll be the most beautiful by all odds.

Atta Boy, Joe!

Joe Pasternak took my hint about Lauritz Melchior's talents for pictures—he's signed him up. But where does that leave Abbott and Costello? They made him an offer to play in their burlesque of "Barber of Seville?" Joe, don't overlook Salvatore Baccaloni, also of the Met. He's a natural comic, too. . . . Joan Fontaine returned from the east a mighty sick girl, and went right down to Palm Springs. . . . Maj. Eddie Dunstedter and his Santa Ana air base band will give a 45-minute concert preceding "Up In Arms" première. Boy! Will you hear music!!!

Found a Mate.

Ruth Warrick was married to Citizen Kane in that picture. Now she's Mrs. Winkle in "Mr. Winkle Goes to War," with Edward G. Robinson. She and her husband, Erik Rolf, just finished playing man and wife in "Pilebuck" with Pat O'Brien. . . . A long time ago, Farmer C. B. De Mille gave Y. Frank Freeman a suckling pig. Mr. Freeman asked whether he'd keep it for him. Now you know what "Y." stands for [you win]. Farmer De Mille is now feeding 30 little pigs for him . . . Which reminds me, Jack Douglas wants to give me a Peruvian goat. The answer is NO!!! . . . Peter Helmers, whose Hollywood X-ray drawings you'll be seeing in a national magazine, also writes and acts. He was in "Cross of Lorraine" at Metro and "Days of Glory," not yet released. His X-rays will frighten you. . . . The Herbert Brenons, who've stayed together thru thick and thin, celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary today.

Aged in the Skin.

Bette Davis is made up to look 95 in "Mr. Skeffington." The makeup is put on over bits of rubber. When it comes off, fine lines remain underneath. She takes a massage every evening. She'll have to continue that for some time to get rid of those lines the makeup puts in her face. . . . When Doug Fowley was inducted, his pal Eddie Hall ordered him a specially tailored uniform. When it was finished he learned Doug had joined the navy. . . . Ingrid Bergman, with husband and daughter, had quite a time at Arrowhead Springs. I'll bet they know more about the mountains up there than anybody else here. They hike. . . . Phyllis Brooks and Edith Head are headin' for home. . . . Sonja Henie's skating girls took a vote. Their favorite crooner turned out to be Danny O'Neil, Irish tenor. Hey! How about Morton Downey? . . . Jack Haley has an urge to direct, so Pine and Thomas will let him sit in as their assisant on musical he's doing for them.

Helen White to Address University Women Today

Dr. Helen C. White, president of the American Association of University Women, will speak before Chicago branch of the organization at 2 p. m. today in the Cordon club in the Fine Arts building. State board members plan to attend, and the Chicago group also has invited members of neighboring branches to the meeting and the tea which will follow Dr. White's address. Dr. White is professor of English at the University of Wisconsin.

Movie Mystery Does Neat Job with Suspense

"WHISPERING FOOTSTEPS."

A Republic picture, directed by Howard Bretherton, featuring John Hubbard, and presented at the Woods.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Here's a fair little psychological thriller with much the same brand of suspense as characterized "Shadow of a Doubt."

As in the latter, the principal figure is a charming fellow about whose head slowly but surely gather dark clouds of suspicion. He bears a striking resemblance to a composite picture of a murderer who has been strangling young girls, and, in every case, he is known to have been near the scene of the crime. Unlike "Shadow of a Doubt," the story is loosely knit and has loose ends. . . . Note the screeching adolescent introduced, I suppose, for comedy effect.

Marcus Aurelius Borne is a bank teller in a small town, and resides at Ma Murphy's boarding house. . . . Everybody likes him and he likes everybody. Last person in the world you'd suspect of a crime. . . . One by one, fingers of circumstantial evidence point to him. . . . A government man is detailed to shadow him. . . . Just when arrest seems sure—an alibi is given. By some girl. . . .

As public opinion regarding him changes Borne changes, too. . . . Go on from here with the picture.

Mr. Hubbard does a nice job as the suspect. Good looking chap with an easy, friendly manner and a neat sense of theater. Other players are apt.

Direction was intelligent, but I'm in favor of a school for mystery movie directors, to be dean-ed by Mr. Alfred ["Shadow of a Doubt"] Hitchcock.

See you tomorrow.

Catholics Will Open Parley Monday on Industrial Problems

A Catholic conference on industrial problems will open two days' meetings Monday in the Stevens hotel under the patronage of Archbishop Stritch, with delegations representing labor organizations, church groups, social agencies, and social work leaders from many sections of the country. The Very Rev. Msgr. Reynold Hillenbrand, rector of St. Mary of the Lake seminary, Mundelein, will be the general chairman of the conference.

Principal among many guest speakers will be the Most Rev. Msgr. Francis J. Haas, bishop of Grand Rapids, Mich., and the Rt. Rev. Msgr. John A. Ryan, director of the social action department, National Catholic Welfare conference, Washington, D. C.

Questions concerning wages, prices and inflation, obligations of management and labor, organized labor, production, social security, and other subjects related to present and post-war periods will be discussed.

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1944: By Ely Culbertson.]

The bid made by South in the following deal is not recommended for those players who become panicky when they have to play a hand with less than eight or nine trumps.

North, dealer.
East-West vulnerable.
Match point duplicate.

NORTH
♠ A Q 8
♥ 9 7 4
♦ K J 6 2
♣ Q 10 5

WEST
♠ 9 5 2
♥ A K J 3
♦ 10 9 8
♣ A K 2

EAST
♠ J 7 4 3
♥ 10 2
♦ Q 5 4 3
♣ J 7 4

SOUTH
♠ K 10 6
♥ Q 8 6 5
♦ A 7
♣ 9 8 6 3

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 heart
Double	Pass	1 spade [!]	Pass
Pass	Pass

West, holding better than four honor tricks, might have doubled the one spade bid for a takeout, but in all fairness West's hand was not strong enough in winners to make him feel safe at the two level, vulnerable.

The orthodox response for South was one no trump, but in view of North's original pass, South felt that a trump suit might offer more safety. He certainly proved his point in the play!

West opened the heart king. East, who did not particularly want to ruff with his long trumps, played the deuce, and West then laid down the club king. When East discouraged the continuation of that suit also, West shifted to the diamond ten. Declarer won with the ace and returned a club. West won and led the diamond nine. Declarer did not even think of finessing. He put up the king and promptly ruffed a diamond with the six of spades. He then led a club to the queen, returned the last diamond and ruffed with the spade ten. When that bold play succeeded, he cashed the spade king, conceded two more heart tricks, and collected his seventh and eighth tricks with the ace and queen of trumps.

At a no trump contract South would have been lucky to win seven tricks, so the two odd he actually made in spades turned out to be an excellent match point score.

Many Factors Cause Changes in the Children

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

In speaking of knowing what to expect of children at different ages, one of the most important factors of their lives and in your management of them is implied. That factor is growth and change. Until parents accept the fact that with growth and development our children will change physically, mentally, emotionally, and socially, we are almost sure to get into trouble.

"Helen is into everything now that she runs about. . . ."

"Donald is getting so independent since he has been attending school. . . ."

All these worries about which parents write me are due to growth and change in their children. Try to keep this fact in mind. If your children didn't grow and change, you really would be the first ones to be deeply concerned, because it would mean that they were not progressing normally as they should.

Children must change. They must go from phase to phase: The little child, after being content to play alone, begins to crave companionship of others of his own age; the school child, after being obedient, emerges into the age where he doesn't want to be told what to do.

Our children cannot stay the same, and we must, therefore, expect them to change. Growth and development alone bring that about.

Let's see to what, besides normal growth and development, we may look for some of the changes which we see and which often trouble us in our children:

School and all that it implies; new influences and variety of experiences; contact with other children and grownups; the coming of a new baby into the family.

Illness of the child himself or of his parents; financial changes in the family fortunes leading to [1] a change of neighborhood and school, [2] a mother having to go to work and the children being home alone all day.

These are just a few of the things which influence the life of a child and will lead you to expect changes in his behavior and personality. If you can learn to expect changes in your son or daughter, and can, in a general way, trace the causes of them, it will go far to help you to deal wisely and tactfully with each phase as it comes along, and without undue worry and alarm on your part.

Curb on Delinquency by Community Effort Is Urged by Speaker

"So-called youth delinquency should more properly be called parental and community delinquency," Dr. Morris G. Caldwell, chairman of the National Council on Youth Delinquency with the National Civic federation, told members of the Illinois League of Women Voters yesterday. He advocated delinquency prevention thru community, school, and recreational programs aimed at developing socially desirable habits, attitudes, tendencies, and patterns of behavior in young people.

Dr. Caldwell emphasized the responsibility of civic and church groups, clubs, and welfare agencies in stopping delinquency at its source, saying "tho most people in the state sincerely believe it is more intelligent to prevent delinquency than it is to attempt to treat it after it has occurred, the reverse prevails in actual practice."

He called attention to the large annual expenditures for treatment of delinquents and criminals confined in penal institutions, compared to the proportionately small amounts expended for prevention.

Gay Fascinator

BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Star dust sprinkled brightly over the hair is the effect created by this new crocheted fascinator. It is crocheted in a dainty, lacy design which is simple to execute. Extremely fine wool is required.

Chicagoan Captures Individual Title in Bridge Tournament

William W. McGhee, 2840 Broadway, won the masters' individual championship yesterday in the Chicago Contract Bridge association's 44th annual central states tournament in the La Salle hotel. Robert B. Johnstone, 5326 Cornell av., finished second in the masters' division; Jules Bank, 5319 Kimbark av., third, and David B. Clarren, Minneapolis, fourth.

Mrs. Harry Lees and Mrs. Philip Steinberg, St. Louis, Mo., defeated Mrs. Merritt Thompson and Mrs. John R. Kelley, Indianapolis, by .17 of a point—611.04 to 610.87—for the women's pair championship. Third place pair honors were taken by Mrs. Mildred Cunningham, Waukegan, and Mrs. Jean Daw, Glencoe.

Hirsch High Senior Wins Legion Oratorical Contest

Melvin Cornfield, 17, of 8110 Cottage Grove av., senior at Hirsch High school, was named champion orator yesterday in the Cook county American Legion oratorical contest. He won over seven other finalists at Tuley High school in the climax of a series of sectional contests in which 500 students were entered. He will represent the county in the state finals at Woodruff Senior High school, Peoria, next Friday, in competition with four other state sectional winners.

Music Note

The Philharmonic Symphony Society of New York has engaged four guest conductors for its 1944-'45 season, the second under the direction of Artur Rodzinski. They are Pierre Monteux, George Szell, Igor Stravinsky, and Leonard Bernstein. Mr. Bernstein, assistant to Mr. Rodzinski this season, will leave that post to launch his career as a full fledged conductor.

Kitchen Pointers

By Mary Meade

"My son is in a combat area in the South Pacific and has asked me repeatedly to send him fried chicken," a reader writes. "He says another soldier has gotten fried chicken from home, and the boys are crazy about it. It was preserved some way in wax."

My department investigated this matter. Every authority consulted urged us to discourage all persons from trying to send home cooked chicken in any form. They knew of no way to preserve it safely for such a trip.

The general manager of the poultry and egg national board summarized reasons for this attitude thus: [1] Chicken spoils readily, and if it did arrive at its destination, home fried chicken might be poisonous to eat; [2] postal authorities probably would not accept such a package; [3] it would be wasteful to take a chance, and [4] the army sends frozen and canned poultry to these zones.

Bacteriologists consulted considered the idea absurd and hardly worth expressing an opinion on, altho they admitted certain types of dry salami, well packaged and sealed, might be sent without developing poisonous properties along the way. But chicken, no, never, they said.

Postal authorities say they haven't time to inspect packages to men overseas but that these packages might be subject to military censorship.

The concensus of authorities: Under no circumstances send a perishable food overseas. If not futile, the practice is wasteful and even dangerous.

We are compiling a list of foods which may be sent overseas if properly packaged. Any reader may obtain this list by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

Mrs. C. L. Kehl, Green Bay City, Wis.—Why don't manufacturers who make sets of dishes make two small sets of "creamers" and "sugars" with trays instead of one large set? It would be much nicer to use them at each end of dinner table and also for two tables of bridge. I've never used my large set but small sets to match dishes would be very attractive and useful.

Mrs. Arthur B., Chicago—I preserve the book bindings of our choice books by working animal or vegetable oils [such as castor oil or lanolin] into them with my hands, especially along the back bindings. But I never use mineral oils on them.

Joyce G., Peoria, Ill.—I make a good pan scraper which won't scratch aluminum by using a common clothes pin which I have split in half, lengthwise.

INTERCEPTED LETTERS.

A flush showed in Phyllida's cheeks. Miss Silver said kindly:

"I am sorry to distress you, Mrs. Wray, but it will be better if you will tell me what you know. At the moment Mr. Mark Paradine is under suspicion."

"Mark? O—but it wasn't Mark—"

"Mr. Mark did come back to see his uncle, but he did not reach the study until just before 11."

"Will you tell us who it was, Mrs. Wray?"

"It was Frank."

"Will you tell us what you heard? You did hear something, did you not?"

"Yes. Uncle James said, 'Hullo, Frank—come to confess?' and Frank said something, but I didn't hear what it was. I didn't want to hear. I wanted to get away."

Miss Silver's needles, clicked.

"Very natural, Mrs. Wray."

"Frank? I don't believe it."

"You mean, Mr. Wray, that you do not believe Mr. Ambrose to be the guilty person. You do not mean to imply any disbelief in Mrs. Wray's statement?"

"Admirably put. I told you Phyl couldn't tell a lie. She can't, so it isn't any use her trying. She just has to make the best of a bad job and stick to the truth."

Phyllida said "Elliot!" in a tone of protest. And then, "Miss Silver, please—it doesn't mean anything—it really doesn't. I mean Uncle James saying that, because he said exactly the same thing to me—about confessing, you know."

"He said pretty much the same thing to me," said Elliot. "'Come to confess, have you?' A bit grim, but it seems to have been his idea of a joke."

"No doubt Mr. Ambrose will be able to explain the nature of his business with Mr. Paradine. I think he will have to do that." She folded her knitting, put it away and got up. "There is something that I want to ask Lane. He will be busy later on, so I will see if I can find him now." She went over to the door with the bag slung on her arm. With her hand on the knob, she turned and looked again at Phyllida. "Pray do not be troubled, Mrs. Wray," she said. "The truth hurts sometimes, but, believe me, it is always best in the end."

Elliot and Phyllida were left alone. Neither of them moved until suddenly she lifted her eyes and gave him the same troubled look as before.

"Why didn't you write?" she said.

"Why didn't I write?"

She kept her eyes on him. The blue had gone out of them. They were dark, like water under a cloud. The color had gone from her skin, too.

"I thought you would write—but you didn't—"

He said, "You didn't get my letters—is that what you're saying?"

There was a very faint movement of her head which said "No." His face had gone so bleak that it frightened her.

He said, "I wrote you two letters. In the first one I told you just what had happened about Maisie Dale. In the second I asked you to let me know whether you had got that first letter, and when I could come and see you. I suggested meeting you in Birleton as I didn't want to come to the house. I got an answer to that by return, a quite explicit telegram—'Cannot meet you now or at any time. Please accept this as final.' So I did."

Phyllida sat quite still. Everything in her was too cold and stiff to move.

"What are you looking like that for?"

"I didn't get the letters." And, after a pause, "I didn't send the telegram."

Suddenly his face frightened her. The stiffness broke. She began to shake. Her shaking hands came up and covered her face.

"Don't! O, please don't! I didn't get them—really didn't."

She felt his hands on her wrists, pulling her up. She had to face him.

"Don't be an idiot child—unless you want me to beat you. Did you think I was angry with you? We've got to have this out. I'll tell you what I wrote in the letter you didn't get. Can you do that?"

"Yes."

"All right, no recriminations. Now listen! Going back to the smash-up—I quit because I was afraid I should murder somebody if I didn't. I've got a foul temper—I expect you know that. I can keep the upper hand of it as a rule, but that time it got away. I'd just enough sense to get out. I went back to London, and when I'd cooled off a bit I sat down and wrote to you. There isn't a great deal in it. I'm not particularly proud of it, but it isn't what you've been told. I can tell you what really happened, but I can't make you believe it. I can just say this—I can prove part of what I'm going to tell you, but if you can't believe me without the proof, it's all up between us."

"I'll believe you—"

"All right, then here goes. The June before we were married—we've got to get back to that. We hadn't ever met. We didn't meet until September, when Mr. Paradine suddenly asked me to dine. I didn't even know you by sight. I was working pretty hard and not taking much time off. Cadogan wanted me to take a week-end off and get right away. Well, I bumped into a chap I used to know. He'd got a spot of leave, and he asked me to join a week-end party at a place he'd got on the river. We went to a roadhouse instead—himself, and me, and a couple of girls—Doris for him, Maisie for me. It was a pretty rackety party. We kept it up late. There wasn't anything more in it than that as far as Maisie and I were concerned. She was the sort of girl that's out for a good time and can't get enough of it. She wasn't very old, and she was full of vitality—you could almost see the sparks flying. She was a good sort. . . . Well, that's that. We started back. I'd a bit of a hangover—I can't say whether that had anything to do with what happened. I don't drink as a rule. Anyhow we had a smash. A lorry came blinding out of a side road, and I wasn't quite quick enough. We turned over. The car wasn't damaged, but Maisie was knocked out. We took her into the nearest house, and of course we had to give our names and addresses. Maisie came round all right, and when the police had finished with us we went on. I drove her home, and that was the end of it as far as I was concerned."

VANDALS SMEAR THREE CATHOLIC CHURCHES IN N. Y.

Designs Resemble Red Hammer and Sickle.

New York, Feb. 18 (AP).—Three Catholic edifices, including famed St. Patrick's cathedral on 5th av., were daubed with red enamel paint today in the latest of a series of desecrations of religious structures in New York City.

Smeared with the cathedral were the Church of the Ascension on Broadway and the Church of St. John the Evangelist on 1st av., the latter described by police as "probably the second oldest Catholic church in Manhattan."

Police announced a $500 reward offered by the city for information leading to conviction of the perpetrators. Special details of detectives were assigned to guard churches in the midtown area.

Other Churches Desecrated.

Jewish synagogs and Protestant churches previously were subjected to vandalism.

Some observers expressed belief the figures painted on the Catholic structures were roughly drawn question marks and others said they resembled the Communist hammer and sickle. Church officials declined comment.

The paint on each of the Catholic structures appeared to have been of the same type and applied in the same way.

Six figures painted on the cathedral's massive doors and walls were discovered shortly after dawn. The paint was washed off by workmen after high ranking church and police officials were called.

Episcopal Church Damaged.

Earlier this week, the Bayside All Saints Episcopal church suffered damage estimated unofficially at $15,000. Police blamed two 12 year old boys who, they said, carried a snowball fight into the church and then began throwing hymnals and other objects at the altar and thru windows.

A city official some weeks ago reported instances of desecrations of synagogs and another Protestant churches. Headstones in cemeteries also have been broken and overturned.

TIPSY TROOPS CALLED RISING PROBLEM IN N. Y.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 18.—Increased drunkenness among soldiers and sailors visiting New York City on furlough is causing an average of two each month to topple from station platforms to be ground to death by subway trains, the board of transportation charged today.

Most such deaths occur in the early hours of the morning. They are in addition to minor mishaps occurring both above and below ground, in which military personnel is involved.

In addition to the deaths occurring in the subways, city transportation officials report that "great numbers" of soldiers and sailors become so stupefied from drink they lose their way and wander aimlessly about on the subway lines most of the night.

The problem of coping with the situation has become so aggravated, it is said, that it is taxing the resources of the subway system's police department of 400 officers.

Bids Asked on Seven State Road Improvement Jobs

Bids on proposed highway improvements in Cook and other Illinois counties were asked yesterday by the state division of highways. They will be opened Feb. 25. Local projects provide improvements in Lawndale, Harlem, and Archer avs., Mannheim rd., and 47th, 55th, and 95th sts.

Damage Is $25,000

Fire and an explosion in a cleaning and pressing shop on the ground floor of the 44 story Board of Trade building, La Salle st. and Jackson blvd., yesterday filled the building with suffocating smoke and caused hundreds of the 7,000 office workers to flee down fire escapes. Damage was estimated at $25,000, most of it caused by smoke.

Seven patrons of the cleaning shop's service while you wait department were in shorts and shirts when the sheet of flame shot thru the room and they didn't wait for their trousers before dashing into the street. Firemen said a static spark started the fire. Fire Marshal Anthony J. Mullaney said an investigation would be made to determine whether fire laws had been violated. The shop is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Herman Summers of 5665 Magnolia av.

The smoke filled corridors and offices from the first floor to the top. In the big trading room of the Board of Trade on the fourth floor it was so dense that it almost blacked out the boards on which quotations were written, but traders tied handkerchiefs over their faces to facilitate breathing and went on with their bidding.

Woman Burned on Hands Trying to Extinguish Fire

Mrs. Dora Kozisek of 4836 Wentworth av. was burned on her hands early yesterday when she tried to extinguish a fire which caused $50 damage to the kitchen of her apartment.

RATION BONUS IN PORK LAID TO GLUTTED MART

The five-point pork bonus suddenly put into effect yesterday by the office of price administration was forced by glutted storage houses and lack of cars to transport the meat to the east and west coasts, spokesmen for Chicago packers said.

"The record storage holdings were the direct result of the recent heavy run of hogs to market," said one. "Before it was finished we had to divert some live hog shipments to smaller cities, and even then nearly every packer in the country had more than he could handle."

The slowness with which government agencies entered the market when the heavy run was on was given as an important factor in causing the glut. One packer said the army and the navy apparently had purchased all the pork they could use in the near future, and had tapered off buying until large quantities could be moved overseas or to coast storage plants.

"Last season the corn belt produced 50 per cent more hogs, by weight, than normally," he continued. "North Dakota led the parade with a 90 per cent increase. I don't know of a single freezer house that has any space at all. If beef production had not been lighter than expected the pork situation would be even worse."

SLEUTHS SWEAR HEALY ORDERED HANDBOOK HUNT

Whenever Detectives Tony Eckhart and Richard Dickson, formerly of the Hyde Park district, weren't doing anything else, they went around looking for handbooks, they testified yesterday before the civil service commission hearing on charges of neglect of duty against Capt. Walter F. Healy, formerly in charge of the district.

They did so, they testified, on Capt. Healy's orders. Eckhart told of visiting a place at 1306 E. 47th st. three times last Sept. 24. When he went there the third time, he said, he found policemen from Commissioner Allman's office making a gambling arrest.

The hearing will be resumed Monday.

Dealer Saves 2,000 Gallons of Gas, Then Tells OPA!

New York, Feb. 18 (AP).—A Queens used car dealer salvaged 2,000 gallons of gasoline from tanks of automobiles turned over to him. He then asked his ration board what to do with the fuel. Ration officials, overcome by the incident, told him to sell the gasoline to a service station, which in turn should give to the board the requisite number of ration coupons. The dealer asked to remain unidentified on the ground his business "would be ruined" if he were found out.

MECHANIC HURT IN EXPLOSION AT FILLING STATION

Gordon Carpenter, 26, of 6119 S. Kilpatrick av., a mechanic, who suffered second degree burns yesterday in a fire at a service station at 4021 63d st., where he is employed, was reported in critical condition last night in Holy Cross hospital. Firemen said Carpenter was burned in the explosion of some gasoline he was using to clean an automobile engine. He was pulled from the fire by William F. Smith, the station owner.

May Use German War Prisoners in Oliver Plant

South Bend, Ind., Feb. 18 [Special].—D. A. Nye, area director of the war man power commission, said today that several hundred German war prisoners may be brought here to work in the Oliver Farm Equipment company plant and to cut timber from storm-felled trees at Hudson Lake, near here. The Oliver plant is being converted from war work to production of farm machinery. Buildings once occupied by the former national youth administration would be used to house the prisoners.

BUCKEYES DEAL ILLINOIS SIXTH LOSS, 52 TO 41

9 Boilermakers to Miss Badger Game.

Iowa City, Ia., Feb. 18 [Special].—The University of Iowa Hawkeyes pulled the Purdue Boilermakers from first place in the Western conference basketball race tonight and dropped them into fourth with a 46 to 43 victory during which Dick Ives scored 22 points and took the Big Ten scoring lead from his teammate, Dave Danner.

Iowa's victory elevated the idle Northwestern Wildcats to first place in the standings on the strength of six victories as against but one defeat. Ohio State took over second place with nine triumphs and two losses by turning back the champion Illinois quintet, and the Hawkeyes settled into third ahead of Purdue.

Ives' Total Reaches 178.

Ives led both teams with his 22 points made thru the medium of eight field goals and six free throws, while Danner made 13 on five baskets and three foul shots. Ives raised his total to 178 points, eight ahead of Danner, and 12 ahead of Arnold Risen of Ohio State who supplanted his teammate, Don Grate, in third place. Risen's total is 166, Grate's 161.

The score tonight was tied, 18 to 18, at the half.

Purdue will not be at full strength tomorrow night when it meets Wisconsin in Madison, Wis., it was revealed after tonight's game. Nine marine and sailor members of the Boilermaker squad will miss the Badger contest because of inability to make the return trip to Lafayette, Ind., within the 48 hour navy limitation time limit set for athletic trips.

Send for Eight Reserves.

Players who must return to the Purdue campus before the Badger contest include two starters, Paul Friend, guard, and Stephen Frazier, center, along with the two leading reserves, Jack Kennedy, forward, and Chalmers Elliott, guard. Others affected are Edsel Schweizer, James Walley, Sam Vacanti, John Charchalla, and Bob Myers.

It has been arranged to have eight reserve players leave from Lafayette to meet members of the Purdue playing squad in Chicago tomorrow in time for them to take part in the Wisconsin game. These include Howard Schmidt, Donald Schrenk, Herbert Hoffman, Ted Puchowski, William Kreighbaum, Howard Herriott, James Gustafson, and Lewis Rose.

OHIO WINS, 52 TO 41

Champaign, Ill., Feb. 18 [Special].—Ohio State scored its ninth victory against two defeats in the Big Ten conference by beating Illinois, 52 to 41, here tonight before 2,000.

The defeat was the Champion Illini's sixth of the season.

Don Grate, Arnold Risen, and Bob Bowen were the big guns in the Ohio attack. Grate scored 11 points to boost his conference total to 163 for 11 games. The 6 foot 8 inch Risen was so dangerous around the backboard that Illinois' freshman center, Gordon Gillespie, accumulated three personal fouls in the first 10 minutes guarding him. Bowen made seven field goals, six in the second half.

Risen Leads Scorers.

Risen, whose 19 points were high in the game, and Grate scored the first 13 Ohio State points. Illinois, meanwhile lagged in most of the early going but suddenly shot in front, 14 to 13, on three baskets by Howard Judson and one by Jim Seyler. Ohio made the next 10 points and had a 23 to 14 lead early in the second half.

The Buckeyes conclude their bid for their first western conference championship in five years against Illinois here tomorrow night.

FORT WAYNE'S ZAKHI FIGHTS LIKE MACHINE

He's Drilling Steadily for Tourney of Champions.

Bouts Tonight

THE program of fighting in out of town Golden Gloves centers tonight follows:

Kansas City, Mo., Star, finals.
Los Angeles, Cal., Times, finals.
Port Huron, Mich., Times-Herald, finals.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Virgil Zakhi, a young citizen of Fort Wayne, Ind., whose normal demeanor is of unusual quiet until he steps into a boxing ring, will be the old man of the Fort Wayne Journal Gazette team in the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions in Chicago Stadium on Feb. 28 and 29 and March 1.

Virgil's status as a gaffer is an honestly earned acquisition in spite of the fact that he's only 17 years old. He is the only 1944 Fort Wayne puncher who created a stir in the big show last year to return. Zakhi and the three Brothers Crosley are the four featured actors in the cast which Sports Editor Bob Reed of the Journal Gazette will bring to the Stadium on Feb. 28 to argue with the best fighters from 28 other cities thruout the land.

And He's Just a Youngster!

Zakhi identified himself last year, not only as one of the youngest boxers ever to reach the semi-finals of the Tournament of Champions, but also as a lad who is constantly being amazed by his own prowess. His modesty is such that he has told Reed that if he can surpass his 1943 performance, he will consider himself lucky. That performance, by the way, found Virgil moving along until it took the seasoned Gene Roberts of Camp Grant to eliminate him. His work was so impressive that he was named for the Chicago intercity squad, despite his tender 16 years, the minimum age requirement for competition. He was unable to leave his work in Fort Wayne, however, long enough to train with the squad which eventually trounced New York.

A paucity of bantamweight entries in the Fort Wayne tournament this year enabled Zakhi to fulfill his title defense assignment in right short order. He scored one rapid knockout and finished the job with a one-sided decision. Another youngster might have been content to rest on these victories until the journey to the Stadium, but not Virgil, who is training daily and diligently as tho he were not assured of his place on the squad.

A Machine with Gloves.

The Fort Wayne bantamweight candidate is a machine once he dons gloves, but otherwise is a casual sort. Last year, when the time came for examination of the quarter finalists in the Tournament of Champions, Zakhi was nowhere to be found. His coach, Frank Newport, organized a frantic search and was on the verge of defaulting. Finally, one of his teammates pounded on Zakhi's hotel door and awakened him from a sound sleep, to be rushed over to the Catholic Youth Organization just in time to be included in the draw.

Virgil is a smallish sort, but his size does not prevent him from holding down a job as a railroad fireman. He'll reach his 18th birthday late next month, and his main ambition before going into the merchant marine is to finish the job he started last year, that of winning a Golden Glove and going on to the intercity match with New York in Madison Square Garden on March 27.

DE PAUL BATTLES W. KENTUCKY ON STADIUM CARD

Great Lakes, Notre Dame Also Clash Tonight.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

De Paul and Western Kentucky State head tonight's double header program in the Stadium as the Demons round out a score of contests with the hope that the game will be their 17th victory of the campaign. In the opening contest at 8:15 o'clock, Notre Dame meets Great Lakes, the outstanding service quintet of the nation, in the second of the annual series between these rivals.

Altho the Irish defeated New York university in their last engagement, they scarcely expect to topple the Bluejackets who scored more than 80 points, a mark achieved by Great Lakes five times this year, in the first game of the series at the naval training station. Notre Dame's attack has been severely handicapped since the loss of Carl Loyd by navy enlistment, and opponents now throttle the Irish by concentrating their defense on Leo Klier, Notre Dame's only consistent scorer.

Coach Krause to Receive Gift.

Notre Dame's coach, Ed Krause, recently commissioned an ensign, makes his last appearance tonight. Alumni and friends of Notre Dame will present Krause with a gift immediately after the Great Lakes-Notre Dame game.

Western Kentucky is a newcomer to the Stadium, but the Bowling Green players have been scouted by Coach Ray Meyer of De Paul. Meyer has the highest respect for Western Kentucky's attack, but if the Demons carry on as they did Tuesday night in defeating Valparaiso, there can be no doubt De Paul will make another step toward recognition as one of the best of the nation's collegiate teams.

Have Balanced Scoring.

The Demons have balanced scoring centering around the pivot play of George Mikan, the driving dribbles to the board of Jack Dean and Dick Triptow, and the long distance shooting of Ed Kackan. Dean scored nine field goals against Valparaiso while Kackan hit eight times, six of them from far out. Mikan scored six times from the field and Ed Stump, normally depended on for floor work, scored four goals.

Great Lakes will exhibit the nation's highest scoring forwards tonight in Herman Schaefer and Paul Anderson, who starred several seasons ago on Indiana university's National Collegiate championship team. Schaefer, with 355 points, holds the Great Lakes' scoring record. Armstrong has 328 points. The Bluejackets have not been defeated since Northwestern took the New Year's eve contest in Evanston High school gymnasium. The Wildcats were beaten in the return game.

DAVIS FLATTENS MONTGOMERY IN FIRST ROUND

New York, Feb. 18 (AP).—Al Davis of Brooklyn knocked out Bob Montgomery of Philadelphia, former New York and Pennsylvania world lightweight champion, in 1 minute and 3 seconds of the first round of their 10 round fight in Madison Square Garden tonight. Davis weighed 142¼; Montgomery 137¼.

Davis came out swinging to register the biggest upset of the year. In the first 15 seconds he hooked a left to Montgomery's jaw, and the Pennsylvania Negro went down for a count of four. He was still groggy as he came up, and Davis caught him along the ropes, his left still winging.

A left to the jaw caught Montgomery, and he fell flat on his face in the middle of the ring. He was counted out by Referee Frank Fullam.

Davis was making his first start in the Garden ring since he was barred in November of 1940 for hitting Fritzie Zivic with a series of low blows.

A crowd of 17,654 paid $58,325 to see the show.

Defends Titles

Two Meets at N. U.

Northwestern university will be host today to the Big Ten swimming and wrestling title meets in Patten gymnasium. Preliminaries in both events will be held in the morning, with finals scheduled to start at 7:30 tonight. All schools have entered teams except Chicago, which will not be represented in either meet.

Michigan, undefeated in either sport during the season, is a heavy favorite to capture both championships. The Wolverines will be seeking their 14th swim title in 19 years. The wrestling team has finished second in four out of the last five meets. Michigan was also runner-up in last year's swimming meet.

Only two 1943 champions return to defend their swimming titles. They are Keo Nakama, brilliant Hawaiian free style swimmer from Ohio State, who set new records in the 220 and 440 yard crawl events, and Merton Church of Michigan, winner of the 50 yard dash.

Chicago Latin Finally Wins Title, 38 to 19

Chicago Latin fulfilled a desire of more than 50 years to win the Private School league basketball championship by defeating University high, 38 to 19, on the Latin floor yesterday.

Coach Bill Hoffman used only six players as the champions scored their seventh victory in eight league games.

19 in First Period.

Altho assured of at least a first place tie even if it should lose, the Latin team made sure of the title by running up 19 points in the first period while holding University to three.

The half time score was 22 to 7 and the winners continued domination of play in the second half by outscoring University, 16 to 12.

Groth Scores 14.

Guard Johnny Groth, one of the league's leading scorers, paced the offensive attack with 14 points, two better than Teammate Kane Kiernan, the center.

The University lights gained a measure of consolation by beating the Latin lights, 19 to 18. Heavy lineups:

Waller Five Wins, 57-47; Nears Title

BY MARK COX.

Waller High school's basketball representatives made their final serious bids for championship recognition in the north section of the City league successful ones yesterday by handing Von Steuben a dual defeat. They now await only games with Schurz and Sullivan, opponents the standings would indicate as their inferiors.

The unbeaten seniors compiled a second quarter margin sufficient to ward off a furious fourth period drive by the visitors to win their eighth straight, 57 to 47, and practically clinch the title. The juniors whipped their previously unbeaten adversaries, 51 to 41, but they must await the outcome of Wednesday's Von Steuben-Lane meeting before making their championship plans.

May Be Champions.

The juniors' plight was brought on by dropping an early game to Lane, their only loss in eight outings. The situation is this: If Von Steuben beats Lane, Waller will win as a result of its victory yesterday, while if Lane is successful it will capture the title as a result of its triumph over Russell Chappell's five, equal percentages not withstanding.

Making the most of its superior height and ruggedness, the host seniors were clearly the superior marksmen once their fast break started to operate in the second quarter of the game, which was devoid of concentrated defense, despite the 51 fouls assessed. Two members of each team were banished on four fouls while two others were expelled for unsportsmanlike conduct.

Rally Falls Short.

Eminating from the driving tactics of Joe Dorner and Tony Crement, who finished with 14 and 12 points, respectively, Waller expanded its first quarter 10 to 8 margin to 33 to 20 proportions by half time. The hosts led, 40 to 29, going into the final period, but the inspired Von Steuben attack, sparked by Dick Ament, who wound up with 22 points, once whittled the margin to 49 to 45.

The juniors had slightly more trouble winning, waiting until the final quarter before yielding the

N. U., MICHIGAN CLASH TONIGHT

Wildcats to Be Without Services of Graham.

Northwestern's basketball team, without the services of Capt. Otto Graham, who has reported for naval aviation training at Colgate university, meets Michigan tonight at 8 o'clock in the Evanston High School gymnasium. The Wolverines, now with a record of four victories and seven defeats, end their conference season tonight.

The Wildcats have won six games, including a 57 to 47 victory over Michigan in the opening game of the conference campaign. Wisconsin holds the only decision over Northwestern, having beaten the Wildcats, 50 to 47, in a double overtime in Madison after losing the first game of the series, 60 to 38, in the Stadium.

Title Hopes Rest on Game.

Northwestern's title hopes rest on tonight's game, since the Wildcats still must play Purdue at Lafayette, a difficult assignment, as well as the return contest with Illinois. Then comes the concluding two game series at Iowa, when Northwestern, because of transfer of navy personnel, will have only Ben Schadler of the varsity five which started the season.

Nick Vodick will start in Graham's forward position tonight. John Ward is the other forward and it is likely that Center George Felt will take over Graham's duties on the pivot play. Schadler and Jerry Carle will be the starting guards.

King Fifth in Scoring.

Despite the number of Michigan defeats, the Wolverines have a fine quintet. Purdue only took the first contest of the series with Michigan by two points in an overtime game and Ohio State was held to a 53 to 49 score in the first of those games at Ann Arbor.

Tom King, Michigan's star forward, led the conference scoring until last week and was ranked fifth with 143 points until last night.

HAWKS AWAIT BRUINS-LEAFS SCORE TONIGHT

Chicagoans Plot Means of Taking Fourth Place.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Chicago Blackhawks, relieved of practice chores, will sit around today, denied the privilege of being able to dope their immediate league potentialities until they get tonight's score in the Boston Bruins-Toronto Maple Leafs match in Toronto.

Right this minute the Hawks are in fifth place, a half game behind Boston and two games behind the Leafs. Inasmuch as the Hawks have to be in fourth place at the finish to be eligible for the Stanley cup playoffs, they have their dreams all worked out in re what should happen tonight and tomorrow night in games involving the Leafs and the Bruins and in their match tomorrow night with the Leafs in Chicago Stadium.

Hawks Favor Leafs.

The Hawk prescription calls for the Leafs to beat the Bruins tonight. That would lift the Leafs three games ahead of the Hawks, but it would leave the Bruins only a half game ahead of Chicago. If the Hawk chart is realized the Leafs and Bruins will become very fatigued in their battle tonight and will be wearier as the Leafs arrive in Chicago tomorrow morning and the Bruins get to Detroit. Thus suffering from fatigue, the Leafs will be easy prey for the Hawks in the Stadium game tomorrow night and the Bruins will be just too soft for the Red Wings.

With things working out thuswise, the Hawks along about 11 o'clock tomorrow night will be in fourth place, a half game ahead of the Bruins and again only two games behind the Leafs.

13 Games Remain.

After tonight the Hawks will have 13 games to be played to complete their regular season schedule of 50. Boston and Toronto will have 11. Should the Leafs defeat the Bruins tonight the Hawks would have two extra games, a possible four points, from which to glean the point that would give them a tie with the Bruins. The schedule otherwise favors the Hawks in the struggle for Stanley cup eligibility, in the matter of home games, meetings with teams they have beaten, etc.

CAMP GRANT AND CAMP ELLIS WILL BATTLE TONIGHT

Campt Grant, Ill., Feb. 18 [Special].—Two of the nation's outstanding army fives—Camp Grant and Camp Ellis—will meet in Rockford West High gym tomorrow night. Not having been beaten on their home court this season, the Warriors will be shooting for their 12th in a row in Rockford as well as their second triumph over Camp Ellis which yielded, 49 to 36, in Canton, Ill., last month.

CHICAGO LOSES FINANCE DEAL BY SEC RULING

Public Sale of Stock Forced by Agency.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

There was a stir in La Salle street this week over the circumstances surrounding the public offering of 400,000 shares of common stock of the Central Illinois Electric and Gas company.

The offering of the stock was made by a banking group headed by Allen & Co. of New York which nosed out a Chicago syndicate which had been negotiating for months for the purchase of the issue. The Allen syndicate topped the price offered by the group headed by Central Republic company of Chicago by a fraction of a point, paying $17.63 a share and reoffering the issue to the public at $19.125 a share.

Opened to Public Bidding.

The issue was thrown open to competitive bidding by the securities and exchange commission which refused to approve a private sale to the Central Republic syndicate altho it has exempted some other utilities issues from the competitive bidding requirement.

The SEC order directing competitive bids came after lengthy negotiations between the utility company and Central Republic. One of the primary objectives of the utility company was to distribute as much of its stock as possible in Illinois. Control of the company, which operates in Rockford and nearby communities, has been held by Consolidated Electric and Gas company, a holding company with headquarters in New York. The holding company is required to dispose of its Illinois subsidiary under the public utility holding company act.

As a preliminary to public offering, Central Illinois obtained approval from the Illinois commerce commission of certain accounting changes. This approval was necessary to give reasonable assurance that the company could maintain the dividend rate proposed for the new stock.

Proposed Deal Overruled.

In approving the changes the Illinois commission commented that the sale of the stock thru a Chicago underwriting syndicate would bring control of the company to Illinois and remove it from the jurisdiction of the SEC and the federal power commission. By its subsequent ruling, however, the SEC blocked the deal proposed by the company. The result was the awarding of the issue to a New York syndicate.

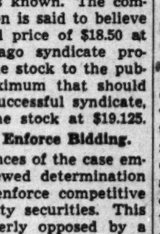
The result of the SEC ruling was displeasing not only to the unsuccessful syndicate but also to the utility company and the commerce commission, it is known. The commerce commission is said to believe that the original price of $18.50 at which the Chicago syndicate proposed to offer the stock to the public was the maximum that should be asked. The successful syndicate, however, sold the stock at $19.125.

Determined to Enforce Bidding.

The circumstances of the case emphasize the renewed determination of the SEC to enforce competitive bidding for utility securities. This principle is bitterly opposed by a large segment of the investment banking industry.

One phase of the case may bring about a further airing of the controversy over competitive bidding. After the SEC invoked its rule in the Central Illinois case the utility company entered into agreement with Central Republic whereby the latter would be paid a fee of $20,000 for its service in preparing the financing program. In approving the release of the securities the SEC approved all other expenses incurred by the company in connection with the financing but specifically exempted this fee. The investment company is expected to press its claim vigorously when hearings on the matter are held before the SEC.

People and Events



Dr. G. O. Curme Jr.

Dr. George O. Curme Jr., vice president and director of research of Carbide and Carbon Chemicals corporation, has been awarded the Willard Gibbs medal of the Chicago section of the American Chemical society for 1944. Dr. Curme is a specialist in the field of aliphatic chemistry. Formal presentation of the award will take place May 24.

Floyd L. Bateman, president of the Transcontinental Freight company and board chairman of Chicago Furniture Manufacturers, has been made a director of the Chicago Federal Savings and Loan association.

Directors of the Marblehead Lime company elected M. R. Mathews, W. E. Wing and R. A. Temple, vice presidents; E. C. Heubner, treasurer, and Edna N. Harpham, assistant secretary.

Arthur G. Vogel has been appointed manager of the coal traffic department of the Rock Island lines with headquarters in Chicago. He comes from a similar position with the Burlington railroad.

Baruch Gives Blueprint for Post-War Era

of the President, which expire this year. Such controls should be dropped, however, when there no longer is need for them.

6. Prompt cancellation of war contracts as soon as goods are no longer needed, with prompt payment for all completed goods.

7. Protection of small business during the conversion period thru special loans.

8. Enactment now of a post-war tax law to encourage new enterprises and let business know what to expect in order to plan accordingly.

9. Early planning of worth while post-war public works not merely make-work schemes.

In a press conference discussion of his recommendations today Baruch said:

"I don't think the government ought to get into business except in time of war, and then ought to get out as quickly as it can."

Red Flag of Warning.

Discussing disposal of government-owned plants, Baruch said he wanted to raise "this red flag of warning":

"Leasing must not become a hidden device for the government to compete with private plants; it must not become a hidden device for subsidies—by any name—to any one. Once plants leave the government's hands they must stand on their own feet competitively."

In proposing that congress enact now lower tax laws to be put into effect at the close of the war he remarked:

"At current tax rates few new enterprises or individuals could repay their borrowings out of earnings, less taxes, in any reasonable period of time. Until it is definitely known that post-war taxes are to be reduced, the launching of new enterprises and the expansion of existing ones will be deterred.

Aid for Returning Veteran.

In his report Baruch said the human side of demobilization should be of paramount concern so that the returning veteran will not have to look for charity or community help.

"He has rights above that," Baruch said. "When he returns to his community there should be one place to which he can go in dignity and where he can be told of his rights and how he can get them."

Among the functions of the "work director" proposed in the report would be demobilization of the military and naval men, developing machinery for job placement of veterans and displaced war workers, adequate care for returning veterans, physical and occupational therapy for the wounded and disabled, resumption of education interrupted by war, vocational training, and special employment problems of the war industries.

Calls for "Financial Kit."

To assure quick cash settlement of terminated war contracts, Baruch recommended a "financial kit" including immediate and full payment for completed articles, payment on uncompleted portions of the contract, settlement with subcontractors, government payment of interest on termination claims, termination loans by local banks with government guarantees, government loans when banks cannot make loans in 30 days, and expedited settlements for hardship cases.

Baruch said that Controler General Lindsay Warren's suggestion that Warren's office review every settlement would "quibble the nation into a panic." The resulting delays in settlement would force many companies into bankruptcy, Baruch contended. Review powers of the controler general should be limited to fraud cases, his report said.

A joint contract termination board, independent of the procurement agencies, should be set up within the OWM, the report recommended. The board should speed the handling of subcontractor claims, and Baruch recommended legislation to protect subcontractors in the event of insolvency or default of their customers.

Surplus Property Disposal.

The surplus property administrator, recommended in the report, would act as chairman of a surplus property policy board. Actual disposal of goods would be assigned to four major outlets—consumer goods other than food; capital and producer goods, including industrial property; ships and maritime properties, and food.

"The business of all the disposal agencies should be conducted in a goldfish bowl," Baruch said, "with the facts on all sales open to public inspection at the point of sale and each agency submitting reports to congress."

Early collapse of Germany "could result in such chaos and confusion as to seriously obstruct the most effective prosecution of the war against Japan," the report said in recommending drafting of an "X-day" [date of German collapse] plan now for the conversion of war industries to meet such a situation.

Baruch revealed in the report that the war department already has planned a tentative supply program, assuming the end of hostilities in Europe on a hypothetical date. The estimates are now in the hands of the WPB for translation into terms of man power, materials, and manufacturing facilities which would be released.

Early Review Urged.

An early review of programs for the production of raw materials for stockpiling, imports, subsidies, and premiums to marginal producers [those barely able to operate at a profit] was recommended as a move to cut waste. War contracts should be canceled as soon as it is seen that further making of the goods is not necessary, he said. He suggested that procurement agencies tell the WPB about possible cancellations "as soon as they begin to think about them."

As a primary aid to small business, the report recommended that surplus goods be sold in small lots, as well as large, and that the disposal agencies be enabled to sell on credit.

The report said special credit for small business, to assist them in the changeover and to encourage new enterprises, could be provided by extending the lending authority of the Smaller War Plants corporation [now limited to war production] and liberalizing the federal reserve system's authority to make industrial loans, now limited to 500 million dollars of such loans outstanding at one time.

"These two additional sources of credit would supplement—not compete with—the enormous volume of savings in the hands of individuals and banks which await tapping," Baruch said.

Must Keep Up Standards.

Thruout the report, Baruch constantly referred to the need for maintaining America's high living standard, and he urged that future planners of industry safeguard opportunities for education and research as essential to maintaining those standards. In conclusion he wrote:

"Winston Churchill has said he did not accept his portfolio in order to liquidate his majesty's empire. No American should accept a portfolio to liquidate American living standards.

"Our great wealth can be used or abused. The living standards of the world must be lifted—and ours go higher — not our standards be dragged down to those of others."

22 MILLION POUNDS OF FOREIGN WOOL ARE SOLD AT AUCTION

Boston, Mass., Feb. 18 (AP).—The country's greatest wool auction since the last war was concluded today with the sale of approximately 22 million pounds of 30 million pounds of various grades of foreign wools offered.

About 80 per cent of the Australian grease wools and more than two-thirds of the scoured and carbonized wools were sold, together with all but about 284 bales of the South American grease wools. Prices varied widely, but averaged near 58 to 60 cents a pound for the grease wools and around $1 for the Australian scoured and carbonized.

Offered for sale were about 74,000 bales of Australian wool in the grease, 12,800 bales of Australian scoured and carbonized and more than 5,000 bales of South American grease wools. Members of the trade, who described the auction as "very successful" said that the wools remaining unsold were principally types not currently in demand—including such grades as 70s and finer, and some that were too coarse for worsteds and too fine for blankets.

PRICE OF LAMBS AT 15 YEAR HIGH; HOG MARKET UP

Lambs sold at the highest price in nearly 15 years at the Chicago Stock yards yesterday. Consignments of choice slaughter lambs reached $16.95 a hundred pounds, the highest price since June, 1929, and the third highest February mark since 1920. The price was 10 cents above last year's high.

Advances in the lamb market were largely confined to the better loads. Other kinds ruled steady to weak. Many packers balked at the increased costs and bought sparingly around $16.50 the stock that lacked the quality of the top classes.

The hog market improved. Prices averaged $13.70 to equal the highest daily cost since Nov. 8. Sales ranged strong to 10 cents higher, altho some "lard hogs," extremely heavy butchers and sows, advanced 15 to 20 cents.

The cattle market was steady to weak.

CELANESE VOTES DIVIDEND TO BE PAID IN STOCK

Directors of Celanese Corporation of America yesterday declared a dividend payable March 31, 1944, in common stock of the corporation to stockholders of record March 11, 1944, at the rate of one share for each 70 shares held on that date—with scrip certificates for fraction of shares.

Dr. Camille Dreyfus, president, said that altho the net working capital is in excess of 38 million dollars, the directors believed it was desirable to conserve this and to finance a part of the construction cost of new plant facilities necessitated by the rapid expansion of business, thru retention of earnings rather than solely thru the application of current assets or an increase of indebtedness.

Egg Production Climbs to New January Record

Egg production totaled 4 billion 436 million eggs during January, the largest January volume on record and 17 per cent above January, 1942, the war food administration reported yesterday.

ASK EMPLOYERS TO AID LABOR'S TRUCE PROGRAM

Directors of the Association of Commerce at a meeting yesterday recommended coöperation by all manufacturers to further the CIO-AFL labor truce agreement under which workers may transfer to more essential war work without loss of union rights and without duplicate payment of dues.

The directors, at the suggestion of Holman D. Pettibone, president, recommended to members and other employers that "each earnestly and sincerely undertake to provide reemployment with the fullest possible recognition of employment rights previously accrued."

The AFL-CIO agreement, approved by leaders of both unions, grants workers a waiver of dues in one union when they change to more essential employment which involves membership in another union. Payment of initiation fees to the second union also is waived.

Fair Adopts Insurance Plan Covering Employes

Adoption of a group insurance plan by the Fair, Chicago department store, including sickness, accident, and hospital expense benefits, and life insurance, was announced yesterday. Approximately 1,600 employes will be covered by the plan

80 Million VT Loan Granted Studebaker

A VT loan agreement for 80 million dollars, one of the largest made under government credit arrangements for expediting war production and providing working capital after federal war contract termination, was signed with 25 banks yesterday by the Studebaker corporation.

H. S. Vance, Studebaker chairman, announced at South Bend, Ind., that the Chase National Bank of New York would act as clearing agent for the loan and that four Chicago banks—the Continental Illinois National, First National, Harris Trust, and American National—would make available 26 per cent of the funds.

Purposes of Credit.

Vance explained that the credit agreement was to provide money for working capital purposes in connection with war contracts, to replace government advances previously made, and to assure working capital after war contracts have been terminated and until settlements have been reached with the government.

The agreement provides for a maximum of 80 million dollars in amounts of 4 millions or multiples of 4 million, and will extend to the close of 1946. The funds are to be advanced against 90 day notes bearing 2¾ per cent annual interest, and Studebaker is committed to pay ⅝ths of 1 per cent for the unused portion of the credit.

Studebaker, which manufactures airplane engines in a plant near Chicago airport, and trucks and other war equipment in South Bend and elsewhere, disclosed in the agreement that its unfilled orders exceeded 700 million dollars last November.

Gets 3 Million V Loan.

Pettibone Mulliken corporation has obtained a 3 million dollar V loan extending to December, 1945, which assures sufficient working capital to meet all war production requirements, E. J. Seifert, president, said. The company has paid in full the remainder of the $750,000 Reconstruction Finance corporation debt incurred in the reorganization of 1937, and its plant and equipment are free of mortgage. The company's production and sales continue to make new highs, Seifert said.

ILLINOIS HEADS TOWARD LEAD IN INDUSTRY

M'Keever Predicts Big Expansion.

Illinois, ranking third in value of manufactured products and seventh in war supply and war facility contracts, is destined after the war to become the leading manufacturing state, J. C. MacKeever, president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, said yesterday.

J. C. MacKeever. [Moffett Photo.]

"The association is using every effort toward that end," he said. "Many of the state's new war plants will continue on a high level of operation after the war.

"Illinois is in a strong position to forge ahead after the war. It promises to become a center of airplane manufacture as it is already a center of airplane transportation. It will continue to lead in the production of iron and steel products, and packing house and food products. Development of new and promising industries is indicated."

Two Billions for Aircraft.

Of 10 billion dollars of prime contracts for war materials, exclusive of foods, placed in the state, nearly two billion dollars were expended for aircraft, MacKeever said. These include big air transports, smaller planes, air frames, engines, propellers, parts, and related equipment, he asserted.

Seventy firms are engaged in the manufacture of aircraft instruments exclusively, he said.

Predicting development of Chicago as a world air hub after the war MacKeever said, "A map of the world showing the poles gives Chicago the advantage of centralized location for such cities as London, Paris, Berlin, Moscow, Buenos Aires, Calcutta, and Sydney."

Estimated value of manufactured products in Illinois during 1943 was approximately 11 billion dollars, compared with $4,794,861,000 in 1939, MacKeever said. Up to Dec. 1, 1943, all war contracts in Illinois amounted to nearly 17 billion dollars.

Lists Favorable Factors.

Factors which have contributed to making Illinois "the hub of the American industrial universe," include "freedom from bad laws penalizing industry," healthful climate, large supply of skilled and unskilled labor, favorable position for export trade particularly with Latin American countries, and the bituminous coal fields underlying two-thirds of the state and possessing available reserves larger than those of any state except Colorado, MacKeever asserted.

Other Illinois advantages are its nearness to the iron ore of the northern Mississippi valley, intelligent development of electric power, and the state's vast network of railroads, waterways, paved highways, and airways, he said.

"An average of 3,000 freight trains runs daily into Chicago," he asserted. In production of mineral wealth, Illinois ranks fifth among the states, and its fluorspar deposits are the world's largest, he said.

Leads in Food Supply.

Points of leadership mentioned by MacKeever included the statement that the quartermaster's depot in Chicago lets more food supply contracts than all the country's other war food depots combined. Illinois ranks first in manufacture of farm machinery, of corn and other grain products, heating and cooking apparatus, professional and scientific instruments, surgical appliances, sewing machines, tinware, wallpaper, soda water apparatus, stationery, cooperage, and sporting goods, and ranks near the top in output of many other products, he said. Its slaughtering and meat packing plants are the nation's largest.

Illinois farms rank first in production of soybeans and second in corn production. Among manufacturing centers, Chicago ranks first in heavy industry and second in total value of manufactured goods, he said. Its war supply contracts from June 1, 1940 thru Dec. 31, 1943, amounted to $8,692,674,000, excluding contracts for less than $50,000 and for food supplies.

Rise in Rails' Shares Causes Profit Selling and List Eases

New York, Feb. 18 (AP).—Stocks generally lost ground today as profit cashing on recent advances in rails touched off light selling in other departments. Prices began to fall after an active and steady start. Altho there were many gainers at the close, losers of fractions to a point or more predominated. Dealings slackened on the retreat.

The approach of the week-end and Tuesday's holiday inspired some lightening of accounts. Other customers stood aside to await developments in the battle of Truk and further European news. Action of congress in sustaining the anti-subsidy bill veto and expectation that the tax bill would meet the same fate next week served to dim speculative and investment sentiment. Another group of dividend announcements aided individual issues.

Trade Volume Reduced.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was off 0.3 at 50.9. Transfers totaled 669,973 shares, compared with 902,140 yesterday.

The Southern Pacific's 50 cent dividend was in line with forecasts and apparently had been well discounted as the stock slipped after a late start and ended down ⅞ at 29⅛.

Chrysler dropped 1¼ when its preceding dividend was duplicated. Faint hope had been held that the company might emulate General Motors and boost its payment.

Rustless Iron edged into new high territory for 1943-'44. Gainers included New York Central, Great Northern, Bethlehem, Goodrich, du Pont, and Douglas Aircraft. A favorable earnings statement propped American Telephone, which added ⅛ at 157⅞.

RAIL BOND GAINS HALTED.

New York, Feb. 18 (AP).—The extended advance in railroad bonds came to an abrupt halt today when profit taking overtook most active issues amid a general lowering of bids. Other corporate groups hovered in a narrow range with gains and losses about evenly balanced.

The upset came after more than a week of steady advances that sent a large portion of the more popular rails and numerous industrials and utilities to new highs for recent years. Today's indifferent performance accompanied a marked lessening of activity with sales aggregating $17,915,600 against yesterday's total of $21,655,000.

CHICAGO SHARES SLIP.

Lower prices prevailed yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Volume decreased to 16,000 shares. Commonwealth Edison was unchanged. Wisconsin Bankshares, Dodge Manufacturing, and Illinois Central declined fractionally. Heileman Brewing and North West Utilities prior lien sold at new 1943-'44 highs.

2,888 Chicago Workers Get Wage Boosts

The war labor board yesterday announced it had approved increases in wages for 2,888 Chicago workers and 2,140 workers in other midwest cities, but had denied requested raises for 774 other employes in a series of decisions, the first cases to be settled since Edgar L. Warren, new regional chairman, took office this week.

Increases included:

American Colortype company, 317 members of Bindery Help and Specialty Workers union; rate ranges raised 7¼ cents an hour.

Cafeteria Workers Get Raises.

Forum Cafeteria, no union; 2½ to 4 cent raises for 264 workers.

Consolidated Biscuit company, and 423 members of United Bakery and Confectionery Workers; percentage increases with new maximums.

Building Managers association and electrical workers, firemen and operating engineers unions; 5 and 6 cents an hour increases for 754 workers.

Maremount Automotive Products and Sheet Metal Workers union; new brackets for 868 workers.

Pay Increased $2 to $5.

Swartchild & Co., no union; 262 workers to get raises of $2 to $5 a week.

Denials were:

Allied Chemical & Dye corporation, and United Construction Workers; increases of 5 to 10 cents an hour asked for 319 employes.

United Biscuit company, Fargo, N. D.; 3 to 5 cent raises disapproved for 187 workers.

Farmers Union Grain terminal, St. Paul, Minn., new wage ranges denied for 268 workers.

HALE AND JENKS NEW HARVESTER VICE PRESIDENTS

T. B. Hale and F. W. Jenks have been elected vice presidents of the International Harvester company, Fowler McCormick, president, announced yesterday. Hale, former domestic sales manager, becomes vice president in charge of general line sales, and Jenks, former credit and collection manager, becomes vice president in charge of merchandising services.

McCormick also announced the formation of four new divisions, together with their general managers: Farm tractor division, R. C. Archer; farm implement, R. P. Messenger; industrial power, H. T. Reishus, and fiber and twine, Neil Loynachan.

State and City Bond Offerings to Increase

New York, Feb. 18 (AP).—A compilation by the Daily Bond Buyer disclosed today that $17,496,000 of new state and municipal loans will be in the market next week compared with only $6,201,500 this week and a weekly average for the year to date of $19,314,330.

'BIG INCH' PIPE LINE EXCEEDS ITS RATED CAPACITY IN 1ST YEAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—The government's 80 million dollar "Big Inch" pipe line, the largest in the world, transported more than 88 million barrels of crude oil from Texas fields to the Atlantic coast in the first 12 months of its operation, the petroleum administration for war announced today.

PAW said the line has been delivering in excess of its rated capacity of 300,000 barrels a day. During the first 12 months, which ended today, the line saved 18,000 tank cars which would have been needed in seven-day-a-week operation to transport the 88 million barrels to the east, PAW said.

"The 'Big Inch' has more than fulfilled every hope concerning its effectiveness in delivering oil to the east coast." PAW asserted.

WHEAT MARKET RALLIES AFTER SAG WITH RYE

Wheat and rye declined 1 cent or more a bushel in the early trading yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade to new low prices since late December under the weight of commission house liquidation. Wheat rallied late to close unchanged to only ⅝ cent lower, but rye finished ⅞ to 1⅛ cents down.

Reports that a large eastern distilling interest had been ordered to convert its facilities to the use of Cuban molasses at an estimated saving of 100,000 bushels of grain daily inspired the selling. Heavy margin calls by commission houses to holders of rye contracts were held responsible for some of the liquidation. Prices at the low point were 10¼ to 11⅝ cents under the recent high.

Oats and barley were lower early with other grains, but rallied.

PACKERS' FEAR OF INVENTORY LOSSES ENDED

Armour Sales Up, Says Eastwood.

Armour & Co. considers itself amply protected against a repetition of the disastrous inventory losses that followed World War I, George A. Eastwood, president, assured stockholders at their annual meeting yesterday.

George A. Eastwood.

He also disclosed continued gains in the company's first quarter volume of business, which in the 1943 fiscal year reached a record near a billion and a half dollars; said that overall net earnings had been satisfactory, and expressed "reasonable optimism" over future operations.

Termed Method of Protection.

"Lifo," popular term for the "last in, first out" method of pricing inventories for income tax purposes, provides one of several avenues of protection against inventory losses and is of particular value to packers, Eastwood said.

"This method tends to minimize the speculative element in our business in that it helps to avert the creation of 'paper profits' resulting from writing up the value of inventories when prices advance, and minimizes 'paper losses' which go with writing down values as price levels fall," he explained.

Armour's inventory losses after the last war, when the company was directed by the late J. Ogden Armour, approximated a million dollars a day for a brief period and reached a climax at more than 31 millions for 1921.

Contrasted with Last War.

Eastwood said "there is little likelihood of embarrassment growing out of our inventory in the event this war should suddenly end," and drew for stockholders this contrast between current conditions and those of 23 years ago:

"Once again we have responded to the nation's call for expanded production, but this time we have no new investments of capital which will be useless when peace comes.

"The government has taken promptly most of the products prepared especially for it [contrasted with delays in the last war], and our inventories include a minimum of items not suitable for the civilian trade [compared with proportionately larger amounts before]."

Reconversion of other industries from war to peace will entail problems not encountered in meat packing, but, said Eastwood: "There is no sound reason why the transition cannot take place without either inflation or deflation, without boom or depression, if the transition period is not seized upon by opportunists to effect so-called reforms."

The shareholders elected six Armour directors, Sewell L. Avery, Henry W. Boyd, Charles J. Faulkner Jr., Weymouth Kirkland, Elisha Walker, and James R. Leavell. All had previously been directors. All officers were reelected.

NOTICE TO ALL CREDITORS, STOCKHOLDERS AND ALL OTHERS INTERESTED IN CHICAGO, INDIANAPOLIS AND LOUISVILLE RAILWAY COMPANY, A DEBTOR.

On the 8th day of February, 1944, the Hon. Michael L. Igoe, Judge of the District Court of the United States for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, entered the following order in the following designated proceedings:

"IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES
FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF ILLINOIS
EASTERN DIVISION

In the Matter of
CHICAGO, INDIANAPOLIS & LOUISVILLE RAILWAY COMPANY, Debtor.
In Proceedings for the Reorganization of a Railroad
No. 54761

ORDER FIXING TIME FOR FILING OBJECTIONS TO PLAN OF REORGANIZATION AND BRIEFS IN SUPPORT OF OBJECTIONS, TIME IN WHICH PETITIONS MAY BE FILED FOR ALLOWANCES FROM THE DEBTOR'S ESTATE FOR COMPENSATION AND EXPENSES IN CONNECTION WITH THE PROCEEDINGS AND PLAN, THE DATE FOR HEARING ON OBJECTIONS TO THE PLAN AND PROVIDING FOR THE GIVING OF NOTICE TO ALL PARTIES IN INTEREST.

The Interstate Commerce Commission (hereinafter called the "Commission") having certified to this Court copies of the Commission's Report and Order dated September 20, 1943, and Supplemental Report and Order dated January 3, 1944, setting forth and approving a Plan of Reorganization of the Debtor herein pursuant to Section 77 of the Bankruptcy Act as amended.

NOW, THEREFORE, on the Court's own motion, it is ordered

(1) That all parties in interest, whether or not they have intervened herein or become parties to the record in this proceeding, who desire to object to the said Plan of Reorganization, shall file, in writing, in triplicate, detailed and specific objections to said Plan and their claims if any, for equitable treatment, together with a brief in support of such objections or claims, in the office of the Clerk of this Court in the United States Court House in the City of Chicago, State of Illinois, on or before the 15th day of March, 1944, and shall serve copies of the foregoing on all parties of record herein: provided, however, that in lieu of the above-mentioned brief any party filing such objections or claims may file with the Clerk of this Court on or before said date a statement in writing to the effect that at the hearing it or he will rely upon the briefs (designating the same), filed by it or him with the Commission in the proceedings upon which the Commission's Plan of Reorganization was promulgated.

(2) That any and all objections to said Plan of Reorganization and any and all claims for equitable treatment filed herein pursuant to this order be and they hereby are set for hearing on April 20, 1944, at 10:00 o'clock A. M., Central War Time, in Room 627, in the United States Court House in the City of Chicago. At the conclusion of such hearing the Court will determine what supplemental and/or reply briefs may be filed and the time on or before which any such briefs may be filed.

(3) Each and every individual or corporation, party in interest, indenture trustee, depositary, committee, representatives or creditors or stockholders, and every other group, representative or person having or desiring to present any claims for actual and reasonable expenses (including reasonable attorneys' fees) or reasonable compensation for services incurred or rendered in connection with said reorganization proceedings or said Plan for which it is claimed an allowance should be paid out of the estate of the Debtor herein, shall file the same in the form of a petition, in writing, in triplicate, giving a detailed and specific account of services rendered and expenses incurred to February 15, 1944, such filing to be in the Office of the Clerk of this Court in the United States Court House, Chicago, Illinois, on or before the 15th day of March, 1944, and that the Clerk of this Court, upon the filing of each and every such petition shall forthwith send one of the copies thereof to the Commission for the fixing of a maximum limit with respect to the amounts to be allowed for such expenses, fees or services, and that each of said parties filing any such claims shall serve a copy thereof upon the Trustees of the Debtor herein and upon each of the other parties of record herein, service to be upon counsel for the several parties in each instance where they have appeared by counsel in this proceeding.

(4) That the Trustees of the Debtor herein shall give notice of this order and of all of the provisions thereof to the Debtor herein, the Commission, each and every party of record in this reorganization proceeding, each and every trustee named in any mortgage or other instrument of security securing any of the Debtor's obligation of any nature, and to all parties or intervenors of record including committees or other representatives of creditors and stockholders in the proceedings before the Commission in which the Plan of Reorganization has been promulgated, as shown by the records of the Commission in said proceedings, by delivering personally, or by sending by registered mail postage prepaid, on or before February 15th, 1944, a copy of this order to each of the foregoing or their counsel of record.

(5) That the Trustees of the Debtor herein shall likewise give notice of this order and all of the provisions thereof to all creditors, stockholders and to all other parties in interest, and to all other persons or claimants by publishing a copy of this order in the newspaper of general circulation in each of the cities of Chicago, Illinois, and New York, N. Y., Louisville, Kentucky, Indianapolis, Indiana, and LaFayette, Indiana, said publication to be made once each week for two (2) successive weeks, the first of said publications to be made not later than February 15, 1944.

(6) That the Trustees of the Debtor herein shall duly file in this proceeding proper proof of service of copies of this order and of the publication thereof as herein directed.

ENTER
IGOE,
District Judge

February 9, 1944."

HOW TO RECKON DEALS IN ASSETS FOR TAX RETURN

First, Fix Basis to Figure Profit or Loss.

(This is the final article of this series.)

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

In order to measure the gain or loss from the sale or exchange of property the taxpayer must first determine the "basis" of the property. The gain or loss is the difference between the basis and the net proceeds from the sale or the value of the property received in exchange.

The amount paid for the property by the taxpayer is the basis in most cases. For example, the cost would be the basis for securities.

In other cases cost would have to be adjusted for such things as additional capital investment, or for depreciation. An example would be a building from which rental income is received. The original cost to the taxpayer would be adjusted for depreciation allowed or allowable, whichever is the larger, and for any improvements or betterments. The resulting basis would be called the adjusted basis.

Must Figure Depreciation.

If the taxpayer took more depreciation in some prior years than was properly allowable, but the charge was not disallowed, the full amount deducted would be used in determining the adjusted basis. If he failed to take the full allowable depreciation during the period of his ownership, he must nevertheless deduct the full allowable depreciation in arriving at the adjusted basis.

Thus, an owner of rental property may never have deducted depreciation in computing his annual income tax, but when he sells the property the full amount of allowable depreciation must be taken into account to establish a basis on which his gain or loss can be determined.

No depreciation would be allowed in establishing the basis of a personal residence, but adjustment could be made for additions and betterments during the period of the owner's occupancy.

A different rule may have to be used in determining the basis of property acquired before March 1, 1913, depending on whether a gain or loss is involved. The basis for determining a gain is the cost or other basis adjusted for depreciation to March 1, 1913, or the fair market value as of March 1, 1913, whichever is larger. Further adjustments would be made for subsequent years. In determining a loss on property acquired prior to March 1, 1913, the fair market value on that date would not be taken into consideration and the basis would be the cost, or other basis, with adjustments.

When Property Is Wages.

The basis for property received by bequest, devise, or inheritance is the fair market value on the date of the decedent's death, even tho title did not pass to the legatee until later. Adjustment would be made, of course, for subsequent depreciation and for additions and betterments made by the legatee, if the property was real estate.

The basis of property received in payment for services rendered is the fair market value on the date received.

If property was acquired prior to Jan. 1, 1921, as a gift or by a transfer in trust, the basis is the fair market value at the time the gift or transfer was made. On property received as a gift on or after Jan. 1, 1921, the basis in determining a gain is the same as it would be in the hands of the previous owner who did not acquire the property by gift.

GETS SYMPATHY OF JUDGE; HAVE SAME TROUBLES

Harry Prizant of 4564 N. Central Park av., found a ready listener yesterday when he appeared before Judge Samuel Heller in Shakespeare av. court to complain that Abraham Abaum, owner of a public garage at 3727 Lawrence av., left automobiles in the street when the garage was crowded.

"I am a regular customer of the garage and pay rent by the month," Prizant said, "but six times in the last two weeks there has been no room for my car."

Judge Heller, who keeps his own car in the same garage, said he recently had found it covered with snow. He issued a warrant charging Abaum with obtaining money under false pretenses.

SPLIT DEVELOPS WITHIN CHICAGO LIBERTIES GROUP

A schism has developed in the ranks of the Chicago Civil Liberties committee which, it is charged, is due to the recent attempt of communistic "fellow travelers" to wrest control from the moderates. The difference resulted in the withdrawal by Dr. John A. Lapp, head of the so-called moderates, of his candidacy for reëlection as chairman of the organization, and what is regarded by observers as a victory for the "fellow travelers." The contest allegedly arose over the "fellow travelers" attempt to "take over" functions of the Conference on Racial and Religious Discrimination.

SCREAMS, THEN MORE SCREAMS ROUT INTRUDERS

The persistent screams of Mrs. J. A. Obermaier put to hasty flight two hoodlums, one carrying a gun, who attempted to hold her up yesterday in her home at 1047 Ashland avenue, River Forest.

The men, dressed as mechanics, drove up in front of the Obermaier house in a green truck, which bore a sign reading, "Gas Burner Repairing." They identified themselves as gas repairmen, and said they wanted to correct or repair the gas meter in the house.

Mrs. Obermaier led them to the basement, where one man drew a gun. Then Mrs. Obermaier began screaming. The men, startled, fled up the stairs. She followed, screaming. They pushed her down a short flight, but she ran after them, still screaming. The robbers ran into the yard and drove off in their truck, leaving her still screaming.

It's All Chinese to Cops, So All Chinese Are Freed

Twelve Chinese were freed of gambling charges by Judge Gibson E. Gorman in South State st., court yesterday when Policemen Charles Lindstrom and John McMahon testified they did not know what game, if any, the men were playing. The raid by Central police was made on a room at the rear of a fruit store at 422 S. Clark st. Thursday. Joe Chung, 64, 420 S. Clark st., and conditions in a six state area as were booked as keepers. The sum of $20.20 which the police said they found under a table was donated to the Service men's center.

STRICKEN IN STORE: DIES.

Mrs. Cora Koenig, 59, of 4014 Clarendon av., suffered a heart attack yesterday in a drug store at 801 Irving Park rd., and was pronounced dead at the American hospital.

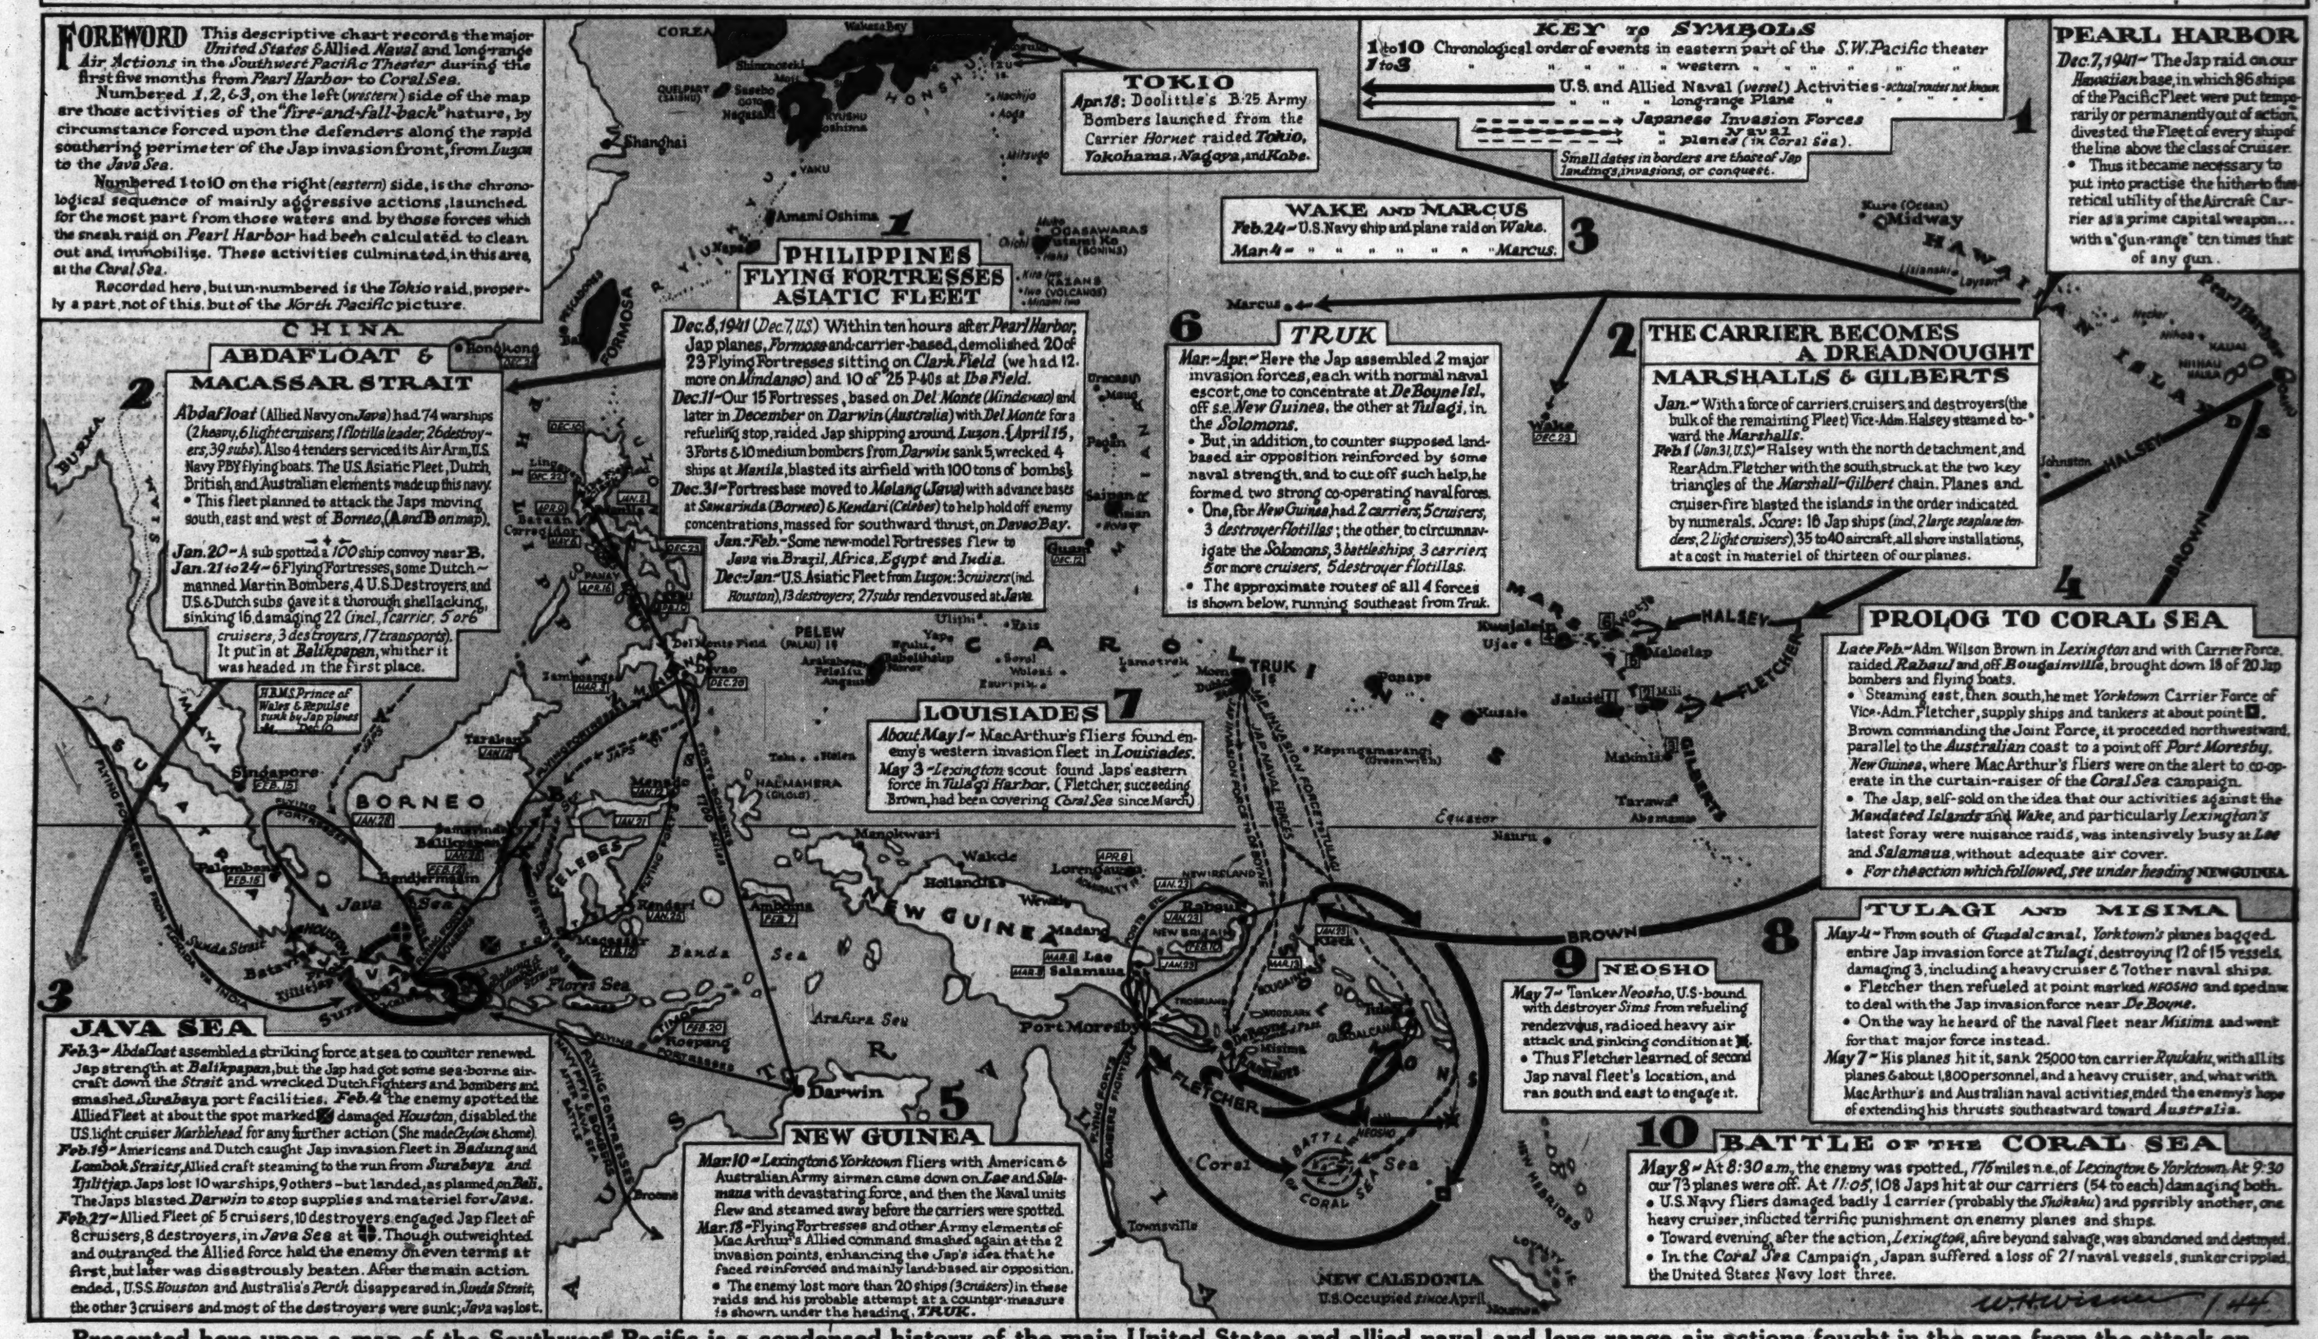
Action in Pacific—from Pearl Harbor to Coral Sea



FOREWORD This descriptive chart records the major United States & Allied Naval and long-range Air Actions in the Southwest Pacific Theater during the first five months from Pearl Harbor to Coral Sea.
Numbered 1, 2, &3, on the left (western) side of the map are those activities of the "fire-and-fall-back" nature, by circumstance forced upon the defenders along the rapid southering perimeter of the Jap invasion front, from Luzon to the Java Sea.
Numbered 1 to 10 on the right (eastern) side, is the chronological sequence of mainly aggressive actions, launched for the most part from those waters and by those forces which the sneak raid on Pearl Harbor had been calculated to clean out and immobilize. These activities culminated, in this area, at the Coral Sea.
Recorded here, but un-numbered is the Tokio raid, properly a part, not of this, but of the North Pacific picture.

Small dates in borders are those of Jap landings, invasions, or conquest.
TOKIO
Apr 18: Doolittle's B-25 Army Bombers launched from the Carrier Hornet raided Tokio, Yokohama, Nagoya, and Kobe.
PEARL HARBOR
Dec 7, 1941 - The Jap raid on our Hawaiian base, in which 86 ships of the Pacific Fleet were put temporarily or permanently out of action, divested the Fleet of every ship of the line above the class of cruiser.
• Thus it became necessary to put into practise the hitherto theoretical utility of the Aircraft Carrier as a prime capital weapon... with a "gun-range" ten times that of any gun.
WAKE AND MARCUS
Feb 24 - U.S. Navy ship and plane raid on Wake.
Mar 4 - " " " " " " Marcus.
PHILIPPINES
FLYING FORTRESSES
ASIATIC FLEET
Dec 8, 1941 (Dec 7, U.S.) Within ten hours after Pearl Harbor, Jap planes, Formosa-and-carrier-based, demolished 20 of 23 Flying Fortresses sitting on Clark Field (we had 12 more on Mindanao) and 10 of 25 P-40s at Iba Field.
Dec 11 - Our 15 Fortresses, based on Del Monte (Mindanao) and later in December on Darwin (Australia) with Del Monte for a refueling stop, raided Jap shipping around Luzon. (April 15, 3 Forts & 10 medium bombers from Darwin sank 5, wrecked 4 ships at Manila, blasted its airfield with 100 tons of bombs).
Dec 31 - Fortress base moved to Malang (Java) with advance bases at Samarinda (Borneo) & Kendari (Celebes) to help hold off enemy concentrations, massed for southward thrust, on Davao Bay.
Jan.-Feb. - Some new-model Fortresses flew to Java via Brazil, Africa, Egypt and India.
Dec-Jan - U.S. Asiatic Fleet from Luzon: 3 cruisers (incl. Houston), 13 destroyers, 27 subs rendezvoused at Java.
1
TRUK
Mar.-Apr. - Here the Jap assembled 2 major invasion forces, each with normal naval escort, one to concentrate at De Boyne Isl., off s.e. New Guinea, the other at Tulagi, in the Solomons.
• But, in addition, to counter supposed land-based air opposition reinforced by some naval strength, and to cut off such help, he formed two strong co-operating naval forces.
• One, for New Guinea, had 2 carriers, 5 cruisers, 3 destroyer flotillas; the other, to circumnavigate the Solomons, 3 battleships, 3 carriers, 5 or more cruisers, 5 destroyer flotillas.
• The approximate routes of all 4 forces is shown below, running southeast from Truk.
6
2
THE CARRIER BECOMES A DREADNOUGHT
MARSHALLS & GILBERTS
Jan. - With a force of carriers, cruisers, and destroyers (the bulk of the remaining Fleet) Vice-Adm. Halsey steamed toward the Marshalls.
Feb 1 (Jan 31, U.S.) - Halsey with the north detachment, and Rear Adm. Fletcher with the south, struck at the two key triangles of the Marshall-Gilbert chain. Planes and cruiser-fire blasted the islands in the order indicated by numerals. Score: 16 Jap ships (incl. 2 large seaplane tenders, 2 light cruisers), 35 to 40 aircraft, all shore installations, at a cost in materiel of thirteen of our planes.
4
PROLOG TO CORAL SEA
Late Feb - Adm. Wilson Brown in Lexington and with Carrier Force, raided Rabaul and, off Bougainville, brought down 18 of 20 Jap bombers and flying boats.
• Steaming east, then south, he met Yorktown Carrier Force of Vice-Adm. Fletcher, supply ships and tankers at about point ■. Brown commanding the Joint Force, it proceeded northwestward, parallel to the Australian coast to a point off Port Moresby, New Guinea, where MacArthur's fliers were on the alert to co-operate in the curtain-raiser of the Coral Sea campaign.
• The Jap, self-sold on the idea that our activities against the Mandated Islands and Wake, and particularly Lexington's latest foray were nuisance raids, was intensively busy at Lae and Salamaua, without adequate air cover.
• For the action which followed, see under heading NEW GUINEA.
ABDAFLOAT & MACASSAR STRAIT
2
Abdafloat (Allied Navy on Java) had 74 warships (2 heavy, 6 light cruisers, 1 flotilla leader, 26 destroyers, 39 subs). Also 4 tenders serviced its Air Arm, U.S. Navy PBY flying boats. The U.S. Asiatic Fleet, Dutch, British, and Australian elements made up this navy.
• This fleet planned to attack the Japs moving south, east and west of Borneo, (A and B on map).
Jan. 20 - A sub spotted a 100 ship convoy near B.
Jan. 21 to 24 - 6 Flying Fortresses, some Dutch-manned Martin Bombers, 4 U.S. Destroyers and U.S. & Dutch subs gave it a thorough shellacking, sinking 16, damaging 22 (incl., 1 carrier, 5 or 6 cruisers, 3 destroyers, 17 transports). It put in at Balikpapan, whither it was headed in the first place.
H.R.M.S. Prince of Wales & Repulse sunk by Jap planes Dec 10
LOUISIADES
7
About May 1 - MacArthur's fliers found enemy's western invasion fleet in Louisiades.
May 3 - Lexington scout found Japs' eastern force in Tulagi Harbor. (Fletcher, succeeding Brown, had been covering Coral Sea since March)
NEOSHO
9
May 7 - Tanker Neosho, U.S.-bound with destroyer Sims from refueling rendezvous, radioed heavy air attack and sinking condition at ■.
• Thus Fletcher learned of second Jap naval fleet's location, and ran south and east to engage it.
TULAGI AND MISIMA
8
May 4 - From south of Guadalcanal, Yorktown's planes bagged entire Jap invasion force at Tulagi, destroying 12 of 15 vessels, damaging 3, including a heavy cruiser & 7 other naval ships.
• Fletcher then refueled at point marked NEOSHO and speeded to deal with the Jap invasion force near De Boyne.
• On the way he heard of the naval fleet near Misima and went for that major force instead.
May 7 - His planes hit it, sank 25000 ton carrier Ryukaku, with all its planes & about 1,800 personnel, and a heavy cruiser, and, what with MacArthur's and Australian naval activities, ended the enemy's hope of extending his thrusts southeastward toward Australia.
JAVA SEA
3
Feb 3 - Abdafloat assembled a striking force at sea to counter renewed Jap strength at Balikpapan, but the Jap had got some sea-borne aircraft down the Strait and wrecked Dutch fighters and bombers and smashed Surabaya port facilities. Feb 4 the enemy spotted the Allied Fleet at about the spot marked ■ damaged Houston, disabled the U.S. light cruiser Marblehead for any further action (She made Ceylon & home).
Feb 19 - Americans and Dutch caught Jap invasion fleet in Badung and Lombok Straits, Allied craft steaming to the run from Surabaya and Tjilitjap. Japs lost 10 warships, 9 others - but landed, as planned, on Bali. The Japs blasted Darwin to stop supplies and materiel for Java.
Feb 27 - Allied Fleet of 5 cruisers, 10 destroyers engaged Jap fleet of 8 cruisers, 8 destroyers, in Java Sea at ■. Though outweighted and outranged the Allied force held the enemy on even terms at first, but later was disastrously beaten. After the main action ended, U.S.S. Houston and Australia's Perth disappeared in Sunda Strait, the other 3 cruisers and most of the destroyers were sunk; Java was lost.
NEW GUINEA
5
Mar 10 - Lexington & Yorktown fliers with American & Australian Army airmen came down on Lae and Salamaua with devastating force, and then the Naval units flew and steamed away before the carriers were spotted.
Mar 18 - Flying Fortresses and other Army elements of MacArthur's Allied command smashed again at the 2 invasion points, enhancing the Jap's idea that he faced reinforced and mainly land-based air opposition.
• The enemy lost more than 20 ships (3 cruisers) in these raids and his probable attempt at a counter-measure is shown under the heading, TRUK.
BATTLE OF THE CORAL SEA
10
May 8 - At 8:30 a.m., the enemy was spotted, 175 miles n.e. of Lexington & Yorktown. At 9:30 our 73 planes were off. At 11:05, 108 Japs hit at our carriers (54 to each) damaging both.
• U.S. Navy fliers damaged badly 1 carrier (probably the Shokaku) and possibly another, one heavy cruiser, inflicted terrific punishment on enemy planes and ships.
• Toward evening, after the action, Lexington, afire beyond salvage, was abandoned and destroyed.
• In the Coral Sea Campaign, Japan suffered a loss of 21 naval vessels, sunk or crippled. the United States Navy lost three.
